By WILLIAM T. ELLIS

JAPAN PLAYING POLITICS WITH CHRISTIANITY

Shiminoseki, Japan.—As I leave Japan for Korea, it is necessary to summarize the results of three imonths' investigation into religions conditions and missionary work in Japan. If find that some of the state ments now to be set down are rather sensational; this is due to the facts, and not to their reporting, indeed, unimportant news could scarcely be expected from the country which embodies the world's greatest political problems, the far eastern question. That much discussed question, one learns who painstakingly studies it on the ground, is really a comminglian of raclal, religious, economical and political questions. The reader of these articles who has not seen in them more than a treatment of missions and religion has not grasped all the meaning that the writer intended to convey.

The Japanese government, which has ever before its eyes the importance of influencing western opinion, has been playing politics with Christian, Japan has, throughout the present era, displayed a favorable attitude toward christianity. Like any other nation in similar circumstances, it has employed every agency at hand that would serve its own purpose; since the west; ern world is nominally Christian, Japan has throughout the present era, displayed a favorable attitude toward Christianity. Indeed the present era, displayed a favorable attitude toward christianity. Indeed the present era displayed a favorable attitude toward christianity. Recorder's Popularity Contest!

Ly Jamestown Exposition.

They are to be selected by the readers of the Recorder in a Popularity Voting Contest. The two receiving the highest number of votes cast will be taken from Burlington to Jamestown and their transportation, hotel bill and admission to the Exposition paid by the Recorder. The trip will consume at least ten days. The editor and his wife will be the chaperones. The date for the trip will e aunounced later.

Each dollar paid on subscription, either as a renewal, back subscription or new subscribtion, will entitle the party paying the same to 1,000 votes, and for fractions of a dollar will entitle to votes in the same proportion. The result will be published from week to week during the contest.

Each ballot cut from the Recorder will be good for 10 votes, provided it is signed by the party voting and received at this office not later than 10 days after its date.

Each dollar paid on job work will be entitled to 500 votes.

A ballot box has been secured and locked, and the keys will remain in the possession of County Clerk B. W. Adams, Atorney Sidney Gaines and Dudley Rouse, who will count and certify the result of each week's ballot, between the hours of 1 and 3 p. m., on Tuesday of each week. Ballots received after 1 p. m. on Tuesday will not enter into the count until the next week. The contest will be conducted in a manner perfectly fair to all parties concerned.

All money paid on subscription since and including April 1, 1907, will be permitted to participate in the contest.

No commission will be allowed to agents on any money for subscriptions or job work, that participates in the contest.

DAVID, THE SHEPHERD LAD

pyright, 1997, by the Author, W. S. Edson.) Scripture Authority: — 1 Samuel apter 16.

"How long wilt thou mourn for Saul, assing I have rejected him from reigning over larsei?"

—The prophet Samuel needed to be aroused from his personal grief and disappointment to an appreciation of the larger purposes and plans of God. These are never limited to the measure of a human life. One person to whom a work has been assigned may fall, but there is always another to take up the task and carry it to successful conclusion. There is little profit in lingering over the ship-weeked life. Rather, there is need to lift the eyes in hope to the future, that the one to whom God has assigned the unfinished task or the vacant place may be discovered. Samuel-was permitting the grief of his own heart to hinder his seeing and feeling in harmony with God will. The larger vision is needed to break the power of the natural impulses of the heart and life. It is hard to give will free in the service our ideals and hopes, but it must be done when the Divine will so indicates. Samuel must cases to look backward. He must look to the promise of the future.

THE STORY.

THE hills about Bethlehem were green and beautiful that fresh spring morning. Here and there amidst the rolling carpet of green bright-faced flowers all gilstening with the dew turned to greet the sun as it burst above the tree-skirted hilltop. The glad songs of the birds floated out on the gentle breezes as they skimmed the surface of the meadows or rested on some leafy bird swing temptingly offered by the friendly trees.

All nature-seemed to be-rejoicing, and the heart of young David responded to the glad note as he led his sheep out to the green pasture and beade the still waters. They knew and loved the lightsome, cheery ring of that strong young voice, and gladly followed where he led, and then grased contentedly while he sat under the shade-of-some office or fix tree and pinyed on his herp-the wild, aweet music ho had learned from the rippling waters and from the birds that carme to accept his challenge of song and pour out their little souls in response to the vibrant notes of his harp, and the clear, full tones of his harp, and the clear, full tones of his harp, and the clear, full tones of his harp, and the relay that we had a surface to accept his challenge of song and pour out their little souls in response to the vibrant notes of his harp, and the clear, full tones of his harp, and the clear, full tones of his particular morning David

This morning as he had left the house a messenger had come announcing the coming of Samuel, the prophet of Israel, to hold a sacrifice and feast at Bethehem. His mother had wanted him to remain to the feast, but bis older brothers had objected, declaring that it was more isoportant that the sheep be put out to pasture, and that anyway he was not, old enough to share in such occasions. The first tings of disappointment which he had feit had given place to a feeling of lighthearted gladdiess, as he remembered that he was more at home with the Lord in the fields and amidst his abeep than he was upon the formal occasion of worship.

As he led his sheep, choosing the smoothest and easiest paths, and watching for the coolest, greenest spots for the sheep to pasture, he thought of the Lord as his great whep-herd leading him, and caring for him, and with the thought had come as we have said, an inexpressible sense of joy and gladness which he did not understand himself. He knew that the nature about him spoke a familiar language to his heart and told him of the God which larsel worshiped. He knew that he loved his sheep and that as be cared for them he found delight in thinking of God's care for him. He wondered now, as he walked along, whether he was as willing to trust ling, and whether he was as willing to trust Ling, and whether he was as willing to be obedient to the Divine will as they were to obey his voice.

"No," he said; suddenly rousing-himself as his watchful eye noted.

were to obey his voice.

"No," he said, suddenly rousing-himself as his watchful eye noted that one of the young sheep had reck-lessly wandered far up the hillside, and was even then disappearing into the dense growth of underbrush. "No, I am just like that straying sheep. I wander so often in forbidden paths. But," he added, cheerfully, as he burried off after the truant, "the Lord goes out after me and brings me back, even as I must go and bring him back."

But David had covered scarcely half

While in a Carriage on Way to Palace—Naval Reserve Gullty of the Crime.

Peris, July 15.—The national fete was marred by a dastardly strempt on the life of President Fellieres by Leon Maille, a naval reservist of Havre, who, it is believed, is suffering from the mania of persecution. Maille fired two shots at the president but did not hit bim. He was at once placed under arrest.

On account of the activity of the anti-militarists, who tried to organize a demonstration against the army throughout Prance, exceptional precautions were taken to safeguard President Fallieres. The attempt on his life occurred on Avenue Dec Champs Elysees, while the president was returning to the palace from Long-champs, where be had reviewed the garrison of Paris in the presence of 250,000 enthusiastic people.

Premier Clemenceau and M. Lanes, the president's secretary, were with the president's secretary, were with the president's secretary, were with the president's secretary, which was escented by a squadron of cuirassiers. MAN AND HIS WAYS. FIR Fertile Brain Has Evolved a New Style of Cradle.

A new cradie has been invented—and by a man, Which latter statement is a dedundancy—for no up-to-date woman would really ever think of inventing anything so pernicious to her infant's welfare. Has she not become enlightened to the dreadful His of that-time-bonored institution—of our ancestors? Dare she imperil the intellect—that is to sway the twentleth century by untimely "luggling." in its embryo stage? Poor modern babe! When colle's gripe; assail, it may not know the luxury of a steady tramp swing across father's shoulder—strange to say, men do not jeer at this dictum of the new mother-bood—much less will it experience the blies of being fulled to rest in a wooden-slatted cradie or fluffy bassinet, swings and croons, till baby woes are merged in bleised sleep. Its maker claims that sideways rocking is, indeed, finjurious to babykins, but to his eyes, not his brain. Therefore has he constructed a cradie that swings lengthwise, and is absped like a boat!

Quite Desirable.

How Pat Got In.

Dr. George A. Gordon, pastor of the Old South church, Boston, tells how a witty Irishman stood before the gate of the other world, asking for admission. St. Peter refused him, however, telling him he was too great a sinner to enter there, and bade him go away. The man went a little distance from the gate and then crowed three times like a rooster. St. Peter at once threw open the gate and cried out: "Come in, Fat! We'll let bygones be bygones!"—Lippincott's.

Kind Woman's Assistance Meant Much to This Tramp.

Much to This Trainp.

A certain lady, noted for her kind heart and open hand, was approached not long ago by—a man who, with tragic air, began:
"A man, madam, is often forced by the whip of hunger to many things from which his very soul sbrinks—and so it is with me at this time. Unless, madam, in the name of pity, you give me assistance, I will be compelled to do something which I never before have done, which I would greatly dislike to do."
Much impressed, the lady made haste to place in his hand a five-dollar bill. As the man pocketed it with profuse thanks, she inquired:
"And what is the dreadful thing I have kept you from doing, my poor man?"
"Work," was the brief and moura-"Work," was the brief and moura-""Work."

"Work," was the brief and mourn ful reply.—Harper's Weekly,

SCALY ERUPTION ON BODY.

Doctors and Remedies Fruitiese-fered 10 Years — Completely Cured by Cuticura.

"Small sores appeared on each of my lower limbs and shortly afterwards they became so sore that I could scarcely walk. The sores began to heal; but small scally eruptions appeared. The fitching was so severe that I would scratch the sores until the blood began to flow. After I suffered thus about ten years I made a renewed effort to effect a cure. The eruptions by this time had appeared on every part of my body except my face and hands. The best doctor in my native county and many remedies gave no relief. All this was fruitless. Finally my hair began to fall out and I was rapidly becoming ball. A few months after, having used almost everything else, I thought I would try Cutteura Olatment and Cuttura Soap. After using three boxes I was completely cured, and my hair was restored, after fourteen years of suffering and an expenditure of at least $50 or $50 in vainly endeavoring to find a cure. B. Hiram Mattingly, Yermillion, S. Dak, Aug. 18, 1996."

SOMEWHAT OF A REFLECTION.

Amused Hostess.

A charming bostess of one of the "big houses," as they are called by those who are welcomed into them, has the added beauty of premature white hair. That which seems to her contemporaries an added charm may appear to the crudely, young a mark of decline, at least so it appears in one instance of which the hostess herself tells with enjoyment.

The lady is a connoisseur of antiques. At one of her teas a debutante rich, with the glow of youth, but sadly constrained with her sense of novelty, was hoaded a cup of tea; the cup was beautifully blue and wonderfully old. The hostess desiring to lighten the strain on her youthful guest by a pleasant diverting temark, sadi: "That little cup is a hundred and fifty years old!"

"Oh," came the debutante's high strained to..as: "How careful you must be to have kept it so long!"

A TERRI FIC STORM

Sweeps Big Bone Neighborhood, and Leaves Great Destruc. tion of Property in Its Wake.

Its Wake.

The storm that swept over the Big Bone neighborhood on the afternoon of Tuesday of last week, was the most destructive that ever visited that part of the county. The hail commenced falling at the top-of what is known as Hamilton's hill, immediately back of Hamilton, on the Ohio river and almost devastated a strip of territory about one-half mile wide by three miles long, running east from the crest of Hamilton hill. The hail stones were the largest ever seen there and nothing oould survive their blows. Rabbits and birds by the hundreds were killed, while hogs suffered greatly, many of them being killed. The bark was knocked off of the bushes and trees in the path of the storm, giving them a wearied appearance. The residence of the late John H. Slater was practically rund by the wind and hail. It looks like it had been shot to pieces with grape shot. Dr. Slater had but recently put an iron roof on the barn near this house, and the hail fore holes in this roof through which a man can run his fist. Crops in the path of the storm were wiped out completely, and 12 or 15 families, some of which are large, are in destitute circumstances and will have to be assisted. In some places hail stones were found as late in the week as Friday. Those who have visited the section swept by the storm report the damage far worse than it had been described to them. The damage to stock, crops and residences will reach many thousands of dollars. For other particulars of the damage wrought, see Big Bone communication.

Perry Clore.

Perry Clore was born Dec. 13th, 1849; died June 16th, 1907, aged 57 years, 6 months and 3 days.

This, briefly, is the story of life. We are born into the world, live a few years and are gone. In the passing away of the subject of this sketch the community mourns the loss of an exemplary citizen; a large circle of friends, the loss of a true friend; three brothers and a sister, the loss of a father, and a widow, the loss of a father widow, and a daughters and two sons. Mr. Clore was a member of the Independent Order of Odd-Fellows and maintained a good report among them till death.

We believe that he died in the Christlan faith. During his last days upon earth he privately conducted in the Baptist church at Belleview by Pastor Mattox and the writer, assisted by Alline Lodge I. O. O. F., in the presence of a large congregation of relatives and friends. Interment in the old cemetery at Belleview.

Reluctant Obedience.

A wise puppy beting told to lie down in a certain place will obey meekly at the moment, and then, waiting until his master's attention is diverted, will slip slowly away from his post. His reluctance to stay where he is told is not based on a dislike of the spot, for he will often select it for himself—but purely on his prefutice, acquist, obedinot based on a dislike of the spot, for he will often select it for himself—but purely on his prejudice against obedience as such. So the child loves to assert his freedom by dofing what he would consider a serious hardship if he were compelled to do it. A keen seat is added to play if it is close to the edge of the forbidden. Like many of the naughtinesses of human kind, desire for the unpermitted underlies the great advances of the race. Erect a barrier, and the child and the man long to climb over it, says the Youth's Companion. The impassable mountain, the unsailed ocean, the mysterious law of nsture, the infanitely distant star—these are so many irresistible magnets to the pioneer, sad they, lead him, through what we may truly call an audactous disobedience, to new worlds and new triumphs of mind over unatter. "Why are the cows always getting out of the pasture?" asked the schoolmistress of the old farmer, "Wal, I suppose it's because they getting out of the pasture?" asked the schoolmistress of the old farmer. "Wal, I suppose it's because they want to be "where they alint" A glordous impulse, which climbs from brute to man—and so on, to the heights of future development! The puppy," the cow, the child, the pioneer, the man of science alike may glory in their reluctant and temporary obedience to the voice which says, "Stay here!"

An examination of the minds of many freshmen brings to light cavities of appailing magnitude; young men from well-to-do homes arrive at the college gates without any of the passwords which admit men to educated society. They have a hazy idea that the Bible is an old book which belongs with "The New England Primer" on the dusty shelves where obsolete publications are put out of the way. Thay have heard of Sbakespeare, but are under the impression that he was a popular novel-ist. They have no knowledge of Col. Esmond, Mr. Pickwick, Sir Roger de Coverley, Miles Coverdak, or Evangeline. They know something about Rip Van Winkle because they have been to the theater, and for the same reason they are not without impressions of Hamet, though they fail to associate his tragic career with Sbakespeare. The examination papers in English are sometimes far more amusing than the journals which make joking a profession. If it were not for the entrance requirements, says the Outlook, some students who knock at college doors would be as in-mocent of knowledge of the literature says the Outlook, some students who knock at college doors would be as in-nocent of knowledge of the literature which is supposed to be the common possession of educated men as if they had just arrived from Mars.

AMERICAN FARTERS LEADERS

DOLLARS BY THE BILLIONS

Annual Value of Farm Products in the United States Greater Than the Output of the World's Mines.

Statistics gathered by the United States census bureau afford interesting studies to those who care to delve into economic subjects. According to the government reports issued covering the years up to 1905, the total amount of capital invested in manufacturing in the United States is $12,686,265,673. During the year 1905 there was produced of minufactured products $14,802,147,087.

The same authority gives the in-products $14,802,147,087.

The same authority gives the information that the farm values of the United States reached the enormous sum of $20,514,001,836, and to this, which is the land value, must be added $13,114,492,056, which represents farm improvements. It is needless to give the value of miscellaneous stocks, etc., but it is sufficient to say that during the years 1905 and 1906 that the annual production of the farms of the United States amounted to $5,500,000,000. It will be seen from this that while the value of farms and improvements is very nearly three times the amount invested in manufactures, that the production of the farms snnusly is only about one-half of the value of the manufactured products; but when it is taken into consideration that the farm supplies more than 50 per cent. of the articles that enter into the manufactures, it shows how important is the American farmer.

Last year the wealth produced by American farms, was five times greater than the value of gold and silver produced in the United States for the year. It is estimated that the gold produced in the World States for the year. It is estimated that the gold produced in the World since the discovery of American farms bring wealth into the world was $12,429,000,000. Thus it cam be seen that about every four years American farms bring wealth into the world greater than all the gold and silver that has been produced since Columbus' time. The wealth of the United States is now extimated at $112,000,000,000. American farmers are adding to this wealth of Great Britan and Ireland Finders wealth producing capacity of the American farms produce wealth of all of Italy is estimated at $30,200,000,000. American farmers are heading to the wealth of the Breat kingdom of Great Britan and Ireland. The total wealth of all of Italy is estimated at $33,000,000,000. Descensions expended $37,039,763. DEVELOPING THE COUNTRY.

Progress of Agricultural Districts and Cities and Towns Go Hand in Hand.

The building up process of a country commences with the cultivation of the soil generally. First the ploneers, the settlers on the land, begin the building of homes, and closely in the wake of the agriculturists follow the towns.

Town building is an interesting study. It is the highest development of communism. As far back as we can reach in the history of the world we find the spirit of community of interests. When Columbus reached America he found the Indians had their villages. Even among the ment barbarous races the communial spirit is found. In our state of civilization cities and towns represent most perfect communial development.

Where there are people engaged in any industry, it is necessary that there be tradesme to supply necessary wants. These tradesme generally seek the most convenient location in the settlement and form the judges. The villages soon to the settling up of the contiguous teritory, new industries are brought into existence and gradually there is a growth of the bamilet to the proportions of a village. The villages soon becomes a small city, and its importance is gauged entirely by the trade that it can command to give employment to the people residing within it. Geographical location is siways an important factor in town and city building. The villages soon becomes a small city, and its important factor in town and city building. The average agricultural town has a limited territory must come the trade to maintain it. The large citiles are small towns "grown up". While the small town may receive its support from the immediate territory surrounding it, the city small the small town may receive its support from the immediate territory surrounding it, the city small trade of small towns, and by certain conditions that perhaps may make it a place where manufacturing and jobbing may be carried on advantageously. While the geographical position is important to the small town, it is more important to the agricultural sections of the country. The farms supply the major portion of the articl the bome town be a progressive place and that all its interests be protected.

Try for Factories.

Small manufacturing plants are desirable factors in the business of any town.—There must be employment for the residents of a city or town, and any means of supplying this need is commendable. But there is one thing that many citizens do not take into consideration, and that is, it is better for the citizens of a town to build up industries already established than to strive to gain new industries. A manufacturing plant is beneficial to a place in accordance with its payroll and its output of goods that bring a revenue to the town. Some small concerns that will employ a dozen hands will have a payroll of perhaps $55 or $40 à day. The value of its products—may amount to $15,000 or $20,000 annually all dependent upon the character of the business. But what is most considered is the payroll. From the average small town it is estimated that trade lost, and which goes to large cities through the mails, is more than $100 a day. If citizens of a community would retain this $100 a day and do their trading in the home town, it is evident that it would be twice as benedicial as the small factory that has a payroll of $40 or $50 daily.

PRESIDENT - HOME ON B

Caught in Trap Through His Impetu osity and Unfairness, He Has Little Trouble in "Coming Up Smiling."

On the subject of Gov. Hughes vetoes, the New York Post editorially agays. "In 1882 Mr. Goverain Atilled, the bill reducing the fare on the elevated roads from ten to five cents. Public feeling ran nearly as high against Jay Gould and Cyrus Field at that time as it has of late against the managers of our railroads."

This statement recalls one of the most remarkable incidents in the career of President Roosevelt, who was the author and champlon of the bill referred to, and who thus early exhibited that mysterious agility which always enables him to get on both sides of a question—to dive deeper, and come out dryer, than any other political duck that ever quacked. An account of this affair will be found in Will M. Clements' work, "Roosevelt, the American," at page 37, where it appears that soon after the beginning of the session of the New York legislature of 1833, Mr. Roosevelt, who was then a member of the heasembly, introduced a bill to require the New York elevated railroad companies to reduce their fares from ten to five cents. Mr. Roosevelt work of the contract between the state and the railroads, expressed in the charter granted by the state. When the bill went back to the assembly his high the state of the railroads, expressed in the charter granted by the state. When the bill went back to the assembly his high the state of the man. Mr. Roosevelt then doubled on his track, as he has so often done since. He made a speech in which he dodged the question of the authorship of the bill, but said: "I have to say with the whole characters of the man. Mr. Roosevelt then, as now, jumps at conclusions and his mind is swayed by his feelings and instead of giving farting the subject of the man. All the tariff protected trusts and monopolists desire is to be let aions so that they can continue to exact high prices for their products without the competition that tariff reform would bring.

FRENZIED FINANCE.

Republicans Are Help

Money Power.

Although the United Rower Treasury Claims to have on May *a halance, of $267,098.648, seides the trust funds to redeem eutstanding certificates, yet in reality there is but a "working baisance" of $65,083,944 of free cash to pay the debts and running expenses of the government. For of the amount reported on hand must be deducted current liabilities, which are reported on the same day to be $113,399,030 and nearly $4,000,000 more in the Philippine treasury and awaiting rembursement. Then there was on the same date $183,246,977 deposited in the national banks, which if called for suddenly could not be paid, or if paid would so reduce the money on band in many of the banks as to produce a panic.

On or before July 1 the treasury will have to redeem $42,313,700 of the four per cent bonds due on that day, $74,441,850 having been redeemed or refunded by another issue. If the matter of paying off these bonds was treated as business men pay their liabilities the owners of the bonds wall be given checks on the banks that could be given checks on the payment of the government.

treated as business men pay their listificate the owners of the bonds would be given checks on the banks that hold $183,246,977 of the government money, upon which they are paying no interest, instead of issuing any new bonds.

But the national banks have been too free contributors to Republican campaign funds to be called upon to pay what they owe and will be let off with only having to pay a small portion of it and the balance the people will be required to pay interest upon for, years to come in the form of new bonds.

On the day of the Wall street panic in March there was a "working balance" of $100,787,000 in the United States treasury, which has been reduced to but a little over $55,000,000 by increasing the deposits in the favored banks to help them out of the tight place they are in.

Thus is the United States treasury mixed up with the doings of the frenzied financiers of Wall street by the present reform administration.

The Aldrich bill passed by the last congress is responsible for this and mixed up with the doings of the frenzized financiers of Wail street by the present reform administration.

The Aldrich bill passed by the last congress is responsible for this and as it was passed by the Republicans as a party measure they alone must explain why the banks were so favored at the expense of the people. The Wail street Journal, commending on that measure said:

"The signing of the Aldrich bill is the first important step in the abolishing of the Independent treasury system which was established in Van Buren's administration as a result of Jackson's war on the United States bank. From Jackson to Roosevelt covers a period of over 10 years."

So the result of Jackson's fight against the United States bank as a political power inimical to the interests of the American people has virtually been reversed by the Republican party under President Roosevelt and probably not one Republican voter out of a hundred knows that their representatives in congress voted to so ald the money power.

REPUBLICANS AND TRUSTS.

Linked Together for "the Principle of Protection."

To reform the tariff so that the trusts would not be protected in charging present high prices for their products, would abolish "the principle of protection," which the last Republican platform declared is "the cardinal policy of the Republican party". We know how the trusts and protected manufacturers wuccessfully protected manufacturers wuccessfully protected manufacturers wuccessfully protected manufacturers wuccessfully protected when the reciprocity treaties with France and other countries were before the senate for ratification, although those treaties only reduced the tariff 30 per cent. on some few articles that were protected by duties averaging 75 per cent.

Will even the most conservative Republican tariff reformer say that 20 per cent. Teduction will appreciably reduce the prices of the products of the protected trusts, when their present protection is from 50 to over 100 per cent. If so, are the Republican revisionists prepared to revise the tariff still lower, until those trusts that sell cheaper abroad than to our own people, can do so no longer?

The Demorratic plan of abolishing trust protection and limiting the rates of duty, "to the needs of the government, economically, effectively and constitutionally administered," is to invite disaster according to the Republican platform which also declared that: "A Democratic tariff by business prosperity." That mendacious statement has been proven so historically untrue that honest Republicans are heartly ashamed of it. The facts are the Republican leaders find themselves confronted with a tariff reform sentiment that is becoming dangerous to their continued supremay and the question of standing by the inriff protected manufacturers furnish the financial backing of the Republican members of congress are under obitions and protected manufacturers furnish the financial backing of the Republican members of congress are under obition to be eliminated or even reduced or that the Republican marty will foreso, their campaign coatributions. To Expisin Organization's Un fessed Assassin.

Boise, Ida., July 11.—Charles E. Moyer went to the stand as a witness for his fellow defendent, William D. Haywood, and, besides making a positive denial of all the crimes attributed to him and the other federation leaders by, Harry Orchard, offered an explanation of the unsolicited appearance of Western Federation of Miners as the defender of Harry Orchard immediately after his arrest at Oaldwell for the murder of Steunenberg.

Moyer swore that it was Jack Simplins who engaged attorney Fred Miller at Spokane to go to Caddwell to reprosent Orchard, then known as Thomas Hogan, and that it was at the request of Simpkins that the witness and Haywood subsequently advanced 11.501 from the lunds of the federation it meet the expense of defending Orchard.

It was long, and the transaction was difficult and uncertain, but he and Haywood figured the next day that it was signed Simpkins and road:

"Can not get lawyer to defend Hogan. Anawer."

Moyer testified that he was suspleious about the message, the newspaper having already charged the crime up to the federation, and that he decided to consuit John Murphy, Sacral counsel for the federation, before took any steps.

Moyer said he left for Chicage that attennon, but that Haywood took the matter up and opened communication with the union at Silver City, and minde arrangements to engage Attorney John Nugent to look after the interests of the federation and defend or chard if necessary.

The defense produced copies of this correspondence and all of it was read into the record.

When Walls of Building Collapsed-Three Killed; 19 Hurt.

Three Killed, 19 Hurt.

Philadciphia, July 11.—Three men are known to have been killed, one fatally hurt and 18 others were in jured in the collapse of a new concrete building at the plant of Bridgman Bros. Co. About 30 men were at work on he side which gave way and thay were carried down in the debris. The body of M. Hopkins and the bodies of two unidentified colored men have been taken from the ruins. It is believed there are others burled under the heavy mass of concrete.

A strike of laborers probably saved the lives of many more men. These men retused to holst bricks after working hours, unless they were palidouble wages. The bricklaying contractor offered them time and a half, but they refused to continue work. Consequently when the bricklayers reported for work they found no brick holsted for them and they returned shome.

Not the Slightost Cause for A in the Japanese-American Situation.

New York, July 12.—Viscount Aokl, Japanese ambassador to the United States, added his voice to that of Adm. Yamanoto in procidening the friendly feeling of Japan for the United States and the Americans, and ridiculing the idea of war between the two nations. Viscount Aokl's opinion was given in the form of a written statement issued through the secretary of the Japanese embassy in the ,Hotel Astor, reading:

anese embassy in the ,Hotel Astor, reading:

"I have only to repeat what I have said time and time again, that there is no Japanese-American situation. There exists between the two governments no difference of ill feeling of whatever sort. All this talk of possible trouble between the two nations, so devoted to each other, is a mere phantom creation of wild imagination that ever seems to haunt the minds of irresponsible story makers and trouble hunters.

"There is not the slightest cause for nankely in the American-Japanese relations, and, if there is any, it is not because the actual existence of any difficulty between the two countries, but focus to the demagosic influence of some unwarranted press talk, that often tends to drive even the calmest temper of the public into a whirl of temperatuous rago."

At a luncheon which the Japanese Society of America gave at noon to His Bixcellency Adm. Baron Yomamoto, in the Hotel Astor, sincere friendship and good will between Japan and the United States was expressed, and Rr. Adm. Coghlan, Ambassador Aoki and Thomas J. Vacation.

The secret of rest is to get rid of detail for a time. Why is it that a sea voyage is regarded as the best of tonics? Simply because the entire change of surroundings where out the mass of complications attendant upon the daily routine of the ordinary worker. We all need occasional freedom from the bondage of the liny strings that bind us to wearing tasks. The man who realizes this and planshis vacation accordingly makes no mistake.

Couldn't Understand the Taste of His Customers.

Two men were discussing the various food products now being supplied in such variety and abundance.

One, a grocer, said, "I frequently try a package or so of any certain article before offering it to my trade, and in that way sometimes form a different idea than my customers have. "For instance, I thought I would try some Postum Food Coffee, to see what reason there was for such a call for it. At breakfast I didn't like it and supper proved the same, so I naturally concluded that my taste was different from that of the customers who bought it right along.
"A day or two after, I waited on a lady who was buying a 25c package and told her I couldn't understand how one could fancy the taste of Postum." "I know just what is the matter; she said, 'you put the coffee boller on the active for twitt fifeen mutures.

The Owen county grand jury indicted several persons for receiving illegal fees as officers, and then did not do a thing but ask the circuit Judge to recommend to the fiscal court that it make the sheriff and his deputies an allowance for summoning witnesses for the grand jury, a service for which the law provides no pay. It looks inconsistent in a jury to indict some for receiving illegal fees and then recommend the payment of illegal fees to others. What is sauce for the goode should be sauce for the gander.

It is a very poor week for sensations when one cannot be sprung in Owen county. The latest and probably the greatest sensation in the history of the county was that launched by the grand jury that adjourned a few days ago after a session of two weeks, in which it secured evidence upon which it indicated all the members of the county's fiscal court and an ex-county official or two. It seems that Owen county is about as thoroughly demoralized as it is possible for a community to be, the result of the jealousies of political factions and the tendency of county officials to grafting. It will take a long time to get the tangle in "Sweet Owen" straightened out and peace and good fellowship to prevail.

Thirteen is an unlucky number. It has been proverbial time out of mind that if a man had 13 tagged on to him that you could not make him a winner. The county of Owen has been very unlucky in its suits against the ex-sheriffs. There are thirteen suits in all and twice they have gone out of court. W. W. Dickerson, of Cincinnait, Ohio, has dismissed the suits in Circuit Court against Gayle, Swope and Alexander. These suits involves some ten or twelve thousand dolars. They were first brought by Judge William Carroll, of Henry county, and dismissed because no demand had been made on the parties for the money before they were filed. By the first of October politics in Kentucky will be at a white heat and then some. The campaign now at hand will be about as warm as was ever experienced in the State.

The Republican nomine for Clerk of the court of appeals is very objectionable to many of the party who have kept tab on his political movements. They give and party disorganizer.

Judge John M. Lassing, who presides over the 8th appellate district of Kentucky, is one of the voungest as well as one of the ablest jurists on the appellate bench in the state. A rescent distriction for the Judge was his writing of the decision in the Louisville election case, in which the entire set of city officials from Mayor down, were unseated because of election frauds.

The Judge is a candidate for re-election, and has already been given the nomination of his party without a contest. While the district is normally close between the two parties we are reliably informed that the republicans will not nominate a candidate, which indicates that they believe that Lassing is in every way satisfactory.

Judge Lassing's decisions have which indicates that they believe that Lassing is in every way satisfactory.

Judge Lassing's decisions have been so uniformly fair and just that the great majority of his constituents, no matter from what party they come, cannot help but endorse him.

Judge Lassing resigned as Circuit Judge of the Fifteenth judicial district, of which Grant county is a part, to accept the appointment of Judge of the Court of Appeals. He was one of the best Judges this district ever had and his friends in Grant county are legion. The people here regard him as almost a home product, he having been born and reared just over the line in Boone, near Walton, where he has a begattful home. Weak Pigs This Spring.

We cannot afford to lose even a part of our pig crop, for under most systems of farming and feeding, hogs play a very important part in the business. Anything that hazards the pig crop will hazard the profits of theyar. The losses this year show either that many have been careless with sows and pigs, or they have missed some of the essentials in the proper management of them. The facts are that an uncommonly large number of pigs were sacrificed during April, from sheer lack of proper surroundings and care. The pigs came weak, and with the cold, chilly weather they soon succumbed. The trouble was right here. Feed has been high during the past winter, especially mill stuff, with the result that sows have been wintered with the fattening cattle, or fed on an exclusive diet of corn. Small litters were the natural result, and weak pigs, with not enough vitality to stand chilly weather and poor care. How could these pigs be anything else, but weak, punythings? The lesson is a very costly one this season, but perhaps, these severe losses will urge to more rational methods.

It is not a good plan to plant another tree of the same kind in the place of one which has died. The same cause which killed one will cause another to die.

When the tops of trees have been winter-killed, it is a good plan to use the pruning shears judiciously and prune them back as far as the branches are dead. It is probable that the top will not be any worse for it.

A good portion of the territory that will be supplied by R. F. D. No. 2 from Burlington would receive much better service from a route supplied at Union postoffice. No. 2 shows how little the man who laid it off cares about the arrangement of routes. He drew his pay for his work and there his interest ceased.

Jury Duty.

Scarcely an important case comes to trial which does not show the difficulty of securing for the defendant what is justly regarded as one of the most precious of civil liberties, "a jury of his peers" to judge him. The difficulty leads to constant criticism of "the jury system," as if the thing itself, which the people with so much frouble compelled King John to guarantee to thep, were fundamentally at fault. Less is exid about the innumerable filmsy excuses offered by talesmen to escape service, and about the almost universal unwillagness of the average citizen to do jury duty, says Youth's Companion. Men whose word in business matters would be taken anywhere, who are attendants at church and members of religious as esceidatos, will sometimes go into sociations, will sometimes go into court and lie with heerful equatimity about the condition of their health or the state of their busings, in order to escape doing what has become incorporated in the very body of English speech as "liny" duty." The "jury" part of the phrase is what is noticed. The "duty" part is forgotten. One of the orators at the recent Memorial day exercises quoted that excellent definition which describes patriotism as the desire to give one's country the kind of service it needs, at the time when it needs it. The patriotism of the men of '61 was displayed in military service, because that was the service the country most needed at that time. To-day the need is of another sort—a loyalty to every duty which makes life and property safer and the country stronger and more secure in happiness and prosperity. The serving on a jury, the cheerful paying of just taxes without attempt to "swear them off," the acceptance of responsibility in city, state or nation—these are just as much duties as observing the rules of the board of health or being honest in business. No man can afford to shirk them, for if he does his own self-respect suffers, as well as the general well-being of bis-community. ociations, will sometimes go into ourt and lie with cheerful equanimity

That American shipbullders have made remarkable progress in their craft and as a result have greatly reduced the cost of construction is shown anew by the bids received for the two monster battleships authorized by congress, says Troy Times. These vessels are to be the most formidable of their class shoat, of approximately 20,000 tons displacement. The bids range from $5.100,000 to $3.500,000, and all are below the figures anticipated by the naval—authorities, and the result will be that the new marine fighters will be secured for much less than was expected. The famous battleship Oregon, one of the stanchest and best warships known, cost nearly $3.223,000. The new "Dreas" "The "are to be nearly double the size of the Oregon, but, according to the bids received, are likely to cost relatively a great deal less. Often is heard protest against what is called claimishness among foreigaers who become citisens of the United States. It is claimed that they carry old-country ideas with them to the new land, and refuse to mingle with other than their own nationality. In defense of these foreigners who are thus charged, it is but fair to say that many of them labor under the misapprehension that they are not looked upon by the older American citizens as companionable. Often their lack of a knowledge of the English language makes their own class desirable associates. It will be observed that in one or two generations condition changes and the children of these foreigners become throughly Americanized.

It would be well it some of the

It was one-of the rules of the colony to assist one another. Each one

Schools and churches, which at first were roughly built, have been replaced with magnificent edifices which are sources of pride to the residents of the community. Some of the small business places of 40 or 50 years ago have grown to be of aimost national importance. In fact all residents of the community are independent, and a few of them possessors of great wealth. How successful they have been is shown by the absence of paupers in the county. There are no public charges, neither is there any great expense as to maintaining a county fail.

This community is but one of many in the Mississippi valley and throughout the west. Such communities have been built up solely by the simple adherence to cooperation among members and a following out of the home-trade principle. Members realized that every dollar carsed in the community and sent to some other place robbed the community of so much wealth, and that this dollar ceased to be a factor in increasing the importance and progress of the place—in these communities are generally leaded fouring mills. OPPORTUNITIES NEAR HOME.

Progressive Towns Offer Excellent Advantages for Young Men.

Students in sociology have reco Students in sociology have recentive expressed pessimistic views as to chances for the success of young men of country districts. There has been no deaying of the fact that the farm affords a splendid opportunity for those inclined towards a pastoral life, but it is maintained that of recent years conditions preclude any great chances for the average business vocation. That is that the channels for his development are being made more narrow year after year through the formation of corporations and trusts for the control of various, industries. In other words, the centralization of business is considered detrimental to the pursuing of business to considered.

COMMON SENSE ECONOMICS.

He who aims to be fair toward his neighbor will not deep him the oppor tunity to make an honest living. The day laborer should be as well reward ed, according to his work, as is the merchant or the banker.

Merchants are shortsighted Merchants are snortesignted when they will order potatoes or other vegetables by the carload from an other town when right in their neigh borhood farmers have just as good potatoes to sell, and perhaps at a lower price. No use in paying the commission man a percentage in a case like this.

From fruitgrowing sections year after year reports come as to the rotting of the crops on account of the poor transportation facilities, or refusal of buyers in the large cities to pay prices sufficient to pay for gathering. Here is an opportunity for the manifestation of local enterprise. Why not start small drying and canning establishments to use up the surpless fruit? Such establishments could be profitably conducted, and operated with benefit to all the people of the community.

There is little economy for the atorekeepers to keep on their shelves goods that are likely to grow out of date, or deteriorate in value. Better sell all such goods at actual cost, and give the people of the neighborhood the beneals of lowest prices.

People are interested in prices of goods. The wise merchants tully appreciate the value of the home-paper as a medium of intercourse with their customers. Well-written advertisements and the naming of prices attract attention, for the average person when his attention is called to an article always wants to know the cost

Up to the Legal Limit.

The New York Life Insurance Company announces that its new paid business during the half year just ended was over seventy million dollars. As the new law allows no life company to write over one hundred and fifty millions per year, it would appear that this company is working nearly up to the limit. The New York Life gained such headway hear that have well as the limit, and the company is working nearly up to the limit. keep business down to the limit, rather than how to reach it. No other company is writing nearly as much as the law silows. The New York Life has evidently become a preferred company.

The company's payments to policy holders during the six months ending June 30 were $21,680,761. It is interesting to note that this amount was almost equally divided between payments under policies maturing by death and payments made to living policy holders. Thus, while death-claims were $11,180,826, the amount paid for matured endowments, annufites, trust fund installments, for purchased policies and for dividends was $10,880,135. Modern life insurance, as practiced by the best companies, embraces a wide field, and covers many contingencies. It is money saved for the families of those who die prematurely.

Modesty of True Greatness

Modesty of True Greatness.
Abou Ben Adhem had just feund out that his name led all the rest.
"Silli," he observed, with a modesty as rare as it was charming, "the season is young yet. I've made a few lucky hits, it's true, but just as likely as not I shall be at the bottom of the percentage column in batting bofore the season ends." Smillingly accepting the bouquet of cut flowers sent to him by an admirer in the grandstand, he steepped up to the plate, struck out, dodged a lemon thrown at him by a cliquisted-bleacherthe, and weat and took his seat on the bench.

"I once went off into the mountains to get close to the heart of nature," said the matter-of-fact man. "I sought the woods and lay down close to her throbbing bosom. But I found she was full of red hugs and other penetrating insects. So I arose and gloomly sought the artificial city."

MEAT OR CEREALS.

A Question of Interest to All Care ful Persons.

A Question of interest to All Careful Persons.

Arguments on food are interesting, Many persons adopt a vegetarian diet on the syound that they do not like to feel that life has been taken to feed them, nor do they fancy the thought of eating dead meat.

On the other hand, too great consumption 2-partly cooked, starchy oats and wheat or white bread, pastry, etc., produces serious bowel troubles, because the bowel digestive organs. (where starch is digested), are overtaxed and the food ferments, producing as, and microbes generate in the decayed food, frequently bringing on peritonitis and appendicitis.

Starchy food is absolutely essential to the human body. Its best form is shown in the food 'Grape-Nuts,' where the starch is changed into a form of sugar during the process of its manufacture. In this way, the required food is presented to the system in a pre-digested form and is immediately made into blood and tissue, without taxing the digestive organs.

A remarkable result in nourishment is obtained; the person using Grape-Nuts gains quickly in physical and mental strength. Why in general? Because the food contains delicate particles of Phosphate of Potash obtained from the grains, and this unites with the albumen of all food and the combination is what nature uses to rebuild worn out cells in the brain. This is a scientific fact that can be easily proven by ten day's use of Grape-Nuts, "There's a Reason." Read, "The Road to Wellville," in physical.

The good rains of the past week have made the hearts of the farmers glad and has put life into all kinds of business. Wheat harvest is about finished and threshing is well under way. Hay harvest is in full swing and a better crop of hay has not been cut in Owen county in many a long year. Tobacco looks good and is coming along with leaps and bounds. Corn, which is small, is of good color and growing every day. Altogether it looks-like another bumper crop for "Sweet Owen."—Democrat.

The final act in the Hargis farce that has been on the boards in Kentucky for some time was pulled off at Sandy Hook, Elli-ott county, when Judge Moody ruled that the "trial should proceed, notwithstanding the fact that some of the Commonwealth's, most important witnesses were absent and to secure their attendance at the term of the court then in session was impossible. When the throat of the prosecution was thus cut the attorneys for the Commonwealth withdrew from the case and the court in structed the jury to find the defendant not guilty. This occurred Saturday, July 20th, A. D., 1907, at Sandy Hook, Elliott county, Kentucky.

To Owenton is now off of the map.
On July 15 the freight rate with the L. & N. Railroad was discontinued, and there is no longer any through freight line to Owenton. All freight for this point is way-billed to Sparta, and there all Owenton merchants and others must send for it, sending along their money with which to pay for it. It will cost from twenty to fifty cents a hundred to get freight from Sparta to Owenton, whereas it formely cost only thirty cents per hundred to get it from Louisville and Cincinnati to Owenton. The transfer business has been taxed out of existence, and the merchants and the public have been

"The people as usual will vote against the proposed amendment to the State Constitution. They look upon it as a corrupt, unpatriotic piece of uncalled for legislation and is an attempt to change our organic law so as to destroy the privilege of the poor to, vote. We stand upon the broad platform that no man should be prevented from voting because he is unable to pay a politax or any other tax. A poor man may cast a patriotic vote as well as any other class of individuals, and all such legislation is against the spirit of a great government like ours."

The Court of Appeals decided that the Odd-Fellows' Widows' and Orphans' Home in Lexington is purely an institution of public charity and therefore not subject to taxation. The State Auditor's Agent had sued for back taxes on a note for $4,000 owned by the home but the court says it is immune.

When Mr. Hager, the newly appointed Chief of Police in Louisville held the same position six years ago, he tailed to execute the laws against gambling. The same laws were on the statute books then as now, and the question is will he do any better. Mr. Hager has an ugly record as a political trickster.

The cause of local option continues to acquire territory in Kentucky, and it will not be many years until prohibition will prevail throughout the State. One amusing thing in regard to the matter is to see how fast the boozing politicians are climbing on the band wagon, hoping to retain their political influence, and some of them are succeeding fairly well.

Department Crop Report.

The Department of Agriculture at Washington has compiled re-ports from every part of the United States on the growing crops on July 1st, which is summarized as follows:

Patrick Finn, an old confederate soldier, died at the county infirmary last Friday at one o'clock, aged 75 years. He leaves a widow. He had been an inmate of the infirmary for seven years. Allphin & Chambers, of Walton, came down and took the remains to Verona for interment, that neighborhood being his old home.

In the matter of tons there will be no falling off in the crop of bay in this county. Many of the mead-ows that were considered worthless a few months ago have yielded a good crop of grass.

DAVID AND JOHNATHAN

STORY BY THE "HIGHWAY AND BYWAY" PREACHER

"The soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David."— Such friendship as is here exmplified can have but one explanation. It was heaven born.
The purity and the constancy of the Divine nature finds expression here. Here was the union of two-souls whose intense passion was the possession of goodness and the fulfillment of god's will in the world.

or circumstances can alter such a friendship as that. Let hard-ship or danger come, let privations or separations arise; let opposition or persecution assail, it is all the same, the ties of friendship endure, because founded upon the rock which cannot be shaken—Righteousness, and the eternal purposes of God! What stronger principles could be found to govern in the relationships of life? And what a different world it would be if such principles prevaited in the world. It would at once do away with all the strife and envy, the heartless competition, the estifish ambition which makes one eager to mount by the mis-

Israel would destroy the uncircumcised Philistine, seeing he had defied the armies of the living God.
Jonathan listened to the story with intense and growing to the presence of his rather, the king; of how he had laid aside at last the smor which had been provided for him with the simple remark that he had not proved them and had better trust to his shepherd's sling, which, sald he, "never has falled me yet."
"So it came to pass to-day, that when the giant came out as was his daily practice to hurl defiance at the army of israel, that this youth in his simple shepherd garb and with sling in hand went out to meet him."
"What!", exclaimed Jonathan, irredulously, "you do not mean to tel me that his only weapon was a sling? That he killed Gollath with a stone?"
"That was all the weapon which he me that his only weapon was a sing? That he killed Gollath with a stone?"

"That was all the weapon which he had," responded the armor hearer, evidently enjoying the astonishment of his leader. "Oh, but that was a wonderful sight—the lithe young fellow going fearlessly to meet the great giant. It seemed as though there could be but one outcome to the battle. But as the young man ran forward he picked a stone from his bag-and with marvelous swiftness and skill he sent it-erashing into the temple of Gollath, finding the only opening there was between the joints of the heavy iron heimet. With an aw-ful groan, sudible even at the point where I stood in the ranks of our army, the giant piched headlong and struck the ground with such force that the earth fairly trembled, while his armor under an awful din, and his aword and spear fell clattering from his now limp and powerless hands."

"But surely the stone did not kill him. He was only stunned by the hiow," ejaculated Jonathan.

"True, no doubt," responded the armor bearer, with the self-possessed reassurance of one who still has the best part of his story, to tell. "but our young champion was not slow to follow up his advantage. With the quick our property of the surprise of the property of the p

Jonathan was silent when the story was finished, and as he hastened forward his mind was busy with the details of the wonderful story and he formed the resolve that he would know the young man who had wrought such deliverance for Israel. All that day and night the pursuit of the Phillistines continued, and tired and footsore, but with elated spirits the soldiers of Israel returned the next day. Jonathan stopped only long enough to refresh himself with a bath and to remove his solled and torn garments hefore seeking the presence of his father, for he had made up his mind that he would ask of him the favor of the presence at court of the young hero who had killed the giant. He found un unusual commontion about the courtway of the palace and learned from one of the attendants that Abner, the captain of the palace and learned from one of the attendants that Abner, the captain of the palace and learned from one of the attendants that Abner, the captain of the palace and learned from one of the palace and learned from one

SENATOR IN ERROR

BEVERIDGE MIXED ON SUPREME

Possible to Tax Both Incomes a Inheritances—Democratic Party Would Lift the Burdens from the People.

Would Lift the Burdens from the People.

Senator Beveridge, while on ht ay to get married, called recently on President Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, and immediately afterward gave out a statement on the subject of taxation, in the course of which he made a misstatement, due probably to the excitement natural in a young lover on the eve of marriage. He said: "The Supreme court has declared the principle of an income tax unconstitutional."

The Indiana Adonis was evidently intending to say that in the case of Pollock vs. Farmers' Loan and Trust company the court had made such a declaration. But in that case, Chief Justice Fuller said that the power of the federal government to levy an income tax by apportionment is "plenary and absolute." (158 U. S. 601.)

The court simply held that taxes on real estate were indisputably direct taxes; and that taxes on incomes derived from land, "ro nersonal property or incomes derived from such property were also direct taxes. It declared that those sections of the Wison act laying an income tax were unconstitutional because the taxes they laid were not apportioned among the several states in proportion to their respective population, and were therefore in violation of the constitutional provisions which require, affirmatively, that "Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states which may be included within this union according to their respective numbers," and, negatively, that "Representatives and proportion to their case shall be laid unless in proportion to the census."

respective numbers," and, negatively, that, "no capitation or other direct tax shall be laid unless in proportion to the census."

After misstating the law on this point, Senator Beveridge says that the Supreme court has decided that an inheritance tax is—constitutional. So it has. In Scholey vs. Rew (23 Wallace, 331), it held that taxes on successions could not he distinguished, 76m income taxes, and upheld defeated and the succession tax law of June 30, 1864, on that ground. But in the more recent case of Knowlton vs. Moore, the court held that an inheritance tax was not a direct tax, like the income taxes on land and personal property, but an excise, or privilege tax, which need not be apportioned among the several states. (198 U. S., 83.) In other words, the court has held once, and only once, and then hy a divided court, that an inheritance tax is an indirect tax like the tariff taxes. We are willing to accept his view, since it abviates the difficulty, raised by the income tax decision, of reaching large states by the federal taxing power. Let us tax incomes under the apportionment clause, and inheritances. Let us tax incomes under the apportionment clause, and inheritances or either, it would be obliged, therefore, to reduce or abolish tariff duties. But every-body knows that the loud-taiking, rope-dancing, chain-rattling friends of the tariff-therd and tariff-det trusts, do not intend to sholish the thing they feed on. If they even want fair taxation, if they want taxation for revenue only, whether direct or indirect, so that prices will be lower and the cost of living less, they must rely upon the Democratic party.

States Rights and Home Rule.

There is a strong disposition among Democrats to make a square issue of the proposition of the president and Mr. Root to secure "constructions of the constitutions" increasing the power of the federal government at the expense of the rights of the states, or, in other words, to amend the constitution, not by the method prescribed in that instrument, but by judicial construction, thus transferring the sovereigning of the nation from the people to a body of nine judges chosen by the president for the purpose of obtaining an enlargement of his own powers by intrigue, involving usurpation. Notwithstanding Mr. Root's assertion that "the people will have" such changes through means that would amount to an abrogation of the fifth article and the tenth amendment of the constitution, Democrats are ready to test the question. The next ready to test the question. The next people will have become constitution, Democrats are ready to test the question. The next ready to test the question. The next ready to test the question.

WHAT IS A REPUBLICANT

Many Ideas Seem to Be Repel

Many ideas Seem to Se Represented in the G. O. P.

Some of our Republican contemporaries are trying to answer the queation: "What is a Republican" that they hardly seem to grasp the situation and we will do our best to lighten their darkness. Many modern Republican politicians are first of, all opportunists, ready to selse upon any issue that offers to catch the popular breeze. For instance, Senator Know declaraes for a strict construction of the constitution, while Mr. Roosevelt is for stretching the constitution to the breaking point. Both of these gentlemen are after votes and expect to combine their two schools of thought on election day. Republicans all believe in tariff protection for the tryats, but in some states where the stream of the constitution will be succeed and the stream of the protection from sentiment is raising hades, they propose revision and reciprodity, in other states they stand pain and fry fat out of the tryats, and on sleetion day both factions stand ready to vote together and spend the proceeds of the fat trying.

All Republicans are for the old flag. All Republicans are for the conomy in expenditude, they are for economy in expenditude to the solid supportant of the propie.

Republican of their camp followers can get a place at the wither a proposed measure is for the best interests of the people.

Republican congressmen were all triends of the railroad until the free passes were cut off., and they still hanker after the flesh pots of the constitution.

As the American merchant marine As the American merchant manue has been ruined by the Republican plan of tariff protection for the trusts the Republican-politicians, from Pres-ident Roosevelt to the negro spittoon the Republican-politicians, from President Rosevelt to the megro spittoon cleaner at the capitol, favor shipsubsidy. Most of them don't understand the real issue involved, but as the ship trust lobbylats showed a liberal disposition to assist in their enlightenment and were free spenders, the patriots who run the country found there must be something good in it. Their love for the old flag and an appropriation made them as easy prey for the subsidy lobbylsts, who were certain the stars and stripes would be seen or every sea if the bill passed. Hurrehl for Old Giory, was their cry.

But what is the good of enlarging upon the fads and foilles of the G. O. P. or telling of the prosperity of the trusts and the army of tramps that their policles have encouraged and protected? There are a few old fogy isk Republicans who believe what Lincoln taught, but they have no part or lot in the strenuousness of modern Republicanism.

lot in the strengousness of modern Republicanism.

A Plundering Program.
Senator Allison declares the tariff will have to be revised by its friends, if the people desire revision, thus keeping strictly within the declaration of the Republican party. He then says this revision, 'probably may take the form of a maximum and minimum system.' And then he declares that, 'minimum duty rrates should be a reasonable protective tariff, affording full protection to American workmen and American manufacturers without imposing any hardships on the consumer.'

How Senator Allison expects to arrange a tariff the minimum rates of which will afford "full protection to American manufacturers without imposing any hardships on the consumers" will be an interesting problem. The two interests—the trusts and the people—are divided by a great guit which the Allison plan cannot bridge. On the one side are the manufacturers who are mostly combined into trusts and are protected in charging unreasonable profits. On the other hand are the consumers who are feeling the burden of trust high prices, which with many, whose incomes have not advanced with the enormous increase in the cost of living, enforces plinching economy.

This practice of Senator Allison is a fair sample of the Republican plan of postponing the reform of the tariff so that the trusts may continue to flourish at the expense of the consumers and the Republican politicians continue to fry the fat out of them the used as campaign funds to keep themselves in power. A fine program, surely.

Revision, Not Destruction.

Tartif revision by a Republican congress does not mean tartif destruction.

It means the adjustment of tartifschedules to industrial conditions that exist now, but did not exist ton years ago when the present law was enacted.—N. Y. Mall.

"Our little girl, one year and a haif old, was taken with eczema or that was what the doctor called it. We took her to three doctors but by this time she was nothing but a yellow, greenish sore. One morning we discovered a little yellow pimple on one of her eyes. Doctor No. 3 said that we had better take her to some eye specialist, since it was an ulcer. So we went to Onewgon to doctor No. 4, and he said the cresight was gone. We were nearly discouraged, but I thought we would try the Cuttura Remandles, which cost me $1, and in three days our daughter, who had been sick about eight months, showed great improvement, and in one week all sorea had disappeared. Of course it could not restore the eyesight, but if we had used Cutteura in-time i am confident that it would have saved the eye, Mrs. Frank Abbott, R. F. D. No. 8, Fulton, Oswego Co., N. Courage.

Three tired oditzens—a lawyer, a doctor and a newspaper man—sat in a back room recently in the gray light of the early dawn. On the table were many empty bottles and a couple of packs of cards. As they sat in silence a rat scurricd across the hearth into the darkness beyond. The three men shifted their feet and looked at each other uneasily. After a long pause the lawyer spoke.

"I know what you fellows are thinking," he said, "you think I thought I saw a rat, but I didn't."

The corn fields, pastures, tobacco

The corn fields, pastures, tobacco patches and gardens that were swept by the hail are as bare as a public road.

Pastures that are usually getting bare at this season of the year are beautiful and thrifty, and indications are that they will continue good until late in the fall, when considerable grass will be left for winter grazing. After all the complaints that were heard in every direction only a few weeks since, the indications are that the farmers of Boone county, as a whole, will not be far behind other years in the matter of crops. Oats is the only crop that can be classed as a faiture. The acreage of tobacco is not up to the average, but is making a splendid growth which tids fair to compensate in pounds for the shortage in the acreage. Wheat will make about the usual yield, although there is a shortage in screage. The hay crop will not fall amuch, if any, short of an avesage, while livestock of every kind is in excellent condition. These are the prevailing conditions in this county, except in the Big Bone-Mudlick neighborhood, where all the craps were destroyed by hail.

THREE ARRESTED

Each of Whom was Pronounced Not the Man Who Did the Shooting.

Deputy Sheriff B. B. Hume put in several days last week in search of the lellow who killed Ed Long, colored, at Walton, a few weeks ago. He arrested three suspects and took them to Walton, each of whom was pronounced not the man by those who witnessed the shooting, Last Saturday afternoon he arrested—in Covington a young man named Melvin Lawrence, of Hardscrabble, Grant county, and brought him to Burlington, and lodged him in jail where he remained until late Sunday afternoon, when he was released. Lawrence was in company, at Ludlow, with the man who killed Long, and rode to Walton with him that afternoon, but claims to be unable to give the man's name or to tell where he lives. It seems that he can tell all about everything that occurred up to the time of the shooting and the name of the silling than the efficer was able to get him to disclose. When he left he jail he said to Mr. Hume, "any time you want me again in this matter call me by telephone and I will come at once," to which the doller replied, "what the d-lawring would I want with you? You say you don't know who did the shooting!" Lawrence is not a bad looking man, and said he had been at work for the Stewart Ironworks in Covington.

ON THE TRAIL OF THE AMERICAN MISSIONARY

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS

This Distinguished American Journalist is Traveling Around the World for the Purpose of investigating the American Foreign Missionary from a Purely Distinterested, Secular and Non-Seotarian Standpoint. Illustrated with Drawings and Irom (Photographs.

THE IDEAL MISSION FIELD IS IN NORTHERN KOREA.

Seoul, Korea.—To get close to the actual facts of missionary work in any country, as well as of the true political and social conditions, it is necessary to move out from the capital or port cities and to solourn for a lime in rural parts. So I have been put seeing the real Korea, tineriang kmong country villages where there are churches, and in the meantime seeing at first fand what is said to be the most picturesque people in the orient. The "how" of missionary work in this country may be set forth by a recital of this concrete experience.

Sometimes the missionary on tour protes have the most picturesque people in the orient. The "how" of missionary day were together I wondered how often he thinks of the contrast between Fifth Avenue congregations and then, mounting on top of it, rides. At other times he walks. Women missionaries often travel in chairs, borne by coolles. In the present instance we walked, and two coolles carried our packs containing, foiding cots, bedding, food and cooking utensile. It is impossible for most white persons to subsist in health upon the Korean diet of rice and pickled vegetables. As to the nather of sleeping—more of that fater.

Putting Converts Through the Mili.

After the service was over, the elders gathered around the missionary and profered formal request that he come as soon as possible and spend a few days in teaching them the Bibs.

Mr. Hail had to put them off with a vague promise, as his field is too large for him to do more, than look lover it. I was interested to note that, a while elsewhere missionaries have to adopt various devices to attract hean or sa, such as English classes, cooking classes, etc., in Korea the people seem to want simply the Bibs; and the missionaries are unable to meet the missionary in the proper to make the work of examining the 40 appli.

Gives Immense Water Pow The highest fall of water eve Gives Immense Water Power.

The highest fall of water ever used for power seems to be that of Lake Bruslo, in Switzerland, where is located the most powerful electricity generating station in Europe. The water of the Poshiavono, in the Poschiavo valley, la ied through a great conduit three miles long to the reservoir, from which five acts of enormous pipea conduct it to the power station at a level of 1,280 feet lower. Electric energy of 36,000 horsepower is distributed from the generators to points along the shores of Lake Como and Maggiore, and as far as the great plain of Milan.

Recorder's Popularity Contest!

The Recorder will send two ladies, married or single, to the Jamestown Exposition.

They are to be selected by the readers of the Recorder in a Popularity Voting Contest. The two receiving the highest number of votes cast will be taken from Burlington to Jamestown and their transportation, hotel bill and admission to the Exposition paid by the Recorder. The trip will consume at least ten days. The editor and his wife will be the chaperones. The date for the trip will be announced later.

Each dollar paid on subscription, either as a renewal, back subscription or new subscribtion, will entitle the party paying the same to 1,000 votes, and for fractions of a dollar will entitle to votes in the same proportion. The result will be published from week to the same proportion. The week during the contest.

Each ballot cut from the Recorder will be good for 10 votes, provided it is signed by the party voting and received at this office not later than 10 days after its date.

not later than 10 days after its date.

Each dollar paid on job work will be entitled to 500 votes.

A ballot box has been secured and locked, and the keys will remain in the possession of County Clerk B. W. Adams, Atorney Sidney Gaines and Dudley Rouse, who will count and certify the result of each week's ballot, between the hours of 1 and 3 p. m., on Tuesday of each week. Ballots received after 1 p. m. on Tuesday will not enter into the count until the next week. The contest will be conducted in a manner perfectly fair to all parties concerned.

All money paid on subscription sizes and including April.

All money paid on subscription since and including April 1, , will be permitted to participate in the contest. 1907.

No commission will be allowed to agents on any money for subscriptions or job work, that participates in the contest.

SERMONETTE.

"And Saul was afraid of David because the Lord was with him and was departed from Saul." What a commentary this is on the spiritual condition of Sauli Afraid of David that mobile-hard of David that mobile-hard of David that open, frank, unassuming young man who sought not his own good but that of the king. Afraid of David that open, frank, unassuming young man who sought not his own good but that of the king. Afraid of David that open, frank, unassuming young man he king's palace and had ministered to the ill-hardred king by his sweet music. Think of it! Afraid of David, because filled with devotion to God and love to mankind, he ought by every act of his to perform some kindly service for others. No, not afraid of David because the later was plotting against him; because he was styring to work his hurt; because he was secretly his enemy and was proving transcherous to trust placed in his charge. No, but afraid of David, because the Lord was with him. Think of it! Gaul knew that he had been rejected-of-God, or rather that through his willful disobedience had pelected God, and then in hardness of, heart that knew no repentance he had persisted in his course. Saul also knew that he had been had rejected God, and then in his ocurse. Saul also knew that his young man had, been set ano doubt but that at last the halm of him and that the thought that this young man had, been set apart as the coming hing of larsel filled his heart with hatred and fear. He knew all this and was foolish enough to think that the could thwart God's unipned, Scripture say "the heather rage and the people imagine a valing hing. The less of the earth set themselves and take course that the median hing. The rulers of the earth set themselves and take course that the there was shall laugh: the Lord shall have them in derision." Oh, what folly to fight against God.

In derision." Oh, what folly to fight against God.

We can in some measure understand how the heather can fight against God, but how one of Saul's training, and opportunities and the light which hadome to him could so do, is quite beyond our comprehension. But does Saul stand alone in this condition? Is there any danger that othere who have walked close to God as he did may yet fail to the depths to which hereil? After all, how was such condition possible? It was taked to the work of the depths to which here in danger to every soul which induliges in aim and persists therein that at last God's spirit will depart and leave that soul forever. Let us not commit the unpardonable sin of blasphemy against the Holy Ghost.

THE STORY.

Let the court of King Saul. Not only had the young warror's victory over the Philistine giant brought him to the favorable notice of the king, but the sweet music of his harp accompanied by his strong, fresh young voice had won a powerful induence over him, so that it had come to pass that during the seasons of deep dejection into which Saul fell at 'times there seemed nothing which could dispet the strange moods and restore his spirits as the music of the shepherd lad.

new victories for israel, so that on the return of the victorious army the people cause out to meet them with shouts of praise, and what was the chagria and diagnat of King Saul to hear the women singing a war couplet which had been composed for the cocasion, the theme of which was that Saul had slain his thousands but David his tens of thousands but David his tens of thousands. The enemies of David were not long in discovering the mood of the king and by sig nuendos evred to inflame his mind yet more, so that the impression grew up in Saul's mind that David was plotting against him. But the climax came a few days later when one of the king's, attendants returned from a fourney which had taken him through Bethiehem, and brought to Saul's ears for the first time the story of David's anointing by Samuel, the prophet. Like an angry flood there swept over Saul the memory of his last interview with the prophet and of how the latter had declared that God had rejected him from being king over Israel. He saw it all now. David was surely after the kingdom. Had he not thrown around his son and heir, Jonathan, an infuence which he had noted of late seemed to-hold him. Deom-plete control. And had he not heard just the other day how David had won from him a plege of support. All the rage and violence of Saul's strong nature surged within his soul, so that he could scarce contain himself. But with cuming forethought he planned that when next David appeared before him he would slay him.

That night he made request that David, so that the latter avoided being planed to the wall only by the quickest of moves.

When the king saw that he had not killed David, he sought to laugh the matter off as å foke, declaring that he only wanted to give David a good scare, and asking him to continue his playing. This he did but with watchiller, and he was thus able again to avoid the favelin which Saul threw at him. Then it was that David knew that Saul desired his life.

And, when Saul found that he had failed he thought to bring the young man. Into. disfavor by removing him from his place at court. This he did but David behaved himself wisely and Saul grew to be even more afraid of the young man.

It was not long after this that King Saul cailed all his servants before him together with his son, Jonathan, and toid them that they should kill David, promising special favors to the one who should succeed. But Jonathan warned David of the charge his father had given to his servants and. David was able to escape the traps which were set for him. Thus matters stood until Jonathan was able by dint of much effort to wring from his father a promise that he would not kill David, but would restore him to his old place of favor.

One night when David was playing on his harp before the king, as on former occasions, one of the violent tempers which were growing upon the king seized him, and like a mad man he spraag toward David and drove his javelin into the wall at the point where a second before David had been sitting. And now all the ploud-thristy harted against David and drove his marted against David and from the sent messengers not "mylid". Chinese Jews.

American interest in China since the Boxer rebellion has extended to the Chinese Jews, who settled at Kaifungfu during the Ham dynasty, that ruled China from 200 B. C. to 200 A. D. The Kaifungfu colony is mentioned occasionally by European travelers, among them Marco Polo in the fourteenth century, while in 1500 and 1704 they were visited by Jesuit miles slonaries. To-day, according to Alfred K. Glover, writing in the Overland Monthly for May, the Chinese Jews are almost extinct, but their records and historical tablets are carefully preserved.

Grape-Nuts

Perfectly Cooked, Ready to Serve.

"The ordinary breakfast cereal cooked a few minutes in a haif-hearted way will in time weaken the stomach of anything short of an ox. "Any preparation of wheat or oats put into water that is below the boiling-point and cooked as mush is nau-ally served, remains a pasty, indigestible mass. The cells are tough and unopened. In addition, the stomach of a person sensitively constituted refuses to do anything with the pasty mass. It is sent into the second stomach, the Duodenum, where in consequence of the long time of the first process of digestion, is fermented and soured. As an eminent medical man pertinently states, the stomachs of half the people going about the streets are about in the condition of an old vinegar barrel. "Intestinal dyspepsia is the direct consequence of such feeding." FIVE FALL INTO GRAVE.

Solementy of Fourest.

Instead of the accustomed quiet which prevails at the hurial of the dead, great excitement and fear attended the burial the other day of Michael Sereno, a prominent merchant of Westport, when by the collapsing of a grave the coffin and several persons attending the services were huried into a small pit.

The final prayer had been said by the prescher, and the assistant to the undertaker stepped to the foot of the coffin to arrange the rope for letting the coffin to arrange the rope for letting the coffin into the grave. At that moment one of the publishearers accidentally kicked out the crosspice that supported the coffin. The coffin quickly descended into the grave, the body going feet first. The assistant hastened its descent by tumbling on it. Several persons rushed to the edge of the grave, causing the soil to yield, and in a few seconds five persons were lying in the pit half covered with dirt.

They were pulled out, the coffin was dug out and laid flat, and after the grave had been redug the burial was completed.—N. Y. Press.

The person who breaks into print before breakfast tomorrow to defend some act of his today, is the fellow whose conscious is lashing him.

Mayor Bingham's attention ought to be called to the fact that Gov. Beckham appointed and commissioned him Mayor of Louisville and not boss of the Democratic party in that city and Jefferson county.

The Acting Governor of Arkausas has notified all pistol carriers within his jurisdiction that they need not expect any mercy at his hands should their cases be brought before him. A strict enforcement of such law in every State would do much to do away with the senseless and dangerous habit.

with the senseless and dangerous habit.

Arrangements have been made by which the Cincinnati Tobacco Warehouse Co., will finance the pooled tobacco crop of 1906 for Clark county. This crop of about two and half million pounds is in the hands of the Burley Tobacco Society. The Ohio Company will advance fifty per cent of its value up to one hundred thousand dollars. The tobacco is to be shipped to Cincinnati; the company will get six per cent on the money advanced, 25 cents per month per hogshead for storage and three dollars on each hogshead when sold. The company agrees to hold the tobacco until the local company sells it. That portion of the Montgomery county crop which passes under the Clark county Board of Control will be handled under the same terms.—Ex.

which passes under the Clark county Bodrd of Control will be handled under the same terms.

The labor-problem is becoming acute in this county, and it will so continue as long as present conditions prevail, and year by year the number of vacant fenant houses will increase. It is not merely the matter of wages that is causing the exodus of laboring men from the country to, the city. The educational question is the important factor—a strong inducement for the man who has spent the best years of his life on the farm, toling early and late to maintain an increasing family, to move to a city and seek a new vocation that his children may have the advantages of good schools, advantages that they cannot enjoy in the country. The man in humble circumstances entertains as deep affections for his offspring as does his more fortunate landlord. He wants to see them prepared to cope with the problems of life as they present themselves; in other words fitted for the vary school. They argue that if its necessary for the landlord's som and daughters to be educated that they may make a success of life, conditions make it more imperative that their children, and have discovered that they may make a success of life, conditions make it more imperative that their children, and have discovered that they may make a success of life, conditions make it more imperative that their children, and have discovered that the education of their children, and have discovered that the crities provide good schools for their class, while they can secure work at living wages; hence they are moving to the cities while country schools are retrograding and farm help is decreasing at a rapid rate. The remedy for the labor trouble that is now with the farmers is in the hands of the property owners in the agricultural districts, but nothing car be provide good schools for their class, while they can secure work at living wages; hence they are moving to the cities while country schools are retrograding and farm help is decreasing at a rapid rate. Bryan Next Year.

John D. Wakefield, formerly a member of the St. Louis Board of Safety, who now represents Kentucky on the staff of the Cincinnati Enquirer, has this to say in one of his political dispatches:

"If Governor Beckham continues to be the dominant spirit in the Democratic party in the State, even after he leaves the Governor's office, he will control the next Democratic State Convention. Beckham has been a staunch supporter of the Nebraskan, and it is said to favor his renomination for President in 1908. Therefore it is practically certain that Kentucky's vote will be pledged to Bryan. The chances also favor the re-election of Mr. Urcy Woodson, as Democratic National Committeeman from Kentucky. The Governor and Woodson have never been friendly, but after the Beckham-McCreary primary, Woodson gave up the fight and since that time has shown no hostility to the Executive. Woodson is now Secretary of the National Committeeman, and Democrats throughout the State are strongly in favor of his re-election.

Resolutions of Sympathy.

Resolutions adopted by the Aid Society of Walton M. E. C. S.

Whereas, Our Father in heaven has seen proper to call to himself one of our members and friend, Mrs. Eva Stansifer Kennedy; and, whereas, we realize that not only our society and church has lost a faithful member, but each a personal friend, therefore be it.

Resolved, First, that in losing Miss Eva, as she was so familiarly called, we lose one of our true members.

Second, That her life and last illness has, been an example of God's tender love and mercy to all who love and serve Him.

Third, That while we miss her on all occasions, we do not mourn sathose without comfort, for we know our loss is her gain, and she is now free from all pain and sorrow, enjoying the mansion prepared for her by hers and our loving Savior.

Fourth, That we tender our heartfelt sympathies to the bereaved husband and other loved ones, and in our love for her grieve not for but with them.

Fitth, That we sech resolve to live a more consecrated life and when the summons comest to go up higher, be ready to say as dear Eva did, "I'm ready, dear Lord and Master."

The Mikado as a Poet.

The Mikado as a Poet.

Great as is the position won for himself by Mutsu Hilto in the literature of his country, it must he arowed that his poetry, from the point of view of the west, is second rate, says Current Literature. In the original it is comparable only, affirm native critics, with perfume from the trees. A striking feature of what Dr. James A. B. Scherer—high authority on the subject—terms these Lilliputian dees is, he thinks, their "elliptical terseness of style." Hence, Mutsu Hilto's poetry lacks quantity, accent, tical terseness of style." Hence, Mutau Hilo's poetry lacks quantity, accent, tone, rhyme, and all the incidents to prosody. His majesty's stanzas are made up of five and seven syllable lines alternating, unless some patriotic frensy agitates his muse. His senius is grave in the ode, gay in the stanza, enabling him to perform without adventitious aid all the functions of the court peet. Thus, when a lady in the diplomatic circle was returning to her natire land, and recyived in changed the senior of a visit from the empress, a royal stanza embellished the parting. "The gray goose," ran the verse, "is flying westward." The departing lady's white hair was symbolized by that bird to which Japaness artists are so partial, the goose itself being emblematic in the native poetical mind of femiaine loveliness in its most ravishing aspects. The Japanese prettiness of the thing is quite sacrificed in our rugged phraseology. Mutau Hito's poetical fame is, therefore, strietly national. Hito's poetry lacks quantity, accent, one, rhyme, and all the incidents to Coeducation.

Coeducation.

All institutions which have been established by the state for higher education should provide for the education should provide for the education of both men and wome, and it is a decided gain to have this work done by one institution rather than by two—and there is no serious objection to ithe education of men and women in the same institution that has been established for both, says Cyrus Northrup, president of the University of Minnesota, in Coiller's. The boys and girls grow up together in the same family; they go together to the same graded school; they go together to the same high school; they go together to the same high school; they go together to the same ligh school they go together to the same light school they go together to the same light school iffe, and the school life, never lose the trankness and freedom of the home life and the school life, never lose the refimement edom of the home life and the school life, never lose the refinement which belongs to them as women. I have no sympathy whatever with the —what shall I call it?—sentimentality which seeks to segregate the women and sbut them in by themselves in the work of education.

Earthquake shocks were felt in four continents in the six days between April 14 and 19. They began with destructive whocks in Mexico by which three towns were rulined. Then Spain, Russian Transcaucasia and Constantimople felt the tremors, and there were shocks at Manila and Charleston, and volcanic eruptions accompanied by earthquakes manifested themselves in Chile. It is interesting to note save volcanic eruptions accompanied by earthquakes manifested themselves in Chile. It is interesting to note, says Youth's Companion, that these sbocks, with the exception of the one at Charleston, occurred in the recognized earthquake belts, one of which engireless the Pacific occan, and where goes about the earth by way of Mexico, the West Indies, Spain, Italy, the Csycasus, northern India, the Philippines and the Pacific islands.

Some Causes for Complaint Which Can Be Obliterated by the United Efforts of the People.

How often do we hear it said that the young man has not the opportunity that the young man of a score of years ago had. How great is the complaint of trusts and combinations which control industries to the detriment of the smaller ones in business, and how often is reference made to business concentration in the large cities at the cost of the smaller lowns.

Innovations in business methods have been many, it may be said that this is an era of economical methods; that evolution is going on continually broadening the field for individual affort and making possible the operation of mammoth enterprises. There can be no doubt as to the detrimental effects upon small towns of this business concentration in the larger cities. Pessamists depiore the lack of opportunity for the young men of to-day. At the same time the large corporations put forth the cry that there is a scarcity of the right kind of material for important places of trust. However this may be, there is one thing evident, and that is, small towns being kept from advancing narrows the field for the young men who would otherwise enjoy an opportunity to employment, the youth, perhaps, seeks a clerkablp at moderate wages. Theretake pleasands of others that he must-clipped the said of the security of the services. Theretake the contractions in his way. One of the cures for this condition is to devise means of enlarging the scope and importance of the seculed country towns.

for this condition is to devise means of enlarging the scope and importance of the so-called country towns. There is no economical reason why the large city should have the business that rightfully belongs to the small town. There is no saving in buying goods at a distant point even though a small percentage may be saved directly. Whenever a resident of a community sends bis money to some other community for the necessities that he requires, he fobs his own home town of a certain amount of business. Employment is given to the people of the large city instead of the people of the large city instead of the people of the local community. It has been estimated that more than 50 per cent. of the trade goes frem some communities to larger cities. If this trade were given to the home town, it would immediately double its business importance and give a corresponding increase in employment for the people. This means that the population of the town would be increased and the opportunity for engaging in business would be greater. Not only this, but it is an established principle that values of farm lands to a great extent are dependent upon the activity of the town near which the farms may be located. Thus it is plain that if the sons of farmers would have greater opportunities open to them for engaging in business, it can be increased by closely adhering to the home trade and home protection principle, which widens the local field for individual effort in a business way.

HELPS FOR TOWN BUILDERS.

HELPS FOR TOWN BUILDERS.

Strangers to a town form their opinions as to its people by the appearance of the husiness places and the residences. In a town where the buildings are dingy and dirty, and the show windows of the stores are carelessly arranged, it is evidence that there is a lack of enterprise. It pays the business men of a town to be careful as to the exterior appearances of their places of business.

Small forms number contells but form.

Small towns usually contain but few expensive residences. It matters little how hexpensive residences, it matters little how hexpensively built residence are if the buildings are kept well painted and the yards neat and clean. This is evidence of the good taste of the people.

In many towns in country districts there are hitching posts placed here and there before the stores. It is generally the case that where the hitching post is found, unless the street is well paved, there is a mud hole. Every town that is incorporated should have regulations as to the placing of hitching posts indiscriminately in the streets. There should be set aside some side street that is convenient to the business portion of the town, where the farmers and others can hitch their teams instead of in front of the stores.

Good sidewalks give the strangers

Good sidewalks give the strangers to a town a favorable impression of the place, and also they are an advantage in many ways and may prove a matter of economy through the prevention of accidents that might give cause for damage against the town corporation.

Nearly every small town has its public park. It is often noticed that these parks are little cared for. They are public pastures and serve no good purpose as places where the people of the town can meet evenlings for Scial intercourse. People of towns should take pride in keeping the public parks in good condition. They can be made beauty spots with but little for the dead of the property of the

A good bank is a valuable asset for the small fown. During these days of prosperity people of almost every community bare a surplus amount of money to deposit in the bank, or to invest in a way that will bring a fair margin of interest. Lately a system has grown up of doing a banking business by mall. Alleged savings banks and investment companies in large cities advertise widely offering business by mall. Alleged savings banks and investment companies in large cities advertise widely offering business by mall. Alleged savings banks and investment interest on deposits. Many who have little knowledge of financial affairs make deposits in these banks. The Lincoln bank and Oak Park, Ill., was one of these in satitutions that made great offers to the people of agricultural districts in order to secure deposits. More than $1,000,000 were deposited by farmers and others in this concern. Within a year it was declared unsound by the United States authorities, the promoter of it placed under arrest and charged with fraud. The poor deluded depositors are not likely to receive five per cent. of their deposits. Remember that when you send your money from your local community it cases to be any factor in developing home resources or in adding to the wealth of the place. It is botter, always to patronize home banks that basks far always to patronize home banks that

KNOX ON ROOSEVELT.

In his speech at Tale law school on June 24, Senator Knox (ell into line with the Democrate on the question of state rights. Several of his propositions are worth reproducing as teading to show the drift of public sentiment away from the Roosevelt policies back to the constitution and to the time-thonored principle of strict construction on which the Democratic party was founded by Jefferson and Madison. For instance, he said the claim: "That the congress of the United States has no general legislative powers, but only such specific powers as are granted to it by the constitution is not an old-tashioned and exploded notion;" and added: "The preservation of the constitution is not committed to the federal judiciary alone. It is the eath-bound obligation of every legislative, yudicial and executive officer of the states and nation; and it is the highest duty of private citisenship."

The whole speech is a verical atack upon Roosever and his so-called "policies." It breathes, throughout, a lack of confidence in the present administration. The motive behind it may, however, be suspected of being insincere and selfish, since Knox is a candidate for the presidency himself; and, on general principles, we are forced to doubt the good fatth of a statesman who, while unholding in bis practice the odious, audacious, and unconstitutional legislation of the Republican party relating to the tariff, colonialism and monopolies, yet professes such doctrines as those enunciated in his speech. We should withhold our confidence from any such man, as well as from the more spectacular and dashing samester against whom he is playing. For, as Jefferson asset:

"It would be a dangerous delusion, were a confidence in the men of our choice to allence our fears for the safety of our rights. Confidence, which prescribes limited constitutions to bind down those whom we are obliged to trust with power. Our constitution of the constitution."

This Jefferson and doctrine respecting over-confidence in men applies no the constitution."

This Jef

A Faise Conclusion.

Speaking of the new Roosevelt-Parar bereay regarding the annihilation of state rights and home rule by a resort to the post roads clause of the constitution, and the Root-Roosevelt heresy of changing the constitution by means of judicial interpretation instead of by amendment in the way prescribed in the constitution the theorem of the great parties is in conditional form of the great parties in condition to combat anti-state rights propositions in the campaign of 1908."

The reason givon for this conclusion is that "Judge Farrar's interpretation of the post-roads clause of the constitution and its indoverself of the constitution and the premise. For its certainly not true, that because some men—not all men—of both political parties advocate unconstitutional theories, those parties indoves these theories so far that the majority in either party should be unable to combat them. Despite Mr. Bryan's views regarding federal "Ifcenses for interstate corporations and the government ownership of railroads, and despite Mr. Roosevelt's views concerning constitutional amendment by means of a masked hattery of constructive powers, hidden behind a court appointed by the executive, we wenture to say that a vast majority of the voters of this country still cling to the principles of brieferson, Monroe and Jackson. There is a vital distinction between some men and all men. The Democratic party is today, as it ever has been, in position to combat antiate rights propositions, whether emanting from Roosevelt Bryan, or anyumber of men of Asheville, N. C., July 25.—The state of North Carolina is now in a practical position of flat defiance of federal authority.

Gov. Glenn refused to consider a peace pian submitted by Assistant At torney General Sandrod, who came hers direct from President Roosevelt. At the same time, Judge Lyon, preside ing in Marion, in a term of the superior court, instructed the grand jury to refurn indictments immediately against the Southern railway for violation of the rate law.

As the law has been declared unconstitutional by United States Circuit Judge Princhard, the action of Judge Lyon completely ignores the federal court, and opens the way for foad verriding of federal authority which will precipitate the long expected criss. It is conservative to say that the dry's developments in the railroad complete than stay than stay to have a controversy bear a more serious aspect than at any time since the agitation be gan.

The 'state advocates asserted that the federal court can not secape a violation of the federal statute. Gov. Glenn fanned the fiames by seserting in a public statement that to have accepted the Sandrod peace plan would have constituted a humiliants surronder to the federal statute. Gov. Glenn fanned the fiames by seserting in a public statement that to have accepted the Sandrod peace plan would have constituted any offer from the other side," he said, "until the railroad complex with the law."

In other words, the governor declared that the terms laid down by Mr. Sandrod monutet to nothing, the governor declared that the terms laid down by Mr. Sandrod monutet to nothing, the governor declared that the terms laid down by Mr. Sandrod monutet to nothing, the governor declared that the terms laid down by Mr. Sandrod monutet to nothing, the governor declared that the terms laid down by Mr. Sandrod monutet to nothing, the governor declared that the terms laid down by Mr. Sandrod monutet to nothing, the governor declared that the terms laid down by Mr. Sandrod monutet to nothing, the governor declared that the have been entirely audisfied to allow prosecutions to be suspended until the supreme court of the United States could decide.

"I feel, in the present circumstances, that I can not for one moment permit this law of the state, say more than any other law, to be ignored and trampled under foot by the railway company or any one else."

In this frame of mind, anticipating the conflict which is coming between the state and the United States circuit court, the state officials have now prepared a plan of procedure which is designed to overcome any order hythe United States out forbidding the enforcement of the railroad rate law, whose pennity section Judge Pritchard says is unconstitutional.

This plan simply looks to forcing the Southern railway into bankruptsy in the event of the supreme court of the United States ultimately deciaring that the law is constitutional.

I will be recalled that the Southern secured the decision in the cases of Wood and Wilson, who were convicted in the Asheville, police court on a charge of obarsing more than 214 cents. a mile and sentenced to miprisoment under the penalty clause offile law.

LURES CHILDREN FROM HOME

1 Stabs Them With a Sharp trument—One of the Three Tots Assaulted is Dead.

July 27.-A series

Berlin, July 27.—A series of cold-blooded crimes, singularly resembling the "Jack the Ripper" murders, but, for the fact that instead of women the victims were little girls; followed one another with remarkable celerity atmost in the center of the city, and aroused indignation and exottement. Within a short space of time the assessin successively entired three girl bables, the oldest 5 years of age, into doorways of houses and stabbed them several times in the abdomen with a sharp instrument. As a result one of the children is dead, another dying and the third is dangerously wounded. The first knowledge that the crimes had been committed came when an occupant of the house at the corner of. Ryks, and Belford streets found the body of Margaritha Prawitz, aged 4, lying in the doorway, bathed in blood, the bowls profurating and the lower part of the body horribly gashed. This was immediately reported to the police, who were about to investigate the case, when reports came that Hartha Lencaes, aged 3, and Elly Knispel, 5 years

This is the development of the bowle protection of the body horribly gashed. This was immediately reported to the police, who were about to investigate the case, when reports came that Hartha Lercase, aged 3, and Elly Knispel, 5 years old, have been found similarly outraged, but still alive, in Prenslater allee and Honserdorfer servet, respectively.

Rumors soon spread throughout the vicinity which megalifed the number of victims and the inhabitants of the nightborhood became intensely excled. Mothers sought their children in the streets and made them return indoors in fear that they might meet a similar fate. Crawing gathered about the police station shouting vengence agginst the murderer.

In the meantime the two victims who still lived were transported to a hospital. Their condition is extremely precarious. They are not expected to survive the night.

The officials accided quickly in an endeavor to locate the murderer and published an ofter of a reward of $1,000 for his capture.

Shortly after the crimes were committed a silp of paper with a death head sketched on it was found on a public seat in the square near the scene. On it was inscribed in a ramboling hand: "Away, in five minutes there will be another coppe. There is a child murderer in the neighborhood. Deliver this note to the police. I have killed children in Belforter, Preinslauer and Honserdorfer strests."

The note was attached to the seat by means of a sharp single classors biade and it is assumed that the crimes were committed with the other half of the instrument.

Experts who have examined the note found on the seat have come to the conclusion that it was written by a madman.

Montgomery, Ala., July 27.-In resence of a large crowd Colvin C

Montgomery, Ala, July 27.—In the presence of a large crowd Colvin Coleman, a negro, while on the scaffold to pay the penalty for the murder of J. A. Finley, a white man, accused W. R., Flsher, a saloonkeeper, of having committed the crime.

"W. R. Fisher and a negro named Billie killed Mr. Fishely" declared Coleman, Just before the black cap was placed over his head, "and I helped to splace his body in a carriage. Some day you will find out the truth and will then know I am not guilty."

Fisher was looking at Coleman at the time, but did not create a seene.
"I am able to prove an alkli," declared Mr. Fisher, "and I did so when the officers investigated the case at the time of the murder. There is not a man who is not convinced of my lanocence."

walls 14 people went down to death while swice as many were probably fatally injured. The horror was a repetition of the periodical blaze that sweeps through the densely populated foreign section of order and is simest-invariably at tended with paine and death. The wrecked building was at 222 Christic above the grocery store basement. An explosion, asl yet unaccorused for, tore out the front of the building, and the fire that followed caught the 20 families, numbering stout 100 persons, white most of them were askep. Not until the asken have cooled will it be possible to recover the bones of the dead.

Of the injured many jumped from the windows, others were caught by failing timbers, many hait suffocated by smoke were dragged from the hall ways, while others received their wounds during the panie and mad fight among each other for an exist.

The tenement was occupied chiefly by Italians. A passerby was attracted to the explosion, which apparently occurred on the basement floor. As he turned toward the building the whole front, with its filmsey fire escapes, fell into the street and from the sagging floors a score of baif awake people dropped into the street. Many of these were badly hurt, but they proved to be the more fortunate of the tenants for in another instant the huilding was wrapped in finames and the cries of persons burning to death rent the air. In the wild panic that followed many received mortal injuries. Several who sought escape by a rear stairway were driven hack by oboking smoke. Some of these made shist way through the fire to other exits, but more fell overcome in the hallways, to be dragged out insensible by the police and firemen.

Of the dead and dying a large part are women and children.

Lexington, Ky—County Judge S. S.
Taulbee, of Jackson, while here, said that Attorney B. R. Jouett, of Winchestor, who has been associated with Attorney A. Floyd Byrd in the prosecution of Judge James Hargis, told him that the dismissed of Judge Hargis at Sandy Hook would be tested in the court of speaks. An exception to the ruling of Judge W. B. Moody was taken, as Jouett is of the opinion that the case should have been suspended instead of being dismissed. Jouett, Judge Tauthee says, has found two supreme court decisions that support his contention. He added, however, that "it was no use to try the Hargises snywhere as long as Gov. Beckham appointed the judgee."

e Williamstown Courier, of

The Williamstown Courier, of last week, rays:

"After one of the most remarkable and determined struggles ever put forth by the triends of law and order in any community the people of Williamstown and vicinity have, through the extraordinary efforts of the Law and Order Legue, we askingland complete viciny.

phe of Williamsun and vertical properties of the Law and Order League, won a signal and complete victory over the "Blind Tigers" that had wrought such havoe in the community for months, ave, years, and today the beast is dead and the town is free from the ilegalized sale for four or five years, since the town and county were both carried for local option.

"It has been understood for ten days or two weeks that James A. O'Hara & Co., against whom so many charges had been obtained by the League, were anxious to adjust matters, settle all scores and make peace by abandoning at once and forever the "Blind Tiger" business, and hereafter lend their assistance to the League in their confessedly proper and praiseworthy work.

"The matter came before the League in an informal way at next to the last meeting, and again last Monday night in a more tangible and authoritative manner. There was a division of sentiment in the League, many of the oldest, most faithful and active of the members opposing the consideration of any proposition of compromise or adjustment on any other basis than to fight to the finish. A majority of those present, however favored the milder and more conservative. poposing the consideration of any proposition of compromise or adjustment on any other basis than to fight to the finish. A majority of those present, however favored the milder and more conservative course and were willing to give the boys a chance at least to be heard on their proposition of settlement, and voted to authorize the Exceptive Committee to confer with them and act, if a satisfactory basis could be found. Accordingly, the Executive Committee and the O'Hara boys have been conferring, and with the happy result announced in the headlines above. The "Tiger" is dead, the strife and turmoi, the damage and danger are over so far as this establishment is concerned, and the O'Hara boys have settled in court all charges spainst them, except those by indictment in the circuit court, and these they will have to take care of when called on there.

"We understand that it has alleged on the court of the court cases only, which will certain by have a sultary and determent influence on all persons wo may in the future consider for a moment, the feasibility of starting one. Morgan's Men.

On Tuesday and Wednesday August 13-14, a reunion of "Morgan's Men" will begin at Parks Hill camp ground. The annual reunion of Morgan's men is one of the most notable reunions of Confederates held in America. It is a reunion of fighting men—of real, sure-enough soldiers. There is no display of gold lace, no besting of drums, no brass bands, no prancing steeds, no sponsors nor Sons of Confederates; there are no balls for those who never heard the whistle of a minnie ball or the roar of cannon or saw the sabre flash, nor do those who during the war lagged in the rear ride in front of those who in battle led the charge. It is a gathering of heroic but modest men who during the four years of war fought valiantly and during the forty years of peace have struggled earnestly for the right as they have seen it. Every man entitled to go to this reunion, and able to go, must welcome the opportunity to meet there those with whom he fought shoulder to shoulder during the time when "Morgan's Men" were the terror of the Federals and Confederates.

Performing a Useful Mission.
The Scolety for Psychical Research has lately exposed certain pseudo-spiritualistic manifestations at Windsor, Nova Scotia. The whole town had been stirred by the singular behavior of material things. Boxes and barrels were moved, chairs were rocked, and smaller ohjects fiew through the air with extraordinary force. Upon hearing of this, Prof. Hyslop dispatched his assistant, Mr. Carrington, to the scene, to investigate the report. The latter, who is something of a wizard himself, proved, as Prof. Hyslop says, "that all the alleged phenomena at Windsor which excited public notice were frauds pure and simple." Great pains had been taken by those who were frauda pure and skmple." Great pains had been taken by those who perpetrated the tricks to escape detection. A mysterious hogshead, which was said to roll about the streets on its own motion and give forth oracular utterances, was found to have been propelled by two young Nova Scotians, while the voice was that of a boy who was concealed within. Strings had been attached to chairs, and secret openings made in walls and doors. A grocer was found to have heen a ringleader in producing the phenomena, having thrown apples, broken eggs and moved packing cases. It is a good thing to have deceptions of this kind discovered, declares the New York Post. Among other things, it helps to give Prof. Hyslop's society a standing in the community and another reason for existence. en taken by those who Grumblers.

Grumblers who have fallen into the habit of complaining about their real or imaginary troubles are unisances to those who associate with them. The husiness man who is ever grumbling and growling about things makes a blue atmosphere about him. There is so good in grumbling. Grambling is an evidence that you are looking at the world through blue glasses; that you haven't the proper estimate of other people. Grumbling is an advertisement, to the world that you are not a success, says New York Weekly, Grumbling won't help things a bit. Miners Prepare For Outbreak, 'Tis Sale —Gave Governor 24 Hours in Which "To Grant the Men Justice."

Duluth, Minn, Aug. 2—One working day has passed since operations on the range, following the actitement of the ore dock strike, were begun by the United States steel corporation and the independent mines, and no serious disorder has been reported. The industrial sky over the range is not cloudiesa, however, for the willier demeanor of the followers of the Western Federation of Miners indicates an attitude of desperation which was somewhat intensified by a vitrolie and dress delivered by Petriella, the strike leader, in which he said was one what intensified by a vitrolie was of guns to maintain what he said was their right to sell their labor where they could to the best advantage. In this address Petriella, gas—the governor 24 hours in which "to grant the men instice." He ordered the men to be ready at the end of any man who tries trike the head off any man who tries trible the head off any man who tries trible the head off any man who tries trible as speech was repeated in four different hanguages, and 1's had a most noticeable effect on the men. He said he did not care how many they slilled "for the cause," and urged thom to fight to the last. He advised the men to keep within their halls and gward them with rifes. The Western Federation of Miners, he said, was behind them.

Whether, at the end of 24 hours, anything will come of this is awaited with anxiety, and the officials are prepared. All of the special guards who have been in Duluth the last few days were rushed to the range. It is said that 250 men were in the party. They will augument Sheriff Bate's force of Gov. Johnson in the manner in which they are resuming operations. They are opening the mines one at a time and gradually resuming work with as many nen as they can get to go to work. Into the Muddy Calumet With Her Girl Companion.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—Two girls were drowned in the Calumet river at 123d street, while bathing from a small rowboat within 100 feet of the doorstop of the famous roadhouse, where the mother of one girl was seated watching them. The girls were Edith Schwartz, 13 years old, and Elsie Hull, 17 years old.

17 years old. Game Warden Bushman was in the souse at the time, and when he heard house at the time, and when he heard Mrs. Schwartz screaning he rushed to the river bank. He was just in time to see the girls sink.

The man made a heroic effort to save them, but when he dived into the muddy stream he was unable to make an effective search beneath the water because of the thick weeds near the shore.

They were but a short distance away from the hank when, one of them slipped from her seat and capsized the boat. Both girls were thrown into the water suddenly, and, being unable to sawin, they adiaspeared immediately. Neither of them rose to the surface. It is helleved they became entangled in the weeds in their struggle to reach the surface and were thus held down until dead.

MONDAY UNIVERSAL WASH DAY.

Recognized as such Over Almost All the World.

Why does nearly all the civilized world wash clothes on Monday? What has Monday to do with washing? It was originally the moon's day and was sacred to the queen of night. # FIXING OF THE COST

THE FACTORS IN PRICES

PRODUCTION AND DISTRIBUTION

Equity in Division of Profits to Ali Engaged in Producing, Manufac-turing and Selling.

Were the masses of people better anformed as to principles underlying-business transactions and commerce in general there would be less cause for complaint as to matters pertain-ing to buying and selling of com-modities.

One of the faulia if it may be so termed, is the inclination of, the people to complian about prices they must pay for goods required for domestic and other uses. There can be no doubt but the laws of the strict and they are they a adulteration of the articles and encourages a system that is unwholesome.

The people should understand that they never receive something for nothing, or receive anything of value for less than its value unless under some abnormal circumstance. Of late years there has a system grown up of offering great bargains in various kinds of goods by catalogue sent through the mails, and presenting attractive and illusive advertising that goods are being sold at less than cost.
The intelligent man or woman will carfully consider all the circumstances relative to such offers, andwill be suided accordingly. It is evident that when special bargains are made there are conditions that justify such bargains; that goods are not of standard grade, are stale, or deteriorated in some manner. Also there has a system of offering "free premiums" grown up that is unwholesome, and to an extent an imposition upon the poople as the system comples them to pay for articles that are not essential for them to have. The man who buys sugar does not care to be forced under the guise of paying for sugar to pay for a paper of pins or a package of needles, even though these may be a "free premium". It is well to bear these points in mind, and a little study into business economics and principles will be highly advantageous to the one who desires to know about the proper value of goods he must buy.

Care of Shade Trees.

SCHEMES TO DEFRAUD.

ome of the Plans to Secure Mone Without Adequate Compensation.

Plans to secure money from depocpie without giving adequate returns are numerous. Not alone are 3he residents of country districts made the victims of schemers, but city people as well are now and then humbuged by shewd fakirs. Within the past year of two it was announced in the columns of magazines and the farm papers of a seedless apple being evolved. A few months later seedless apple trees were widely advertised from different parts of , the country. One concern which started in to operate on an extensive plan organized seedless apple trees apple companies in different sates of the western country. Within a few months hundreds of thousand of dollars were taken from the pockets of the people for seedless apple trees. These trees were just, the seedless apple trees were just, the seedless apple trees were just, and so hold were the operations the seedless apple trees scheme that the secretary of agriculture found it necessary to issue a builded and the people of the fraud, and after the post, office department issued fraud orders against those engagent of the seedless apple tree schemen that the secretary of agriculture found it necessary to issue a builded in a seedless apple tree scheme and fraud orders against those engagents for the residents of farming and fruit growing districts to carefully investigate concerns selling fruit trees and similar lines before they are given patronage.

A number of petty grafts have lately been worked throughout the country. One of the common ones is the hiring of agents to sell soaps, perfumes and other commodities on the premium plan. The concerns which operate games of this class generally have their headquarters in some large city and through advertising secure the names of people desiring employment as cauvassers and agents. To such they send letters holding out extraordinary inducements. Those who agree to act as agents sign a contract which is an agreement to pay for such goods as may be sent to them on consignment. The sample outfits which are forwarded, or the small

One of the humbugs that is perpetrated upon the people of many communities is the selling of stock in cooperative mercantile companies. During the past three or four years the residents of many small towns and agricultural districts have lost hundreds of thousands of dollars, if not millions, through the buying of stock in alleged cooperative establishments in large cities. One company with head-quarters in Chicago, doing a mail order business, soid stock in excess of $1,000,000, and when the concern went into the hands of a receiver about a year ago there was not ten per cent, of assets to return to atockholders. Other alleged cooperative deals involve what is termed a profit sharing plan. This plan does not require the purchase of stock, but the cooperative part is purely a scheme devised for the securing of trade.

COSTLY LESSONS IN ECONOMY.

It is Not Always a Matter of Saving to Buy Cheap Goods.

It is Not Always a Matter of Saving to Buy Cheap Goods.

Almost every rural community has within its confines people who have paid well for experience and have learned coatily lessons as to buying of goods.

Not long ago in a western town a citizen desired to buy a kitchen range. A visit to the local hardware store was made and the prices asked by the dealer were not satisfactory to the prospective purchaser, who by the dealer were not satisfactory to the prospective purchaser, who by the way had his attention attracted by the advertising in his farm paper of "a bargain" in a kitchen range. The range was advertised as equal to those costing "twice the money at the local store." The citizen sent a money order to the concern advertising the range, and in the course of a few weeks he was notified by the railroad agent that the range had arrived. In removing it from the station to the farm house, in some inexplainable way part of it was broken. The broken pleese were taken to the local hardware store but could not be duplicated. A letter was written to the range company and in the course of a few weeks a duplicate of the broken part was received, but it was discovered that it would not fit the stove, it had to be returned and a few weeks later another pleec was sent; then the stove was placed in use. Within six months the top had become so warped that it interfered seriously with the drafts. At the end of the year the stove was burned out and ready for the junk heap. The purchaser of the stove then determined that he would secure another range from the home dealer. He paid the home dealer the price he was asked which was shoul one-third more than the poor range cost, and after a tew years the rango was found to be as good almost as when first bought. This is one illustration of how economy wrongfully practiced is expensive. It is not always wise to seek the bargain counters when good articles are wanted. Neither is it a wise idea to buy goods before you have an opportunity to carefully expensive.

Went Through Bridge.

Paris, Aug. 5.—Forty-one lives were sauffed out in one of the worst rail way horrors that have occurred in France in a long-time. The engine and one car filled with passengers went through a bridge near Angers and all on board were drowned.

The story of the accident is fraught with interble details. The train was laden with plenickers and others in search of Stunday pleasures and war running at a high rate of speed. At a bridge over the river Loire, the engine suddenly ran off the track.

At this point the tracks are finished on either side with heavy stone walls, but the impetus was so great that the engine crashed through the buttresses as -flought they were made of chalk. The engine and tender, a boagaze car and the first passenger coach plunged heading, from the bridge into the river, 30 feet below.

By this time the speed of the train, was checked, and the snapping of the coupling saved the rest of the train, which stopped on the brink of the cm-bankment.

coupling saved on the brink to the orn-bankment. When the coach toppled over into the river there was a loud shriek of terror from the passengers who found themselves penned in with no chance for escape. The riyer at this point is quite deep and the coach, dragged down by the great bulk of the engine and tendor, sank like lead. So sharp was the impact when it struck the surface of the water, that the roof of the coach was littled entirely off by the compression of the inclosed air. The coach was littled entirely off by the compression of the inclosed air. The coach then turned over and settled beneath the water, drowning all those that occupied it. The freman of the locomotive and the conductor of the Ill-fated car managed to escape by swimming.

Senator Foraker and Secretary Taft are making the political scene in Ohio a lively one.

Louisville wants the next Nat-ional Democratic convention, and is arranging to go after it in ear-nest. Hope she will post it.

Well, Marse Henry has named his candidate for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency, and no more will be heard of the man with the mustache.

The New York appellate court in an opinion written by Justice Gaynor held that William R. Hearst is entitled to have the ballot boxes reopened and the ballots recounted in the New York mayoralty contest of 1905.

Governor Beckham soon saw the havo that would result to the Democratic party in the State as well as in Louisville, should he, in anywise, push along the revolutionary proposition to have appointed a commission of five to provide for the holding of a pri-mary election in Louisville.

The whisky interests in Georgia will have to seek other fields after the first of next January, when the new whisky law which makes the State practically prohibition territory, goes into effect. There will be an exodus to Florida, Tennessee and Mississippi from Georgia early in 1908 if not sooner.

A steady and industrious young man of the threatened State of Oklahoma found the name and address of a woman on a box of blackberries which had come into his hands in the market. He did not write to her, and there is no account of any wedding, prospective or present. Oklahoma is a fearfully prosaic state.—Ex.

When Judge Robbins vacated the bench at Georgetown, last Wednesday, he did the very thing that Caleb Powers did not want him to do, notwithstanding he had filed a long affidavit asking him to vacate. The affidavit was only intended an amunition in, the Federal court, upon which Powers is depending for acquittal.

One of the members of the jury which fixed Caleb Powers' punishment at death for the part he took in the assassination of Senator Goebel says he is ready to sign a petition asking the Governor to pardon him. He says he has not changed his mind as to Powers' guilt, but in as much as Hargis was not punished Powers should not be.

There is not a prospective Democratic candidate for the Presidential nomination that will measure up to Mr. Bryan in the matter of popularity with the rank and file of the party, and to prevent his nomination is a tough problem with which the combined opposition will have to deal. If he is not the nominee Mr. Bryan will have much to say as to whom shall be.

Judge Hargis has resigned as a member of the Democratic State Central Committee. He is reported as having said, that "having been acquitted of the charges against me I now resign," &c. The converse of a proposition generally holds good, therefore, it is reasonable to believe that had he been convicted he would not have resigned as a member of not have resigned as a member of the committee.

Mayor Bingham is young in politics and needs to be surrounded by old heads to hold him level. He is receiving a broadside of hot shot from several directions, and in order to keep in with the best element in Louisville he will have to attend to official business and quit playing politics, and appealing to the Governor to intercede with commissions when things are not exactly to his liking.

Referring to the pending elections in the Philippines the Minneapolis Journal says: "In the city of Manila, with a population of 220,000, only 7,300 persons, including 800 Americans, have registered for the coming elections. That is one voter to every thirty of population, whereas, the proportion here is about one to six. It is estimated that of the 7,000,000 population of the islands, less than 60,000 will participate in the election of the first legislative assembly."

meat rind will kill the chigre.

How many cultivations of a crop is necessary? Well, just as many as the ground will permit of, rather than as few as possible. The original preparation of the land and the planting is much more than half the work and expense up to the time of harvest. It is poor conoury, after having gone thus far, to skimp in the cultivation. The cost of cultivating a field of corn or potatoes is not more than 50 or 60 cents per acre. If the planting has been well done the increased yield from each cultivation will much more than pay its cost. Keep down the weeds and let in the air to the plant roots.—Indians farmer.

SERMONETTE.

"The Lord Judge between me and thee, and the Lord average me of thee: but mine hand shall not be upon thee."—
The words of David to Saul following his remarkable experience in the cave when King Saul came into his power, and when he withstood the strong temptation to kill him. It was a most remarkable exhibition of self-control, of noble-hearted magnanimity, of falth in God. About a year later a similar opportunity of taking Saul's life came to David, but as on the first occasion he withstood the pleading of his companion, as well as the temptation of his own heart.

first occasion he withstood the pleading of his companion, as well as the temptation of his own heart.

Here was one of the supreme testing times which was to prove his worthiness for kingship. He must rule his own spirit before he could rule a kingdom. In the strict terms of justice he could rightfully have taken sould rightfully have taken saul's life. The natural desire and the sense of self-preservation dictated such a course. It seemed as though it must be either Saul's life or his comilie, and when seemingly by providental introvention his enemy had been placed within his power, why should he not be avenged of the bitter wrongs and persecutions which he had been forced to suffer, Inasmuch also as God had spoken good concerning him and had promised him the kingdom? But no, with marvelous self-control, he held himself in check, refusing to give reign to the unworthy impulses which sought for gratification.

Thus was the noble, large-heartedness of his nature called into expression. By the checking of the lower, the higher had opportunity of expansion and growth. And this is one of the unworthy impulses which sought for gratification.

only roots out the bad but it puts new life and vigor into the good. Try It in your own life and see.

But the supreme and the sub-lime motive governing David in this instance was his faith in God. His vision was fixed abovs the mere human circumstances and conditions. He had come to realize that intervovern with the warp of human endeavor was the woof of the divine plan-He knew that behind the human judgment was the judgment was the judgment was the judgment of God. He knew that all that life had that was worth gaining was not to be desired except the Lord gave, even though it were riches, honor and a kingdom-He knew. He could safely trust with God his all. That if he were wronged God would utit—a kingdom was to be his God would give it. And as we consider the subsequent events of David's life we see how completely such faith in God was justified. And will he not do even more abundantly for you and me?

THE STORY.

IT-WAS a perilous undertaking, but the heart of David, chafing under the cruel and bitter persecutions he had suffered at Saul's hands, had grown desperate, and when his releatiess enemy had followed him into the wilderness of Ziph he had suddenly resolved that he would not be hunted down like a dog, but would seek his enemy face to face, and that it should be either Saul's life or his own in a hand-to-hand encounter. That evening his sples had returned with the report that King Saul-himself had come with his solders, and was encamped in the hill of Hachilah, and he had determined to hazard a journey thither and started at once with Abishai.

It was a hard and perilous journey. The night was dark and it was with difficulty that a passake was found through the dense undergrowth. David had established his stronghold in one of the most inaccessible portions of the wild region, and the passage from it to the point where Saul was encamped would have been a difficult one even in the day time. But in the dead of night with only the starlight to give but feeble and uncertain light progress was slow, so that ere they came to the region where Saul and his 3,000 men isy encamped the morning was almost ready to break.

As David realized his nearness to the taken at his tot forced itself arrest, upon the starlight and the comment of the morning was almost ready to break.

so releatlessly sought his life passed in review before his mind.
"Better that either Saul or David were dead," he muttered. "And this inght shall determine which," and he set his teeth firmly, and took a step nearer the encamped army.
"If I had improved my opportunity when God gave my enemy into my hands in the cave, I should have been saved this hard night's trip." David continued, as the memory of that experience in the cave in the wilderness of Engedi came to him. "But I surely thought that when I spared his life that he would cease troubling me. Yea, I thought he would even have suffered me to go and dwell peaceably among my people. But what hat he done? Rewarded me evil for good. And now what seemeth to remain for me save to fight for my life," and he let his hand fall to his side and caressed the dagger which hung there, as though it was the only friend left him.
"Master, as though it was the only friend left him.
"Master, it were well that we were pressing forward if thou woulds reach the side of thy enemy before the breaking of the morning light," Abishal said, pointing to the faint show of gray light in the eastern sky.

Thus aroused, David readjusted his light garmentf, again felt of his short.

show of gray light in the eastern sky.

Thus aroused, David readjusted his light garments, again feit of his short sword, and—then steathfuly crept forward. His long years of training in the wilderness as he lived in the fastnesses of the mountains and the forests had given him a tread as soft and noiseless as that of a cat, and David and Abishal found no difficulty in treading their way through the open ranks of the soldiers of Saul as they lay stretched out in deep siumber.

spen ranks of the solders of said as hey lay stretched out in deep slumber. It had been a long, hard march which they had had, the day before, and when they had gone into camp at night, the soldlers of Saul were only too glad to stretch their weary bodies on the soft, yielding ground and give themselves over to refreshing slumber. It would seem strange that there should have been neguard placed or precautions taken against surprise, but the Ziphite, guides had reassured. Saul that it was impossible for a large body of men to get through from the strong hold where David lay entrenched to the place where Saul's camp was pitched without their movements becoming known, and they said: "A small' body will not venture against so splendid a company of men." Thus sone with the strong that the same with the same had sought a much needed night's rest, and when David and Abishal reached the camp the deep sleep of the early morning was upon them, so that even had their tread not been so light they would not have disturbed the tired sleepers.

they would not have disturbed the tired sleepers. On and on they crept, until the outer bodyguard of Saul was reached.

On and on they crept, until the outer bodyguard of Saul was reached. Here the two map paused, scarcely breathing lest they rouse some watchful soldier. David looked about him and noted the place where Saul lay and then, cauliously creeping around the inert forms lying all about, he reached the side of the king.

How haggard and plitful was that countenance. David was shocked by the lines of wretched agony which appeared as the facial musclet were relaxed in sleep. He saw written there the tragedy of that life. He noted the sunken eyes, the drooping mouth and the nervous, irregular breathing which indicated that even in sleep there was no peace or rest for the man who had rejected the Lord. As David looked closer and examined the features they told him all the sad story of the years of soul torture which had come to this man because of his wijlful, urrepentant disobedience of God's commandments, and David's heart snucte him and his hand relaxed its hold upon the dagger at his side. And then David contrasted his own inner peace and confidence in God. What if the outward conditions had been trying and desperate; what if he had been driven from place to place so that in no region did he feel secure, was his lot not better than that of the man with the guilty conscience before him who was fighting against God? After all, Saul was suffering the most.

Ablahal watched David closely. He noted the relaxed features, nay the the most.

Abishal watched David closely. He noted the relaxed features, nay the almost look of compassion which had taken the place of the set, determined expression of fleree anger. Now he stepped to David's side and said, with vehemence: "God hath delivered thine enemy into thine hand this day; now therefore let me smite him, I pray thee, with the spear to the earth at once."

now therefore let me smite him, it pray thee, with the spear to the earth at once."

David looked up startled, nay almost guiltily, as he realized how hatred in his heart had almost plunged him into an awful crime. "Nay," he said, slowly, "God shall be my avenger. Destroy not; for who can stretch forth his hand against the Lord's anointed and be guiltiess? As the Lord sanointed and be guiltiess? As the Lord sanointed and be guiltiess? As the Lord sanointed and be guilties and he had be shall come to die; or he shall descend into battle and perish."

As David finished, speaking, he stooped and picked up the cruse of water standing by Saul's side and, taking the spear which was at his head, he turhed and as softly as he had come he went away again, followed by his faithful companion, Abishal. And in the after years David never ceased to thank God-that he was content to let God become his avenger.

TRUE DEMOCRAT

TY BEFORE THE LAW.

Opposition to All Taxes That Tend to Foster Monopoly is Cardinal Principle of the Disciple of Jafferson.

ciple of the Disciple of Jafferson.

The dictionaries and Mf. Bryan define a Democrat as one who achieves to a government by the people. But that is only a nominal definition—one which explains only the meaning of the term defined without indicating anything more of the nature of the thing signified by it than is implied by the term itself to everybody who understands its meaning. It is equivalent to saying that a Democrat is a Democrat.

understands its meaning. It is equivaleint to saying that a Democrat is a Democrat.

What is needed at this time is not a nominal but a real definition of the word—one which will explain the nature of the thing defined by reference to its origin and history in connection with American politics. Such a definition would necessarily relate back to the principles set forth by Thomas j-fefferson and James - Madison in 1731, and 1799, when those men founded the Democratic party of the United States —those principles being embodied incortain resolutions, and in a report made by James Madison to the Virspinal legislature, insisting upon a strict construction of the language of the federal constitution respecting the powers granted to the general government and those reserved to the states.

A Democrat, then, is a strict-con-powers granted to the general government, and those reserved to the states.

A Democrat, then, is a strict-constructionist. That is his chief characteristic. He believes in the doctrine of state rights, or local self-government—that is, home rule—as opposed to centralization and imperialism. He believes in aquality before the law, and therefore opposes the creation of vested rights or perogatives and private monopolies by legislation. He believes in taration for revenue only, and therefore opposes any and all taxes that foster monopoly, as our tariff laws do at this time—He believes in taration for revenue only, and therefore opposed to government by injunction. He believes in the right of trial by jury as that right is guarded by the Constitution; and is therefore opposed to government by injunction. He believes in majority rule in every locality, but that a majority of the people in the whole country have the right to rules in conformity with the compact expressed in the Constitution, whereby it is agreed that a majority of senators representing sovereign states in the other branch, shall make general laws subject to a qualificative of the constitutional compact. When the population of the constitution is considered with the political party which, from its bitter in 1788, has always stood terms of the constitutional compact.

A Democrat also associates himself with the political party which, from its birth in 1793, has always stood pleaged to carry out its policies in accordance with these general principles. He opposes those who seek to evade or nullify constitutional provisions by stretching and twisting such provisions in applying them to current legislation or current judicial proceedings. He is plainly distinguishable from an Ochloerat, on the one hand, and from an imperialist on there. For ochlocracy is a form of government in which the multitude rule directly; whereas, in a democracy like ours, they govern through their representatives. And imperialism—even such as the imperial democracy of Athens—denies to its subjects the right of representation in its legislative body and taxes them without their consent; whereas our democracy, both in its origin and in its containing purpose, repudiates that aystem.

Perhaps 99 per cent, of the people the Briaps 99 per cent, of the people of this rountry honestly adhere to the theory of government by the people and may, in that sense, be called democrats. But many of them believe in ochloracy, and many others believe in imperial democracy. In party nomendiature, however, only those who believe in representative democratic government, and adhere to the arried construction of the Constitution are Democrats.

An Up-to-Date President.
Dr. Daniel B. Turney, the probable candidate of the Prohibitionists for the presidency, scored President Roguevelt in his speech before the general conference of the Free Methodist church at its late meeting.

"A president who carries a cigarette in his mouth and a six-shooter in his pocket does not set a good example to the youth of the nation," said Dr. Turney; "and that letter to Mr. Harriman, which he himself handed out, let us try to forget.

"As Samson wist not when his strength was departed, so our strenuous president seems in ignorance of having lost his popularity, but it has gone forever.

"Loud applause and cries of That's having lost his popularity, but it has gone forever.

"Loud applause and cries of "That's so' greeted the utterance."

Our Methodist brethren must not set too particular these days, for what would have been a queer performance for Lincoln, or Cleveland, or McKinley seems quite in keeping with our up-to-dute and more strenuous chief magistrate.

THE POST ROADS CLAUSE.

President's Contention is Direct Signature At State Rights.

The Farrar-Rocsevelt scheme for usurping control over the states of the union under the post rads clause of the federal constitution is one that raises again the old issue of states rights, on which both the Democratic and the Republican parties were originally founded. It was long ago advocated by certain public men with area to grind, but was thoroughly exploded by President Monroe and Jackson. In his message vetoing a bill which had passed both houses of congress "for the preservation and repair of the Cumberland road," President Madison commenting on the verb "to establish," which limits and defines the power of congress. over post roads and post offices, and that by the word "establish," "power was given to fix on the towns, courthouses and other places throughout our union at which there should be post offices, the routes by which mails should be carried from one post office to another, so as to diffuse intelligence as extensively and to make the inatitution as useful as possible, to fix the postage to be paid on every letter and package thus carried, to support the establishment and to protect the post office and mails from robbery by punishing those who should commit the offense. " The use of the extablishment and to protect the post office and mails from robbery by punishing those who should commit the offense. " The use of the existing road by the stage, mail carrier or postboy in passing over it, as others do, is all that would be inought of, the jurisdiction and soil resaaining to the state, with a right in the state or those authorised by its legislature to change the road at pleasure."

This has been accepted as the Democratic position ever since; and it is more important that this position should be steadfastly maintained at whis time than ever before. All railroads, street car lines, streets, counter, roads, post office buildings, etc., could be brought extensively under federal control, if the president's contention of the found that the solution of the constitution; but is control, the proposi which declared:

"That the magnetanece inviolate of the rights of the state, " " is essential to that balance of power on which the perfection and endurance of our political fabric depends." Lincoln maintained this position as earnestly as Jefferson, Monroe or Jackson ever did. But it is a far cry from Lincoln to Rossevelt.

Chasing Commercial Rain

Chasing Commercial Rainbows.

There may be a bag of gold at the end of every rainbow; but where is the end of the thing? The rainbow of imperialism is the South American and Asaitic market, especially the market for American cotton and iron products. But the monthly consular and trade reports of the bureau of manufactures for June, 1907, shows what sort of illusions we have harbored in respect to such markets.

These reports show that the Angio-Argentina Cotton, company is producing enormous quantities of raw cotton, and that the "Algodomesa Nacional" has established cotton-spinning and weaving factories which consume the native output of lint and bid fair to capture the entire textile market in South America. Last year there were established in the Argentine Republic 99 new cotton milit, with nearly 9,000,000 spindles. At this, rate, how long will it take Argentina to supply South America with cotton goods?

The reports further show that in antarials the cotton-growing industry

The reports further show that in Australia the cotton-growing industry is firmly established, and that there are millions of acres—a territory, in fact, as large as the cotton belt of the United States—available for the cuitivation of the Carsvonica or any other class of cotton. Manufacturing is sure to follow the production of the raw material. English capital is available, and will be used for that purpose.

As to cotton grounds the cotton.

able, and will be used for that purpose.

As to cotton goods, then, neither the Asiatic nor the South American markets can be monpolized by the United States.

And as it is with cotton products, so it is with fron products. Those countries abound in minerals. Our missionaries, sent out by plous people, to teach the natives how to get to Heaven, are also. Teaching them how to compete with us in the arts of civilization, and are in this way raising up competition in all Asiatic and African countries. Thus does en lightenment destroy imperialism, and creates compellition. Our best foreign market is for breadstuffs and raw cotton, and is confined to Europe. And yet our standpatters refuse to lower our tariff wall and our trade with Europe, except for raw material, is becoming more and more limited and our commerce with Asia and South Americs is being out from under us.

Democrat Doctrine Best.

In his speech at Jamestown, Mr. Rooseveit proposed a federal inheritance tax, not as a means of raising revenue, but as a means of accomplishing a purely socialistic reform-of decreasing swollen fortunes. But he must have known that congress has no power to lay a tax for any pursues exceed to carry out the lexit.

Long Time to Sweep.

Everything, even a magnificent church, must be regarded from the point of view of the beholder. A Longton paper says that two country girls, who acted as It they might be enjoying a holiday from domestic service, were observed walking down the sizes of St. Paul's Cachedon. Diview the great dome one of them stood and gazed around her with an air of such wonder that a spectator might well suppose that she was awestruck by her solemn surroundings. ## After Twelve Years

By SOPHIE MAY

Copyright, by Joses Miss Hepsey hung the tesketite over the fire and sat down to think. In "Those beans! Can Cellinds be trust-cel to let then out in the morning and shut them up, at night? Will she remember what I said about the setting heur, and the eggs in the yellow bowl? No!" said Miss Hepsey mournfully to her own thoughts. "If I conclude to go to Portland, I must just bid good-by to my chickens before I go!" "Hepsey," said Aunt Maguire, putting her head in at the door, "don't forget that gray fannel; but you mustn't pay too much for it; Td rathor go without." Aunt McGuire disappeared, with her widow's cap tilted on noe side-of her pepper-and-sait curls, and her niece mused on. But, unfortunately, addled eggs were not the least of her troubles. She knew just sa well as if Mme. Demorest had told her, that a faded, brown alpaca is no dress to make any impression in—only a dowly impression in—only a dowly impression—and that unon this visit to Portland de-knew just as well as if Mme. Demorset had told her, that a faded, brown alpaca is no dress to make any impression im—only a dowdy impression—and that upon this visit to Portland depended a great deal more than a few yards of flesnel or a brood or two of tokens.

There was Hiram Stackpole, living not three squares from the family she was about to visit. She should meet him; how could it be avoided unless she always kept herself velled to the thim; how could it be avoided unless she always kept herself velled to the chin? She trembled at the thought, but at the same time chid herself for meeting Hiram stackpole any more than Deacon Nutting? He surely would not speak to her unless she would give some sign of recognition. At saven next morning the Pooleville stage frew up before Aunt Maguire's door for Miss Hepsey. At the post office they stopped to take the mail bag and a young man.

"Why, Fred Tracy, how for eyes brimming over with welcome, and the youthful look fashing back to her face, giving a momentary gloom face, giving a momentary gloom of her parter with welcome, and the youthful look fashing back to Portland, Fred?" saked Miss Hepsey, he careworn look returning to her dasc.

"Yes; I've rusticated three days, and "yat is all? I can "yare. I'm, in Stackpole is store," he continued, carelessify. Ahemine believe the la continued a reconstruction once that it all counts at recovering, and there he are determined to the continued, rerelessify. "Yes. He was very particular to inquire just how you were situated"

"At-last, with the usual flourish and energetic crying out at the horses, the stage drew up at the depot, and in five minutes Miss Hepsey was on her way to Portland and to her fate.

With the noisy wheels Miss Hepsey's thoughts flew hackward to the dars when she had 'been young and beautiful. Hiram had loved her then, there could be no doubt of that. His looks had said it a thousand times. And even if looks and tones and signs and injimations had been all at fault, had he not 'told her all his heart,' in written language, strong and unmistakable?"

She would never forget that letter, and unmistakable?".

She would never forget that letter, for it was the last he ever wrote. Not for lack of response on her part. No, she had written immediately, and there had been no equivocation in her answer.

had been no equivocation in her answer.

And then the sweet expectation that had rested over her through days, and weeks, and even months, until hope deferred had made her heart sick! He never Wrote again; he hever Came; and if her letter said too much, or if he suddenly discovered he had mistaken his own feelings, she never knew.

Somewhat less than a year after-this, Mr. Stackpole's sister, Lucy, who had come to Pooleville on a visit, died suddenly at Fred Tracy's Unofedoni's, and Hepsey was there with bur good sense, her good taste, her quiet, nerves and ready hands, when Hirm came to take his dead sister for her burial in the ancestral fomb.

He came into the darkened parlor

He came into the darkened parlor unexpectedly to Hepsey, as she stood by the casket, putting rosemary and Nothing passed between the two old friends but such looks of sad sympathy, as strangers might give and receive about a bier, and then Hepsey, who was needed no longer, went away, with her heart full of wounded love and proud regret.

This was 12 years ago. She had never seen him since. And now they would meet again. Well, what cared she? When a past event is dead and buried, why should its ghost walk? There is always enough to do and bear in the living present. For instance, at this vew moment she ought to be thinking out the plot of a new story, for Miss Hepsey's facile pen was all she could depend upon for the winning of her daily broad.

cold might detain yon a day or two; and your old friend, Mr. Stackpole, is to be here."

Mr. Stackpole again! Hepsey was glad the name had been spoken so many times that day that the strangeness was wearing off.

The next evening Hepsey came into the long, bright parlor, dressed in her best black stilk, a much-enduring garment, that had been turned and stiftened with gir; but then black slifts, like dead men, tell no tales—and she looked very sweet and attractive with her fresh blue ribbons and her peaseful face.

Mr. Stackpole thought so when he came in tale to the state of the state her fresh blue ribbons and her pesseful face.

Mr. Stackpole thought so when he came in late in the evening. After a few words with the hotses, he slipped into a shadowy corner, and looked into a shadowy corner, and looked late a shadowy corner, and looked late a shadowy corner, and looked as little aside. Then he stood gasing at her face as though he wished to read all that the past lost years had printed on it. There was a yearning look in his eyes, a look of long hunger satisfied at last.

Presently Miss Hepsey's eyes, drawn-perhaps by the magnetism of his, turned toward Mr. Stackpole's corner and fell upon the remembered face. She turned there eyes away quickly; instantly the flame, long buried and smoldering in her heart, leaped up into life again, burning at her cheeks and choking her breath. Poor Hepsey! She did not understand that it was Mr. Stackpole's glance of earnest love that had stirred the old pleasure and the old pain; she blamed her own heart for it all.

When she raised her eyes they looked into the face of Mr. Stackpole.

the old pair; she blamed her own heart for it all.

When she raised her eyes they looked into the face of Mr. Stackpole, who was standing before.

"Hepsibahl" said he softly, holding out his hand to her. "Ah, Hepsibah!"

The old name that she had hardly heard for years! Tho name he had called her by; how-it thrilled her, bringing to full life again-the burled shadowy host of hopes, and loves, and yearnings!. They started up, sudden, mlooked for and sublime, like the old dead incas thrown up in the great earthquake; but not like them, withered and past reviving.

"You have not forgotten the letter I wrote you before I went to Porlland, Hepsibah? The letter and the questions."

'You Have Not Forgotten the Letter,'

"You Have Not Sorgotten the Letter."

Ition I asked in it 12 years ago?" Mr. Stackpole entreated in a tone tender and tenulous, holding fast her hand in dread leat she should vanish once more.

"Siff"

"Oh, Hepsibah! it was only this evening I got your answer."

"Mr. Stackpole!"

"Only this evening, Hepsibah! After 12 years' waiting! Yos, it came at last; I have it—here it is!"

"Mr. Stackpole! My letter?"

"Your precious letter, Hepsibah. It has been lying all these years in Siter Lucy's writing desk. Fred Tracy brought me the desk yesterday, and just before coming here to-night I opened it and looked over the contents. Away in one corner, slipped carelessly into an old package of papers, was this, with the seal un broken."

"Lucy must have taken it out of the office," stammered Hepsey.

"Yes, I suppose so, and in her careless way locked it into her desk and forgot it. It must have come while I was at leland Pond. It was so like Lucy, the dear, heedless child!"

Hopsibahs' face was full of amase; but there was also a tender light in it, very sweet to Hiram Stackpole's eyes.

"I am going to repeat that old question to-night," he sald, softly, "and I shall hold you to the same answer, Hepsibah."

"The same question and the same answer! And the years that had come between were like a tale when it is at the light of the same answer! And the years that had come between were like a tale when it is means of good roads only can this be done.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

While at Harvest Home, last week, a member of one of your Boone County Grange suggested to me that I write a short article for your paper regarding our local Ashland Grange. This Grange was organized by State Lecturer, W. H. Glayton, last spring. There were thirty charter members, including several ladies. Since that time the membership has increased to something near a hundred and fifty members, and by the first of the year we are expecting to have a manbership of a east five hundred.

The membership is composed of prominent farmere of Fayette county, and members of the faculty of the Agricultural Department of State College and Experiment Station. A special Grange Hall will be fitted up in the New Agricultural Building, which is being erected at the present time. This hall will afoud facilities for holding meetings, and the necessary anterooms have been provided as suggested in the Grange rules. A large percentage of the agricultural students have joined the Grange.

Ashland Grange receives from ten to fifteen applications for membership at each meeting, and will undoubtedly become one of the strongest Granges in the State.

A National Flower.

About this time expect the annual debate over our national flower. In spite of a seneral feeling that the country ought to have one, the choice is somehow never-made. Just now the columbine, hardy, widely distributed, and slighly decorative, seems to be in the lead among candidates. It has, we believe, an organized league at work in its behalf. Indian corn is "mentioned," and as soon as the Kold-"mentioned," and as soon as the Kold-"mentioned." "mentioned," and as soon as the golden-rod blooms there is sure to be a wave of sentiment in its favor. Corn, wave of sentiment in its favor. Corn. by the way, is the favorite son of Indians, nominated to the first place in the nation by the Hoosier public school scholars. Columbine, for all its national popularity, is the floral emblem of no state at all, while solden-rod, with Alabams, Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri, Nebraska and Pennsylvanis already committed to its claims, ought on that score to have exceptional chances. These endorsements, however, are all by vote of the school children. Only-two flowers, the sunflower of Kansas and the unrhymable Eschscholitis of Californias, have been picked out by the soil. nia, have been picked out by the sol one has been picked out by the sol-emm wisdom of state legislatures. If congress has a preference, it would seem to be the carnation, which many members of both parties wear on the birthday of William McKinley.

John Davidson, one of the oldest and wealthlest citizens of Wichita, Kan., has never in his life worn a neckile. Every morning in the year he puts on a newly-laundered collar, but never a neckile. He says he does not think he could stand one, and cannot see how any man can be comfortable with one on. Mr. Davidson has never pwned a pair of gloves, either. He has worked in all sorts of weather without any covering on his hands.

Rich men often sigh over the burden of wealth, but about the only man who can make this lament literally, and who wants really and actually no more weight of money upon him is the Washington treasury cierk who had his thigh bone, broken by a bundle containing, over a million dollars in notes falling upon him.

When a member of the Belgian par-liament is making a long speech the government furnishes his hearers with brandy so that they may be also to stand the strain. We think our scheme of permitting our statesm to retire to the cloakrooms while cators are in action is a better one.

WRIT OF ERROR IS GRANTED

STANDARD OIL IS PERMITTED TO TAKE ITS APPEAL.

Judge Grosscup, However, Refuses Su-persedeas Without a Bond Other Than for Costs.

Chicago.—Judge Peter S. Gross-cup, of the United States circuit court of appeals, Friday afternoon granted to the Standard Oil company of Indiana a writ of error allowing the defense to take its appeal from the judgment of Judge K. M. Landis, who imposed the record-breaking fine of $29,240,000.

Special Assistant District Attorney James H. Wilkerson and Assistant District Attorneys Harry A. Parkin and Francis Hanchett appeared for the government to contest the defendant's attorneys in their efforts to obtain a supersedess without any more than one bond for costs.

It was the contention of the government that the bond should be fixed at $29,240,000, the amount of the fine imposed by Judge Landis, in order to secure the government pending a stay of execution.

The assignment of errors contains 116 citations in which Judge Landis is declared to have erred during the course of the trial of the oil company, it is the contention of the defense that the court erred in overruining and not austafining the demurrer to the indictment on the ground that the Elkins act, under which the indictment had been drawn, had been repealed by the Hepburn bill.

The States and the Railroads.

The western railroads have raised their freight rates five per cent. by changes in classification. This shows how futtle the Roosevelt rate iegislation is to protect the public from the corporations. Yet some people want Mr. Roosevelt renominated, without thinking that his plan or reducing railroad rates is a total failure. The only rate reduction that has been acceptuallished has been by state legislation and Mr. Roosevelt's plan, as explained in his Indianapolis speech, is to take the power to reduce rates from the states and concentrate all such power in the federal government Don't be fooled by any such Hamilton lan theory, but hang on to the reserved rights of the states and home rule.

A newspaper from Henry county says: "Night riders, whose depredations in the dark tobacco district have caused consternation among tobacco growers not members of the organization, have begun their work in other Burley districts, but in a different manner. During the past week the night riders have stolen from the barn of B. G. Pearce, a tobacco grower of this county, 4,000 pounds of tobacco and no trace of the thefts can be secured. Pearce is an independent grower, and in order to intimidate him the night riders instead of destroying his tobacco, have stolen it, The theft became known to him yesterday when he began to prize his tobacco, and was at once reported to the police.

Laxington, Ky.—Mayor Combs established a precedent by refusing to grant a renewal of licenses to saloon keepers whose bond and license had been forfeited for violation of the Sunday closing law. This is regarded as the most effective step taken by the mayor since he ordered all saloons closed here on Sundays. He revoked the iteenses of Champman & Downing for selling liquor isat Sunday, and of Linville Bros. for permitting gamins. In the future saloon keepers arrested on the charge of violating the Sunday closing law the mid-night closing law and permitting women or minors to enter their places of business, will lose their licenses and can not renew them.

A vigilance league will be formed to prevent further violence.

MUTILATED BODIES

Of Two Men, a Merchant and An Out-law, Found in Kentucky.

law, Found in Kentucky.

Lexington, Ky.—In Eastern Kentucky there were found the mutilated and partially decomposed bodies of two persons. One was a merchant and the other an outlaw. The first was that of Benjamin Chestnut, 85, on the Cumberland river, near Burnside. It is believed he was murdered, robbed and his body thrown over the cliff. The other was that of Charles I. Meade, on Ross creek, Estill county, All signs point to assassination by his enemies, with no intention to rob him, as his two revolvers and his money were on his person. Meade was outlawed by his alleged murder of A. J. Porter, in Scott county, Virginia, and $900 was offered for his capture. He also killed a doputy sherif.

FINALLY ROUSED UP UNCLE.

How a Crowd of Villagers Stirred the Sage of the Cracker Sarrel.

There was the usual crowd of villagers sitting on the postoffice steps waiting for the mail to be distributed, and among them was 'Ucile' John. He had joined the sittors without saying a word, and at the end of afteen minutes one of the men winked at the crowd and said:

"Well, Uncle John, have you heard about the big earthquake in Vermont, with 10,000 people killed?"

Uncle John looked at him in a weary way and shook his head.

And the cyclone in Connecticut yesterday and 500 houses blowndown?" continued the man.

Uncle John yawned and was not the least interested.

"The Ohlo river rose 200 feet of a sudden the other day and carried the city of Cincinnati down stream. Tems of thousands of people lost their lives. Any of your relatives down there, Uncle John?"

The old man slowly shook his head and reached down to pick up a silver and pick his teeth with it.
"And the whole state of Pennsylvania is caving in," said the joker, "and by to-morrow there will be a sreat lake where 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 people have lived."

Uncle John took the news without a word. In fact, he , yawned and stretched over it.
"By thunder, but there goes a rat under that pile of lumber across the street," exclaimed the joker, as he toes, up. "Say, you fellers."

But he got no further. Uncle John was across the street and had a clu in his hand, and within the next ten minutes he had done a half day's work tearing down the pile to get at the rat. He had been aroused at last.—Kansas City Journal.

TWO WAYS OF LOOKING AT IT.

Sharp Answer.

Gelett Burgess at the recent dinner of the American Booksellers' association of New York said: "I once knew a San Franciscan who married a girl for her money. She was not a pretty-girl, and as time passed and love cooled, she developed a rather tart tongue.

"One day her husband bought with his quarter's allowance a 20-horse-power automobile. He took the car home gayly and brought his wife out to the front door to look at it.—She gave one sneering glance, and then said:

"I'ts very fine, but 'if it hadn't been for my money, it wouldn't be here."

"Well. Marnie, said the husbase."

"Well, Mamie, said the husband, quickly, 'if it hadn't been for your money you wouldn't be here your-selt.'"

USED BY THE DOCTORS.

Ninety Per Cent of the Drugs Pre-scribed Are Patent Medicines.

Despite the opposition of physicians, especially of those whose experience has been neither far reaching nor profitable, to "patent" medicines, nine-ty per cent of all drugs that physicians use are put up and compounded by manufacturing concerns,—are, in fact, "patent" medicines just as fruly as if they were advertised in the newspapers.

The average doctor knows little or nothing of pharmacy and is, therefore, glad to depend on the very medicines, which in public he condemns, of the control of the control of the control of the control of the corying what he calls "self-diagnosis."

How rapid has been the growth of the professional use of "patent" or "propericary" medicines is shown in an article written for the Journal of the American Medical Association for September 39, 1906, by A. Jacobi, M. D., Li. D. He relates that 50,000 prescriptions, compounded in several drug stores were carefully examined.

From 1850 to 1870 no prescription was found, for "patent" or "proprietary" medicines. In 1874 but one prescription in 1,500 called for ready-to-use remedies. Between 1875 and 1888 the number calling for "patent" or "proprietary" medicines equalled two per cent of the total.—This increased to 5 per cent in the period between 1801 and 1890. In 1895 it was 15 per cent, and in 1902 in 1898 it was 15 per cent, in 1898 it was 15 per cent, or "proprietary" medicines equalled two per cent of the stotal.—This increased to 5 per cent.

Dr. Jacobi says that in a large stare he was assured that 70 per cent of the prescriptions were for "patent" or "proprietary" medicines are good enough for physicians to prescrib and "proprietary" medicines are good enough for family use in cases of necessity and where the symptoms are well known and as easily underscreen and "proprietary" and the proprietary and where the symptoms are well known and as easily underscreen and the proprietary and where the symptoms are well known and as easily underscreen and the proprietary and where the symptoms are well known and as easily underscreen and the proprietary and where the symptoms are well known and as easily underscreen and the proprietary and where the symptoms are well known and as easily underscreen and the proprietary and where the symptoms are well kno

"Don't you think that you have placed those fixtures too high" asked she, having reference to the curtain rolls last put in place. The workman, a stolld German, made no reply, but continued to adjust the fixtures.

"Didn't you hear my question?" demanded the lady of the house. "How dare you be so ruder" Whereupon the German guiped convulsively, and then replied in the gentless of voices.

The formal witnesses of the civil marriage were E. L. McLain, of Greenfield, Ohio, a cousin of Senator Beveridge, and John C. Shafter, of Chicago. The religious ceremony in the embassy was hardly less simple than the civil rice. Only relatives and intimate friends were present. At 12:30 o'clock the bridal party arrived in carriages from the visit to the registrar's office. They were at once admitted to the main hall of the embassity, where the service took place, under the direction of Rev. Thomas C. ### FAST TRAIN IN ACCIDENT.

Twentieth Century Passengers Have Close Call.

Chicago. — The Twenticth Century train, west-bound on the Lake Shore railway, met with an accident Friday near Chesterton, Ind. A heavy freight train east-bound parted when not far from Chesterton, and the rear part of the train Thuckled' throwing several cars on the west-bound track. Before the men on the freight were aware of the accident, the Twentieth Century train came along and struck the fasight cars which had been thrown in the way. It reduced these cars to kindling wood, and two of the leading cars in the passenger train were thrown from the track. The passengers were slightly shaken up, but none of them was injured. Wairus-Whiker. Toothpicke.
In the Chinatown of every city the grocers sell toothpicks made of wairus whiskers. They are excellent toothpicks, and in China no fashlonable dinner is complete without a bundle of them.

From either side of the mouth of the wairus, whiskers, at once stiff and pilable, project. They are about four inches long, and the older the wairus the stiffer and more elastic are these hairs, and the better toothpicks they make.

When the Alaskans kill a wairus they pluck out the whiskers carefully with tweezers, and bundle them up in nest packets, they ship them, when there are enough, to China.

There is a story told of a clergyman who ran like mad one morning to catch a train he had been in the habit of eatching.

He missed it by a second or two. So did a workman. The porter had instructions to close the gate of which he was in charge af a certain time. He did it to the second. He jammed it fast and true in the face of both cleric and workmen.

THE STORY.

IN ALL Israel it would have been hard to have found a more illy-matched couple than that of the wealthy Nabsi of Carmel and the fair, young abligall. He was miserly, with a greed for gold that stiffed every other impulse and desire, and it had created no small amount of wonder when he had suddenly decided to marry. People marveled that he should be able to turn his thoughts from his fields and his flocks and his herds long coups to take a wife. His soighbors and fremes knew, that sentiment had little to do with the marriage, and much was the speculation as to what had prompted the move.

surly, selles side of the man begre to assert itself, and Ablgali had been first glimps of the real man within. How her pure, unselfish soul recoiled from the meannest the sellabheen, the hisrd-heartedness of his warped and shrived nature. She had rejoiced in the thought that as the wife of the rich was he would be able to do much to help her less fortunate neighbors. When at home before he marriage she had always been seeking out some home where she might bestow the word of comfort or the trifle of food or raiment which he larger means sermited, and now that larger means were at her command she found increasing delight and comfort in this work of ministry.

The day before there had come to her attention a case of special need lying at the far side of the little without any thought of incurring Nabul's displeasure, or of bestowing that to which the did not have a perfect right, she had selected one of the best of train, had sent them to the home where the father had just died and he poor widow had been left with a family of little ones to care for, Filled with the thought of the joy and comfort, which she had thus been able to bring to that home, she had relate the story to ber humband in the evening after he had come in from the eld.

"What," he had exclaimed, savage-ly, "you giving away what I work so do Lt".

"But the father has just died, and the mother and little ones are destitute." And Abigail had gone on to relate the sad circumstances.

"Let the relatives look after them, then," Nabal had surifly ejaculated. "The fellow was a lasy, good-for-nothing. Did I not have him working for me? and did not 1 have to send him away because he would not do the work assigned him."

"Perhaps he was sick and could not."

"Then what right had he to sak for wages for work he did not do?"
Abigail had not replied, but turned away sick at heart, a contempt for the man rains within her. And from that day his surly, greedy nature had asserted itself, and Abigail had left him much to himself, and he, busy with the affairs of his estate, paid little heed to her, save to watch with apprehensive eye to see that she did not give away his substance.

So it had gone on for several years, and the substance of Nabai increased, it had been an unusually prosperons year. The shepherds had returned from a distance with larger and more thrifty focks than ever before, and the shearing had begun and promised to be the most bountfull yield of wool that Nabal had ever had. Nabai was too occupied with, the thought of his prosperity to pay much heed to the slow of the head of the shearing had begun and promised to be the most bountfull yield of wool that Nabal had ever had. Mrs. Joe Selz, wife for Frewery Oreman Selz, is officiating as first cook, and Gus Tittel is general utility man and assistant cook. Mr. Oberting and family will return on the Mary Pell August 18th, in order to place the launch in charge of a licensed engineer and pilot to be used as a ferry boat during fair and homecoming week.

Gus Tittel will play the part of Robinson Crusce, being compelled to remain on the island without any provisions whatever, until the return of his commander. General Oberting and family will return to Alhaja after the fair, where he expects to remain during the sesson, running expeditions up the Kentucky and Muskakitak rivers. Occasionally he will also explore Big Bone, expecting with the aid of a map he secured from relatives in France, to locate the spot where a French officer, who was an uncle of Gen'l Oberting's father, killed the noted Indian Chief, Hatilmschongehabt, in a hand to hand combat October 2, 1814.

The Board of Directors of the Grain Growers Department of the cenabl, in a hand to hand combat October 2, 1814.

The Board of Directors of the Grain Growers Department of the American Society of Equity, the organization which is seeking to control the price of farm products, has decided that they will hold or store wheat until there is a market price of $1.25 a bushel, the highest price ever asked by the growers. The word goes forth to thousands of growers in the winter and spring wheat sections, who have taken a pledge to follow the recommendations of officers of the organization with regard to the selling price. The Society estimates that this year's wheat crop will be no larger than that of 1904, when $55,000,000 bushels were harvested. The July 1st Government crop report estimated the total wheat yield this year at 100,000,000 bushels in excess of this figure. The officers of the Society are bitter in their denunciation of the crop reporting bureau of the Department of Agriculture, maintaining that the monthly reports are here guesses designed solely for the use of the Chicago market manipulators. This society is claiming the credit for the prices obtained on the short 1904 crop the average price on which at Chicago was $1.15 a bushel for wheat.

[News-Herald]

Chicago was $1.15 a bushel for wheat.

"The race for representative came to a close on Saturday afternoon and the voters of Owen county declared by a bare majority of twelve to send John H. Jackson to Frankfort to belp make our laws. While this was an exiting faish, it hardly equaled the fight and close finish that came before the County Committee on Tuesday, when by a majority of one vote, Mr. Jackson was granted a certificate of election. The Committee met on Tuesday to canvass the vote. The count showed that Mr. Jackson had received a mejority of twelve over his opponent, Charlie Marchall. When a motion was made to grant Mr. Jackson a certificate of election, Mr. J. J. Kemper, Committeeman, from Poplar Grove, arose and said that the was opposed to granting any candidate a certificate who had apent money to influence the voters. He them made the charge that Mr. Jackson had treated the boys at l'oplar Grove on election day to Coca Cola and other soft drinks and said that this was in violation of the rule adopted when this primary was called. After some considerable speech making and wrangling, five of the Committee voted to grant the certificate and four voted against it, one declining to vote, giving as hie reason that it had been reported that Mr. Marshall was guilty of the same offense, and that he was not in favor of granting either candidate a certificate. The four members of the Committee who voted against the granting of the certificate and lour voted to granting or the certificate and four voted that Mr. Marshall was guilty of the same offense, and that he was not in favor of granting either candidate a certificate. The four members of the Committee woters, and that he was not in favor of granting either candidate a certificate. The four members of the Committee woters and just half of the four members of the Committee in composed of twenty members, and just half of the four members of the Committee woters. ### He Kept Cool.

He Kept Cool,

A man and his wife were once staying at a hotel, when in the night they were aroused from their slumbers by the cry that the hotel was aftre, says the Boston Herald.

"Now, my dear," said the husband, "I will put into practice what I have preached. Put on all your indispensable apparel, and keep cool." Then he slipped his watch into his vest pocket and walked with his wife out of the hotel.

When all danger was past he said: "Now you see how necessary it is to keep cool."

The wife for the first time clanded at ther husband. "Yes, William," she said, "it is a grand thing, but if I were you I would have put on my trousers."

Feminism vs. Tobacco.
The kindly spirit which has recently invaded the ranks of an American medical society, converting the male members from truculent entities into gentie and passive members of the members from truculent entities into gentie and passive memories of 'the body politic has been the means of adding another jewel to the much-begemmed crown of American woman-hood, wrested as part payment for victories won in the holy war for supremery. We had hoped that the battle between the sexes would continue indefinitely in these, our democratic United States, if only to add zeet to the monotony of our daily existence, and as an object leason to those benighted Europeans who happen to stray hiltherwards; but with the complete defeat of the male members of the medical society under consideration, on the question whether to amoke or not to smoke in the presence of a half-dozen women members, we must declare that all further fighting be decreed perfectly useless. Without going into the details of the proceedings that led to the annihilation of the smoking privilege sajoyed for years by the male members, remarks Interstate Medical Journal, it would be well to ask why some septent son of Adam did not try, by bland-ishments gentle and diplomatic, to ents gentle and diplomatic, ince one or another "lady" me ber, directly he saw the storm brew-ling, of the many advantages that would accrue to her were she to smoke whilst a paper bordering on in-anity and stupidity was being read? Many a member of our medical seele-ties can youch for a kindly feeling to-ward his fellowmen in similar circum-stances, and granting the truth of this statement, who as an integral part of a medical society, class herself with the male element, and not with her in-ferior sisters, experience the same 4e-lightful sensations. er, directly he saw the storm brew

A Wideawake Kaffir.

That cleverness does not always follow the color line is intimated in a story which comes from London and is told by the News of that city. The tale is to the effect that the head man of a Kaffir tribe in South Africa having bought an American broom observed that several of the stems had seed pods attached. The idea entered his intelligent brain that if those seeds would grow he could raise his own broom corn and perhaps start an important industry. He made the attempt and succeeded, and now has a considerable quantity of broom corn and perhaps start an important industry. He made the attempt and succeeded, and now has a considerable quantity of broom corn and perhaps start an important industry. He made the attempt and succeeded, and now has a considerable quantity of broom corn servator of forests for the colony, and with this official indorsement the case should be established. If a Kaffir makes a whole field of broom corn grow where none grew before and puts his section in the way of getting its own brooms, why is he not a benefactor of high merit? And giving the Kaffir his due, is it not true that there are many white men who would not have had his bright thought or turned it to so good account?

daitimore, Md. — Attorney General Bonaparte, in an Interview given the Washington correspondent of the News, answers the criticisms of Well street by a flat statement that he intends to continue the prosecution of weathy men and corporations that break the laws.

The interview is really a statement carefully prepared by Mr. Bonaparte himself. In part he says:

"I cannot understand how any sensible person could be affected in dealing with matters of business by any remarks which have been attributed to me. I should say that business men ought for wish to have the laws strictly and impartially enforced. If this is done, everybody knows what he can do and what he can't, and everybody has a fair field and no favorites. The department of justice proposes to do precisely this and nothing more. It is required by law to enforce certain forms of action crimes against the United States, and also provide civil remedies for such illegal action.

crimes against the United States, and also provide civil remedies for such illegal action.

Careful Inquiry First.

"The department, since I have been at its head, has never taken proceedings to enforce the laws without a very careful preliminary investigation to determine whether there was good reason to believe that the laws had been, in fact, violated. Moreover, it has consistently and frequently over-looked merely formal violations of law, or offenses attended with trivial consequences, and has invariably refused to intervene in such cases when there was any reason to suspect that its intervention was desired to further private ends.

is After Big Law-Breakers.

"If the ground of complaint sgainst the department is that it proposes to purish prominent and wealthy men or corporations having vast amounts of capital and engaged in very extensive business, when these are shown to have been wilful and persistent law-breakers on a great scale and with grave injury to the purposes of the law, i must admit that these complaints are well founded. That is precisely what the department of justice is trying to do, and, while I remain its very unworthy head, will continue to do, so far as it can."

elump in Wail Street Sends Prices to New Levels.

New York—Distrust of the government's attitude toward the corporations, as threatened monetary stringency in all the leading markets of the world at the financial embarrassment of the Pope Manufacturing company combined to demoralize the stock market Wednesday.

Prices melted in sensational fashion and the average level of declines was below that reached in the memorable Northern Pacific panie of May, 1901.

Stocks were sold lower than ever before in their history. Of the several causes named, the failure of the New Engiand corporation probably excited the greatest amount of apprehension.

During the early session of the market there was no hint of coming storm. In fact, it was not until the failure of the Pope company Became generally known that the list became unsettled. Then the speculators for a decline, encouraged by their successful attacks on prices during the past fortnight, renewed their attacks, concentrating their forces on the Harriman and Hill saucs, Reading, St. Prob. — papers, a American Smetting and the steel atocks. Under vigorous hammering, a great many order to sell to stop losses were uncovered, and, as is usual in times of great excitement, numerous accounts were thrown over and sold for what they would bring.

Of the average proprietary remedy, however, it may truthfully be said that it is distinctly better than the average physicians' preception; for not only is list composition less secret, but it is propared for the proprietor by reputable manufacturing pharmacista in magnificently equipped laboratories and under the supervision and advice of able chemists, competent physicians and skillful pharmacists. It should not be considered strange, therefore, that ag many physicians prefer to prescribe these ready-prepared proprietary remiedies rather than trust those of their own devising.

JUST THE SAME AS CURRENCY.

Reproach Himself with.

William Knoepfel, of St. Louis, has invented and hopes to patent a secret plowing method for the cure of baldness. "A genuine cure for baldness," asid Mr. Knoepfel the other day, should make a man very rich. Why, men grow rich on fake cures. It is amazing, it really is, what fakes some of theae cures are. Yet there's money in them." Mr. Knoepfel gave a loud, scornful laugh. "In their crookedness they-remind me," he said, "of the third son of the oid eccentric. Perhaps you have heard the story? Well, an oid eccentric died and left his fortune equally to his three sons. But the will contained a strange proviso. Each heir was to place $100 in the coffin immediately before the interment. A few days after the interment the three young men met and discussed the queer proviso and its execution. "Well," said the oldest son, "my conscience is clear. I put my hundred in the coffin in clean new notes." My tion. Well, said the oldest son, 'my conscience is clear. I put my hundred in the coffin in clean, new notes.' Surveyor Tells of Experience He Does Not Care to Repeat.

To walk right up to a monster bear and try to shove it out of the way and then escape without so much as a scratch is an experience of a lifetime.
Harry I Engelbright found it so a few days ago in Diamond canyon, above
Washington, says a Nevada City correspondent of the Sacramento Bea.
The young man, son of Congressman Engelbright, has just returned from the upper country, where he has been doing some surveying, and relates his tirilling experience. It was coming on dusk, at the close of the day's work in the brush-lined trall he saw protruding what he thought were the hind quarters of some stray bowine.
He walked up and gave the brute a shove. It came to its haunches with a snort that made his hair rise and caused him to beat a hasty retreat.
The big brute looked around and then shuffled off into the woods. It was ofther asleep-or-eige-so-busy-eating ants from an old log that it failed to hear the young surveyor, whose footsteps were deadened by the thick carpet of pine needles. Later it was searned that the same bear, a monster cinnamon, had killed a dog earlier in the day. The dog ventured too close and with one blow of its paw the big beast sent it hurtling yards away, dead as a doornail.

Magnifying Choir Leader's Voice, in the old village of Braybrook in Northamptonshire, England, is a mohster tumpet, five als inches in length, and having a bell-shaped end two feet one inch in diameter. The trumpet is made up-of-ten rings, which in turn are made up-of-smaller parts. The use of this trumpet—only four of the kind are known to exist at the present day—was to magnify the voice of the leader in the choir and summon the people to the church service. At the present time neither the choir nor the aervice is in need of this extraordinary "musical-instrument," but the vicar of the church takes care of the ancient relic and is fond of showing it to all visitors.

Recorder's Popularity Contest!

La Jamestown Exposition.

They are to be selected by the readers of the Recorder in a Popularity Voting Contest. The two receiving the highest number of votes cast will be taken from Burlington to Jamestown and their transportation, hotel bill and admission to the Exposition paid by the Recorder. The trip will consume at least ten days. The editor and his wife will be the chaperones. The date for the trip will be announced later.

Each dollar paid on subscription, either as a renewal, back subscription or new subscribtion, will entitle the party paying the same to 1,000 votes, and for fractions of a dollar will entitle to votes in the same proportion. The result will be published from week to week during the contest.

Each ballot cut from the Recorder will be good for 10 votes, provided it is signed by the party voting and received at this office uot later than 10 days after its date.

Each dollar paid on job work will be entitled to 500 votes.

Each dollar paid on job work will be entitled to 500 votes.

A ballot box has been secured and locked, and the keys will remain in the possession of County Clerk B. W. Adams, Atorney Sidney Gaines and Dudley Rouse, who will count and certify the result of each week's ballot, between the hours of 1 and 3 p. m., on Tuesday of each week. Ballots received after 1 p. m. on Tuesday will not enter into the count until the next week. The contest will be conducted in a manner perfectly fair to all parties concerned.

The Republicans opened the State campaign at Maysville, last Monday, Mr. Wilson; candidate for Governor being the principal speaker. The Democrats will open their campaign on the 31st inst.

The opposition to Hon. Augustes E. Wilson, Republican nominee for governor of Kentucky, in his own party, cannot be prevailed upon to forget his bolting of the Republican ticket in Louisville in 1897, and aiding in the defeat of Dr. Hunter. the gum shoe statesman, for the United States Senate. This is a handicap that will cut considerable ice with the old line Republicans who believe in supporting party nominees under all circumstances.

Power of the Country Press.

"The country paper is effecting greater things in legislation than are the country conventions," says a recent writer on the rural press, and he quotes in support of his position the following statement from a middle-west congressman. The power of the country press in Washington surprises me. During my two terms I have been impressed with it constantly. I doubt if there is a single calm utterance in any paper in the United States that does not carry some weight in Washington among the members of Congress. You might think that what some little country editor says does not amount to anything, but it means a great deal more than most people realize. When the country editor, who is looking after nothing but the country printing gives expression to some rational idea about a national question, the man off here in Congress knows that it comes from the grass roots. The lobby, the big-railroad lawyers, and that class of people, realize the power of the press, but they hate it. I have heard them talk about it and shake their heads and say: "Too much power there!" The press is more powerful than money.

The writer goes on to empinatize the power of the rural press thus: The smallest editorial paragraph tells the politician of the condition in that paper's community, for he knows approximately who that leader is. So the country editor often exerts a power of which he knows little.

The stacks of country weeklies which may be seen on the desks of congressmen attest the truth of this tribute to the power of the country press. It represents the constituency to which the representative should be true and to whose interests he should be I alert and faithful. It registers its sentiment and indicates the crise and fail of the politician stock of the representative should be true and to whose interests he should be I alert and faithful. It registers its entiment and indicates the crise and fail of the politician stock of the representative should be true and to whose interests he should be I alert and faithful. It registers

A Hair Dressing

Nearly every one likes a fine hair dressing. Something to make the hair more manageable; to keep it from being too rough, or from splitting at the ends. Something, too, that will feed the hair at the same time, a regular hair-food. Well-fedhair will bestrong, and will remain where it belongs on the head, not on the comb!

N a trying situation. His soul was vexed within him, until it almost seemed as though he would go mad Here had come the appeal, or rather order from Achish, the Philiatine king, who had befriended him in his hour of need and had given him Ziking as a possession, asking that David and his men join him in an expedition against Israel. And what could he do? He dare not refuse—He dare not agriculture against his own country men. But what could he do? He dare not refuse—He dare not agree against his own country men. But what could he do? He dare not refuse—He dare not agree against his own country men. But what could he do? and he lifted his eyes to the heavens, bright with their myriad stars, and a groon established from his anguished sout. He was ting alone in the darkness striving to find some way out of his dilemma on the morrow they were to go forth, and he had given his promise. to Achish hat he would stand with him, but he had hot dared to tell his men as yet, for he feared that they would not receive the commission kindly. He recalled with troubled conclence how a few months before, when he had gone out and destroyed the Geshurites and the Amalektus to to south of Judah, that he had believe that it was against his own country men he had now Achish, making him believe that it was against his own country men he had now Achish was going to prove his loyalty to him. All aight one David struggled with the problem, but with the coming of the David.

"No," responded David, "we shall have need of all our men this day."

And so, in obedience to the command of their leader, David's men marched forth. And David said within his heart, as he grimly marched on and on towards his own beloved land:

and on towards his own beloved land:

"God will provide a way of scenpe. Surely, he will not suffer my hand to be lifted against my brethren and against the Lord's anointed. Surely swhen my hand has been stayed from taking the life of my enemy heretofore, it will not fail now as the ally of these ungody Philistines."

The day wore on and at Aphek the armies of the Philistines went into tamp, while in the distance could be seen the hosts of Israel preparing the battle front. How David's heart smole him as he looked upon the scene, and how an agony of preyer rose to God for help. His meditation was interrupted by the coming of Achish, who appeared greatly froubled, and with many words of apology and assurances as to his faith—the Javid of the dissatisfaction of the Philistine lords at the presence of David and his men, and asked that they depart and return to Ziklag.

David was too willy to reveal his True state of mind to Achish, and he left the latter to believe that he left deeply grieved that the was not permitted to serve with the Philistine army, but as he and his men took up the return march the next morning it was with lighter heart than he had had as he had come thither. Lighter heart? Yes. But there was the deep unxiety he feit as to the fate of his brethren in Israel. How would the battle go? He was almost the present of apprehension the men pressed for ward with quickened steps and soon came upon the smouldering ruins of the city which they had left in such seeming sccurity the day before.

After the first outburst of angulah, for every man mourned the loss of loved ones, they turned upon David with savege reproaches. See what he had brought upon them. Had they not counseld that part of the men be left behind? This was the judgment of God against them for having presumed to go out against their breth-ren.

And was not David responsible for it all? The angry storm grew, until some of the more violent actually took up stones to hurl at their leader. It was then that the splendid and heroic character of David stood forth. "Stone me if you must," he cried, facing them without a tremor. "God knows that the intention of my heart was right. I have siftered with you in this hour of need, let us not fight each other. Rather let us look to God. He will guide us."

The hands which held the stones so menacingly above his head were lowered and Ablathar, the priest, seizing the opportunity-came forward with the ephod and inquiry was made of the Lord, and the Lord answered David and told him that he should pursue after the Amalekites and recover all.

The taking up of the pursuit of those who had burned Zikiag abruptiy ended all talk of going up to the aid of the armies of israel, and David found a welcome relief from his anxious, troubled thoughts in the swift, hard journey. In accordance with hard journey. In accordance with hard was favored with complete success, and the next day found them all back at Zikiag—wives, children and possessions, together with much spoil which they had taken from their enemies.

As David sat before his tent door than hight he could not help but contrast his reelings with those which had filled his heart only a few nighte before when he bad given his promise to go out and fight with the armies of the Philistines against tarsel.

"And now, instead, I have rich spoil with which to seed my brethren an offering," he exclaimed. "How wonderfully God has wrought good out of seeming evil. How wonderfully he has delivered his servant from a snare that would have swallowed him up utterly. But I wonder how went the battie?" and he arose and called his servant and sent him to seek ridings. But It was not until the second day after that behold a man came out of the camp from Saui, with head, and so the crown and bracelet from off the king's head and arm."

Music.

A man may know no more of music, technically, than a dog does of a cologne-tinetured bath, but his soul yearns for it and his heart is touched by sweet harmonies. The farmer's hired man has his mouth-organ, and occasionally, his fiddle. Almost every home in the land has some musical instrument in it, from a jew's-harp to a grand plano. We are told the man who has no music in him, who is not stirred by the concord of sweet sounds, is fit for strategies and things of evil. In the city, the Italian with his music box is the chief delight of the children who dance upon the payment to his air. There is music, good, bad and indifferent, from the master's down to the ragdime producers that thumplively in "emporiums" and beer salcons.

But not all the worshippers of Apolio love made music best. This is especially true of the country folks, who, happily, are hetter situated to appreciate the music of nature. They hear greater rhapsodies than ever Wagner. Of Chople, or Listst have produced. Theirs is the vast music hall of strains skin to God. They list the harmoniss of sublime wings, the heart music of the apheres. They hear the murmurs of the apheres. They hear the murmur of the habbling brook crooning to the daisies, the rustie of the leaves, the rescendees of the wind, the sighing of the reed, the gushing of a rill, the rose-lipped shell that numums of the eternal sea, the birds that sing of matin joys, trees that sigh for monarch brothers rared, the wavy whirting of the grain, the silken rustle of the corn, the grand roaring of the occan—all these are beautiful to one who understands. It is only the music and one through Tara's halls the soul of music shed."

Anne-Josephe Rubay, says the London Daity Graphic, and she will reach her one bunded and second birthday on July 28. Her memory is still perfectly clear as to the Incident. Napoleon had established his quarters close to the littic farm where she and her mother were stone. Her parents had burled their little stock of money and valuables in the ground, and in the morning the emperor came out and took up his position close to the spot. Fearing that he might discover the hiding place, the farmer's wife to distract his attention, took her head in both hands and pretended to be suffering from tootbache.

This attracted the emperor's attention, and coming over to the woman, he told her not to be arised, but aded that as the bastle was shout to be fought, she should betake herself and her little fairl to a place of safety. He then turned to the little Anne-Josephe, and, patting her on her cheeks, told her to be "as good little girl and take care of her mother."

Encouraged by his kindness, the farmer's wife told the emperor that her brother had served in one of his dragoon regiments but had not been heard of for several years. On ascertaining the name of the regiment Napoleon replied that it was one of those that had suffered most during the retreat form Russia, but he would have inquiries made. ### TALKED WITH GREAT EMPEROR. TO PRESERVE CURED MEATS.

Any farmer who has been annoyed by files which get at his cured meate will do well to make use of Borux. By following the directions given below he will easily rid hirowally rid hirowally rid hirowally aprinkle all the cut sides with Borax. Bub the Borax into the from the sait preparatory to smoking, thoroughly sprinkle all the cut sides with Borax. Bub the Borax into the crevices. After doing this a fly will never touch it and you will have no trouble with bugs or skippers. Meat treated in this way need not be can vassed or sacked.

Mesars. Geo. W. Hill & Company, of Covington, Kentucky, have introduced this method among hundreds of farmers in borthera Kentucky with uniform success. They write us that they have some three year cold hams in their warrerooms that were treated as above and that they are as bright and nice to-day as when first cured.

When you wish to use your meats it is cutly necessary; to wash them off. The Borax is perfectly harmless. This was established in the pure food hearings before Seeasor Wm. E. Mason in 1899.

rm in the Penitentiary for Head of Trust Would Make for Genuine Reform—President Wil-son's Visws.

All the national trust busting and railroad regulation has not reduced the price of trust goods, or of railroad transportation, although the administration lakes credit for being the great corporation regulator. So much great corporation regulator. So much the great corporation regulator. So much concept the management and control of corporations by the federal government. The railroad magnates have very promptly failen in with this plan, for they no doubt think it is easier and less expensive to deal with a Republican congress than with 4s asparate state legislatures. But the separate state legislatures. But the people seem to view the matter in a different light and have insisted that the legislatures of their states pass stringent legislation to control and punish the corporations which are plundering them, and the legislators have responded to the demand and lower railroad rates and imprisonment for trust magnates have resulted.

have responded to the demand and lower railroad rates and imprisonment for trust magnates have resulted.

Fining a trust or corporation, even a comparatively large sum, has proven quile inadequate a punishment to prevent the repetition of their lilegal doings, and in the end the customers of the corporations—which is really everyone—have to pay the fines by increased prices for their products, so the national legislation has proven to be a barren identity as far as the people are concerned. So surely has this lack of real punishment for exortiant charges and illegal-combinations been exhibited in interstate commerce that it has been a constant wonder that our boastful sidminative that it is a superior of the antitrust law.

In a recent address by President Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton university, he called attention to the lack of enforcement of the criminal law against the law breakers when he declared: "One really responsible man in lail, one real originator of the schemes and transactions which are contrary to the public interest legally lodged in the penitentary, would be worth more than a thousand corporations muleted in fines, if the reform is to be genuine and permanent." Dr. Wilson is an old-fashloned Democrat, which accounts for his desire to see the law enforced impartially and not the continuation of the travesty upon justice which the president of the United States seems to think is all that is necessary to make the people believe they are being protected and to allow him to hoast that overyone is getting a square deal.

If Rockefeller and Rogers, the Standard Oil magnates, and Baer of the coal trust, and Frick of the steel trust, and lawemeyer the sugar king, and Armour and Swift of the beef trust, and Duke of the tobacco trust, not to mention the hundreds of others, were in stripes for a term commensurate with their illegal plundering of a patient people, does anyone believe they and others would continue to extort their present high prices or maintain an illegal monopoly with the constant fear of like further punishment?

Then if the tariff was revised to a revenue basis, so that competition money power, and yet the money power controls the trusts and the railroads and is the power behind the throne of all the monopolitas? The secretaries of the treasury appointed by Mr. Roosevelt have all given the Wall street financiers everything they have demanded and this action has been endorsed by him. Secretary Shaw feil all over himself to do the bidding of the Wall street bankers and Secretary Cortelyon, who found means to fry the fat out of the fremated financiers in the last campaign. Is following in Shaw's footsteps.

Republicans Will Not Revise Teriff.

All the talk that "the tariff will be revised by its friends" is superfluous, for it is evident that the standous, for it is evident that the standous, for it is evident that the standous for the monopolists postpones tariff revision at least until after the next national election, and until 1910 and probably longer, unless the Democrate are successful, when a special session of congress would be called soon after March 4, 1908. Those who feel the pressure of the trust high prices and feel that the cost of living is unduly burdehooms, should reflect on how they are ly the hands of the monopoly and stand-pat Republican congress.

CRAZY PROTECTIONISTS.

Yould Add Fifty Per Cent to Pro

rates that the Republicans are tailing of imposing is a system copled from the Enropean nations, like Germany and France, that are always fighting each other. It is retailation pure and simple, for such a tariff notifies the world that unless special advantages are given for the sale of the products of the country imposing such a tariff that the maximum rates will be exacted. These highest rates of duty are, of course, placed so high that they are prohibitive on such products as the country imposing them can produce enough of to supply the wants of its own people. Competition in such products is thus abolished and very naturally the prices are advanced to all the plundered consumers can afford to pay.

The proposition is now being discussed here in ardent-protectionism quarters to adopt excessive maximum rates, and the San Francisco Chronicle goes so far as to say that, "our executive and congress." have been "lost to all considerations of national identity and but for this molipoddle upirit a bill would have been peased providing. "That the products of all countries should continue to be admitted to our ports on equal terms, except that in case any country should discriminate against our products either with or without consideration, all products of those countries should pay 50 per cent more than regular rates." The American Economist, the subsidized organ of the tariff protected trusts and monopolists, endorses this 50 per cent addition to the present high tariff as maximum tariff rates, so that it may be taken as certain that this high tariff mania is to be persisted in as far as the Pisand-patter Republican are concerned.

Fancy, adding 50 per cent to the present enormous profits of the other trusts. Is not this protectionism gone mad? And yet that may be the outcome if the Republican party is allowed to elect the next president and the next congress.

elect the next president and the next congress.

Judge Parker's Timely Warning. The address of Judge Alton B. Parker before the North Carolina Bar association on July 11 clearly indicated that the common law principles can solve every problem in civil life if permitted to do so, and that the centralization of power in the federal government which is now being attempted will destroy the local authority of the states. "The campaige against the governmental plan of the fathers is on," and Judge Parker, and has been for several years. It has for its leaded me most accomplished politician of our history. Behind him and backing him stand these great corporations of the country, which are engaged in interstate commerce and insurance. Their reason is that it is easier to deal with one government than with many."

The corruption fund of the life insurance companies which the Republican campaign managers, Corteiyou and Bliss, solicited and received; the acknowledged request of President Rooseveit to the railroad magnate Harriman that he collect more campaign funds which the president Rooseveit to the railroad magnate Harriman that he collect more campaign funds which the president declared were needed in New York, were no doubt in the mind of Judge Parker, when he now charges that the president is backed by the great corporations of the country in his effort to centralize their control in the general government and thus release the railroads and trusts from state laws. As the charge of Judge Parker, before the election of 1904, that the corporations had contributed large sums to the Roosevelt campaign, has been fully verified by later official disclosures, although denied by President Roosevelt; there can be no doubt that the proof will be forthcoming in due time of the present connection between the corporations and the president.

president.

Alton B. Parker, the honest and fearless judge, was denied the presidency by the people, but those voters who supported him must now feel more proud of their position, than those who voted for the winning candidate.

The Only Solution.

Let us not be deceived; we are going to have trusts and monopolles until we begin to tap the sources of their power—until we begin to fight them with the only effective means—that is real competition. As long as prohibitive tariffs exist men can organize, completely to control the home market in such a way as to exact from the public the last penny that the "protection" permits. Reduce the tariff from robber figures to reasonable rates and the monstrous exactions of the principal trusts and monopolies will instantly vanish and the tap-roots of these unholy parasites of industry and commerce would be cut,—Indianapolis News.

They would cause her to be broken in her rest, and sometimes ahe would cry until she was tired out. I had heard of so many cures by the Cutteura Remedies that I thought I would give them a trial. The improvement was noticeable in a few hours, and before I had used one box of the Cutteura Olintment her feet were well and have never tronbled her since. I also used it to remove what is known as 'cradic eap' from her head, and it worked like a charm, as it cleaned and healed the sealp at the same time. ### The Limit of Life

The Limit of Life.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that the generally accepted limitation of human life is many years be advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period, that determines its duration, seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to long-evity. Insane, in Dannemore, stood off their squards, while others made a desperate attempt to force an exit from the building.

Not until one of the madmen had been shut, and killed and the guards reenforced by less violent immates and villagers was the outbreak suppressed and the patients again locked in their rooms. Two large dormitorles were wrecked, windows smashed, iron gratings were bent and walle damaged, where an effort to wreck the iron bars from fastenings had been made. The dead man was lessac Dubois, who had been at the hospital only a short time. Convicted of grand farceny in the second dogree, he was subsequently or dered to the state hospital.

The outbreak was planned with great cunning and carried out with reckless boldness. All had been distribution, when at exactly 30 colock, and without any notice or signal having been given, almost all of the immates, who had been lined up for retiring, rushed into two of the big dormitorles and slammed in the faces of the surprised guards, who rushed after them. The madmen barricaded the doors with beds and other furniture, and began a fierce assault on the barred windows, evidently hoping to force all at once, and thus obtain an easy avenue of excapt. A number of the less violently insane offered their assistance the keepers and were enlisted.

It was impossible to force the doors, and guards were sationed at all the contide windows and ordered to should be seen. But the insane rioters all the windows where directed at all the windows where the petiters could be seen. But the linear could be seen. But the linear could be seen.

at arms or hands appearing through the windows, but not (to kill, save in case of absolute necessity. All of the fire hose was then connected and heavy streams of water directed at all the windows where the patients could be seen. But the insane rioters put mattresses at the stonework in which the bars are fixed, all the while shouting and shricking. Above the turnuit, however, could be heard the furious pounding of the iron bed posts wielded by inmates, who also had a heavy chisel and sledge hammer. Serval shots were fired by the guard, but it was impossible to tell whether they were effective until the riot was quelled, when it was discovered that isaac Dubois had been shot and killed, probably instantly. The town people and guards from the prison-were attracted by a terrific noise, and assisted materially, when, at 11 o'clock, the wardens made a series of assaults and finally-forced the doors and overpowered the rioters. This is the first and only outbreak of any sort since the opening of the hospital in 1990.

Turned By the Auto That Killed Merrill and His Chauffeur.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 26.—W. Waldo Merrill, member of a distinguished family and himself a wealthy stockbroker of Boston, with his chauffeur, Eric Landstrom, met instant deathmear Sanderstown, when his big touring car crashed down a steep hill and turned a complete somersault, alighting on top of its helpless passengers.
In the party were Mrs. Merrill and Mrs. Frederick Milliken and Miss Millken, of Milton, Mass., all of whom were buried beneath the car, but, with the exception of Misse Rita Milliken, escaped with a bad shaking up. The firl suitained a fractured wrist, and the living members of the party were rescued from their dangerous position by P. F. Collier, of New York, who arived a moment after the wreck and directed the members of his party in the work of rescue. The jamming of sitefling gear of the big motor was the cause of the week, which took place while the machine was running a fitty-mile-an-hour gait. Milter and the chauffeur, who were in the front

The halloons to be used during the week of September 16th at Louisville are exactly the same also. They will be released simultaneously, and will ascend to a height that takes them into an air current, when the risco will begin. Ballasts of sand and the skill of the operator will decide the contest. For a time, the balloons will naturally be "nock and neck," as it was, then the operator, who is most familiar with aff currents, and the manipulation of the ballasts, will selected in forging ahead of his opponent.

At any rate, the race should prove as exciting as—a speed contest on Mother Earth.

Only Nighest Class Amusements.

For the past ten or twelve years, or since the Columbian Brossition at Chicago in 1893, street caraival companies have fairly overrue avery community in the United States. They could be found upon the slightest provocation at the street fair, county fair and even at some state fairs.

Believing that the public is surfeited with shows of this character, that is, a cheap attraction which barely escapes being a fake, the State Board of Agriculture, under whose amplices the Kentucky State Kais, will be given in Louisville, September 10th twy-2st, is closing contracts for big amusement features only, and is making no deals with carnival companies. It is sending direct to the great amusement resorts of the country the chairman of the amusement committee, Mr. Plink Vable, giving him authority to get the very best.

The railroads in Kentucky have made a rate of one fare plus twenty five cents for the round trip to Louisville on account of the Kentucky State Fair, September 16th to 31st. Tickets will go on saie Saturday. September 16th, and will be good returnate until Monday following the fair, September 23d. The rate in Indiana will not be one fare on account of the regular rate being two cedus as it is in Kentucky; however, low rates will apply from points in Indiana.

The State Fale management has closed a contract with Paynes-Pyroteenic Co. for a reproduction of the Eruptico of Yessurius during the big exhibition at Louisville. September 75-21. This some of the greatest fire work spectacles ever produced in the United States. It is expected to prove a big attraction.

ice Brewer Seems to Look at cents Through a Glass Tinged with Corporation Colors— Democratic Position.

Judge Brewer of the supreme court has taken time by the forelock and has decided against the reduction of railroad rates in advance of the appeal of the railroads reaching the supreme court. In an address at Milwarke's before the annual meeting of the agents of the Northwestern Mutual Insurance company he said.

"There is much said about the railroads. It is a popular practice to say that they are very wicked; for instance, like life insurance companies. There has been a great deal of wrong, such as granting of special ravors, the special ravors of the railroads as a whole, there is not a fair return on the money invested. The attempt to squeeze those who built up the railroads, and though them the country, in not right. The men who invested their money are entitled to a reasonable rate of interest.

But, Judge Brewer's conclusions are not justified by the facts given by the last report (1905), of the interest commerce commission. On page 78 of that official report will be found the statement that, as the resuit of that year's operations of all the railroads there was a surplus of $89,043,99, after paying all interest and dividends, being an interease of $32,314,159 as compared with the previous year. And the report adds that:

"This steady, constant surplus from operation since 1898 is evidence of the continued prosperity which attends the operations of railroad prosperity. As the grow and other face are earling steady on the average are making mich more than enough to pay reasonable dividends.

The Union Pacific, for instance, declared a dividend of the railroads may only the earling s

Our exports of breadstuffs, meat and dairy products, catther bogs, sheep, and mineral oil have failed off over $30,000,000 during the ten months ending April. The export of cotton, however, has increased $84,000,000 during the same period. Surely cotton in king and has saved us from a greater drain of sold thas the decrease of our other exports would have undoubtedly produced to pay for the increased cost of commodities, both of export and import, has so greatly added to the total smount in others are not so greatly added to the total smount in others are not produced to pay for the increased cost of commodities, both of export and import, has been greatly added to the total smount in others are in population. Yet the increased in population. Yet the increased total amount in dollars und not in quantity is paraded by the administration as pointing to increased prosperity.

If it were not for the enormous increased in the export of cotton, which is entirely a matter of free trade, for the producers of this great production of the southern states are entirely unprotected by the tariff, we should be debtors to Europe for near entirely unprotected by the tariff, we should be debtors to Europe for near entirely one, one of the southern states are entirely unprotected by the tariff, we should be debtors to Europe for near entirely one, one of the tariff of the cotton grower is an unanswerable argument against the principle that competition must be eliminated by prohibitive tastiff duties to bring prosperity to the producers. If the cotton growers and all other agriculturalists had not been hampered and plundered by the high prices of the tariff protection suffices of the tariff protection would have been much cheaper. The protected wheat grower has sold his crop for a very low price during the past trust high prices for what he has bought. Now, when the wheat is mostly out of the farmers hands, the price has advanced, not on account of tariff profection, but because of speculative process. As the average increase in

Farmers' Institute.

Arrangements for the Farmers Institute to be held in Burlington Monday and Tuesday, Sep-Institute to be held in Burlington on Monday and Tuesday, September 9th and 10, should be begun at once. These Institutes are of great value to farmers and they should give them their support. The time has come in this part of the country when haphazard farming has to be succeeded by up-to-date methods, and to introduce these methods is the aim and purpose of the Institute which is maintained by the State. The best of lecturers will be on hand and the average farmer can learn much from them.

SERMONETTE.

David's success brought with it no bitterness of regret over the means by which that success had been won. Had David purchased success at the compromise of principle, or the commission of crime, it would have cast a cloud upon his life which would have overshadowed him to the very grave itself.

It was a long time from the anointing at Bethlehem until the crowning at Hebron. But the God who promises at Bethlehem is the God who can keep through the vicils situdes of the years and can fulfill to the minutes detail his spoken word. The man who is willing to take only the success which God gives is the man into whose hands. God crammits his most Im, portant trusts.

God gives is the man into whose hands. God commits his most im, portant trusts.

David's chief, adviser was the Heavenly Friend whose wisdom is above man's wisdom, and whose faithfulness never slack-is above man's wisdom, and whose falthfulness never slackens. How often in the chapters before us we find the statement that David inquired of the Lord as to the course he should pursue. Eyen this man of affairs with the discipline of the years upon him dare not trust to his own wisdom. He must seek the Divine guidance, by which alone he could walk in the straight path which would deliver him from the snares of the enemy and establish him in the kingdom which so long before head been promised to him. In all of his tribulations and adversities David was the chierful optimist whose vision was from above even while his feet walked the uncertain pathways of the world. We may not all be called to kingdoms, but we may all have the privilege of the Divine guidance and the consolousness that God's presence is with us, be the place we fill ever-so humble.

THE STORY.

THE STORY.

A FTER the ocean tempest come the subduced winds and the subsiding waves; the heavens stretch blue and beautiful from borizon, and the golden sunshine fills all the balmy air. But along the rock-bound shore the wreckage lies in mad confusion a sad reminder of the atom of the night before. There in mute protest to Nature's friendly mood are the torn and shattered timbers of the noble ship which has goen down into the merciless maw of the mighty waters. There strew, along the beach is the water-oaked-cargo, and from beneath the confusion of niled wreckage appears the hand, the foot, the buttered head of some hapless victim. Nature so peaceful and reassuring, and yet bring. peaceful and reassuring, and yet bring ing but poor comfort to the hear which contemplates the ruin before

It. So was it in Israel. The storm of battle has passed: the clash of arms is stilled, the thunder of rushing war charjots and the mad cries of multi-ludes of men joined in feath struggle have died away, and those who have not fallen in battle have scattered to their homes while the victorious army of the Philistines laden with plunder has, returned home again.—The sky is blue as before, the aun cheery and warm.—the breezes laden with perfumé from the flowering fields, and the birds, unconscious of the tragcheery and warm the breezes laden with perfume from the flowering fields, and the birds, unconscious of the tragically for the first off of the first of the King and his sons siain, and of the mourning in many a houge in larasel whither the father, and the son, the sweetheart and brother would never more return —pouring out their little souls in glad melody, but in the hearts of the people a note of deep anguish and anxious foreboding. Oh, the sgony of those days, weeping for the lost and fearing for the living. With blanched cheeks and trembling lips the people talked together of the tragic end of King Saul and bis sons, of the mutilation of their bodies, of their hanging from the walls of Beth-shan, a ghastly trophy of the fortunes of war, of the placing of the king's armor in, the one other bloody details of the terrible battle the people talked, and wondered what further misfortune awaited the nation.

With Saul and bis three sons dead, who was there to lead the nation? Confusion and uncertainty sprewalled. Even Abner the leader, of the hosts of larael was apparently unable to railly his forces and suggest some plan of action. The people were as sheep without a shepherd. So for days and weeks the disorder and confusion continued, even as far south as in the land of Judah. And there the attiring reports of the battle with its ill consequences to Israel were repeated over and over again, and the same questions stirred the hearts of the people as to who now would lead them as troublet the horther tribes. In the spiff of much depression the elders of Judah came together to consider the situation, meeting secretly in one of the little obscure towns lost if they assembled at Hebron, their chief city, news of the meeting might reach the east of the Philliatines and stir them to immediate attack.

It was but natural that the first thought should be of David, and some the meeting might reach the ears of the Philistines and sitr them to immediate attack.

It was but natural that the first thought should be of David, and some were for an immediate sending of a messenger to him inviting his return to Judah, but just as they were about to do so a runner-brought tidings that David had joined his forces with those of Achish, the Philistine king, and had hared in the recent battle which had resulted so disagtrously to the army of Israel.

"What, David #501 against his prethren in larsel?" the elders #51 claimed.

"Yes," replied the messenger. "Thou knowest how he has been dwelling in the land of the Philistines for now these many months, and boyk King Achisb gave him Ziklag in which to dwell. And A bish made league with him and trusted him as he might a brother, so that when he gathered his armies to go out against the armies of Israel he took David and his men slong."

A long painful silence followed this les of Israel. he took David and his men along."

A long painful silence followed this disconcerting—news. Whither, now, indeed, would Judah turn. David had failed them. Now that he had takenup arms against his own countrymen there could never more be place for him in Judah. And with even greater depression than before the olders departed to their homes.

But the next day strange things had happened in Judah. The elders sent messengers to each other with the query:

happened in Judah. The elders sent messengers to each other with the query:

"Hath David sent aught to thee? Bebold, when I arrived found there awaiting me's goodly portion of the spoll which David-had sent with loyal greefings. What thinkest thou concerning it?"

It can be imagined what surprise and astonishment such tidings brought to each of the elders and hastily they reassembled early op, the following day to consider the matter. Then it was that the full detaits of David's return to Ziklag, his pursuit of the sneamy which had burned his city and carried off the women and children, and of his recovery of everything which had been taken, were made known and children, and of his recovery of everything which had been taken, were made known and children, and of his recovery of everything which had been taken, were made known and children and of his recovery of everything which had been taken, were made known as a samme to the other, their depression giving place to the loy of a new hope.
"Let us send greetings at once to new nope.

"Let us send greetings at once to David, and invite him to return," eagerly suggested one.

"But who is there who will dare go into the land of the Pbillstines to carry him word. If the coming of such messenger reaches the ears of, the Phillstines, I fear it will go hard with David, and may bring the Philistine armies down upon us," spoke up another cautiously.

Then followed an earnest discussion which was auddenly interrupted by the entrance of a breathless runner who exclaimed as soon as he was able to recover the power of speech:
"David! Hebron!"

"What's that you easily fairly shoutable to recover the power of speech: "David! Hebron!"

"What's that you say?" fairly shouted the elders, so excited were they. "David has come to Hebron?"

The messenger nodded his head in assent, and added:

"Yea, and he bath brought all his mes and all his substance, and his wives and all whatsoever he hath."
"Then let us so up to Hebron and there anoint him as our king. Signely God has looked down upon us in our distress, and bath sent a deliverer."
And so it was that the men of Judah came and there they anointed David king over the house of Judah.

Noveity in Entertainments.

A Paris paper says that on every Sunday Mrs. MacKay receives her friends in a sectuded corner of the Latin quarter's most famous park in Paris. The refreshments at these entertalaments are supplied by passing vendors, such as old women who sell tempting raisin cake and other like daintes. The paper adds to this account, which, whether or not authentic, is pleasant to believe; that these novel little affairs have been most successful and are a great relief after more formal entertainments.

Natural Soap Baths.

Natural Soap baths are not an unmixed foleasing. The curious soap spring that forms a wonder of a village far Timor. East indian islands, consists of a small elevated mud cone, from which hubbles up water heavily charged with alkail and radiun; the discharge giving the appearance of a miniature volcano. A disadvantage of such a washing place is that vegetation is ruined for miles around.

Fairs—international, national, state, county and municipal—have been right almost since civilisation and its beginning, and passing years have not only not dimmed their light but have served to make it more brilliant. At no time perhaps in the history of Kentucky have there been so many county fairs as have been beld or will be held in the state during 1997. The number has grown to more than fifty. These county fairs serve to draw all classes closer-together and it is fitting that they should form the spokes of the big bab which is known as the Kentacky State Fair.

The State Board of Agriculture, early in maturing the plans for this years exhibition, which will be held in Louisville, September 16 to 21, arranged to have carried with them catalogues of exhibits and premiums, and attractive advertising matter. LIKE TRADE SCHOOLS IDEA.

oint in Which Europeans Co

When Mr. Alfred Mosely last year sont 200 teachers to the United States to study the American public school system his main object was to gain information on which to found the secessary reforms in-the schools of England. It appears now that the observations made by the teacher; commission abroad will benefit all Europe.

observations made by the teacher commission should will benefit all Europe.

The opinions expressed by the British teachers on their return are being reflected in educational papers throughout Germany. Attartis—and Francs. In Germany the discussion of the problems has already caused the school boards to take steps for the introduction of important innovations. While the general educational soheme followed by American schools is heartly applicated, German pedagogues join their British colleagues in their criticism of two very important points—namely, the employment of female teachers in boys' classes and the absence of technical training, in which France leads, with Germany a close second.

"But for the want of trade 'high schools' the American public school might be called perfect," says one suthority.

Herr Ullmann, of Berlin, provincial school director, remarks: "In the prevailing conditions 'trade schools' are an absolute necessity. Our boys, cannot all become prefessional men, and many branches of commerce and industry are as especialised that training is absolutely necessary to gain success. Unless we provide this training our schools will turn out a lot of Idiers and 'lacks of all trades,' who have no future unless weathy parents can stake money in some venture."

Stockings and Mosquitoes.

A somewhar remarkable discovery as to the habits of mosquitoes has been made by an officer's wife at an army post who told about it the other-evening, when some men visitors wearing low shoes and black hose were slapping their, shins. "If you were here long you would notice," she said, "that every woman around here wears white hose. It isn't because it is the nashon, but because posquitoes rarely bite through white stockings. We learned that in the affect of the said. The said was the said with the Philippines. Black hose seem to attract these posts. There is something about white that repris them. Tell your, women tolks that when they visit an army post in meaquito time and expect to be out of doors to be arre to put on white stockings. It will save them a good desi of anoyanco. A woman rubbing her ankles together because of the misory of meaquito bites is not allogether attractive."

Proposed Scotch Canal.

An old plan for a ship canal across the narrowest part of Scotlingh has been revived and is being pushed by business interests of Edinburgh and Glasgow. Glasgow has one plan for cutting the canal at a cost of $40,000,000. Edinburgh has another which is estimated to call for an expenditure of $85,000,000. Originally it was suggested that the existing Forth and Clyde barse canal -should be enlarged and made into a titial canal without locks at a cost of $470,000,000. As yet the cost has barred progress, but the canal would be of very great value to commerce and so, it is expected to become a reality in time.

Day of the Common Man

N contrast to the holiday of labor as celebrated in Europe on the first of May, is a pagecful family day, is a pagecful family day, is a pagecful family day, in Europe workingmen and trates of their fights, and the first of May by made the occasion of demonstrations of a political nature often ending in bloodehed and always exetting apprehensions among lovers of tranquality. In America the day is merely an opportunity for workingmen to prolong their weekly holiday from Saturday noon to Tueaday morning. Coming midway between independence day and Thanksgiving day it is an agreeable break in the continuity of work. There is a little parading, but all the organizations of workingmen take part in that. Picnics and apports, family gatherings, and amusements of young people are the features of the day.

Labor no longer has to assert itself to have its rights and its dignity recognized. It is of more value to the older workman to have a day off with its family or to the young workman to have a day with the people of his own age than to spend the day noisily in insisting upon rights which nobody disputes and in displaying a numerical strength which can be exercised

In the Bond of Toil

BE MARTIN'S philosophy, "You can't lay off Labor day mless yer a workin mam," has much in it. Labor day is one of those observances that fulfills its name. Its spirit is a recognition of labor in the sense of manual work, the cause of those that in ordinary course make a living by toll; it is the union of all, whether calbed—speaking broadly to the muture of the case—of having their toll fruitful enough to relieve them from steady application. So it speaks to and stands for the great mass of men as they have heen since society was organized, and as they will be while it lasts. In this sense it does not stand strictly for those that work no less exactingly but that are not classed as laboring memass Mr. Martin scutely notes. But it stands for them in a sense—the sense in which it recognizes the solidarity of all work. President Castro's Conceit.

Many stories have been told of Cipriano Castro, president of Venezuela, and of his monumental conceit. During the Russo-Inpanese war the fall of Port Arthur was being explained to him.

"Pshaw!" he exclaimed. "With 500 Venezuelans I could have taken it in four days."

"With a thousand, in one day, your excellency," said the diplomatic representative of a European power.

Castro was no pleased at what was intended to be surcasm that, it is said the diplomate succeeded next day in securing satisfaction of a claim that his covernment had been will pressing for years.

The Revised Paalm.
The father's peroration was superb.
"And departing, leave behind you," he concluded, "footprints on the sands ofe."

But here the son rudely interrupted.
"Footprints?" he sneered. "Who wants to leave footprints?"
"Then what would you leave, my boy" the old man inquired.
"Tracks," said the youth, haughtily."Tracks of any 90-horse, power racer, to be sure. Am I a dog or a workingman that I should leave mero footprints?"

Patron Saint of Lawyers.

This story is told at the expense of Francis H. J. Maxwell, a well-known lawyer. The members of the Taunton, Mass., Bar association thought they ought to have a patron saint, but after much wrangling they could not hit upon any particular saint.

Finally a committee, of which Mr. Maxwell was a member, was aponined to make a selection. They made a trip to New York, and there visited a gattery where most of the saints were carved in mribe. It was decided to leave the selection to Mr. Maxwell, and after making the rounds be placed his hand on one in a group of two. This one will do," he said. He had his hand on the devit, whom St. Michael was driving, before him.

The Motor Face.

A few days uso a well-known personage was motoring in Dertyshire when a policeman stopped him, relates the london Tattler.

"You'll have to take off that mask," and the officer, "it's frightening everyone who sees it."

"But I'm not wearing one," explained the unfortunate offender.

Local Dews.

Too much weather of a certain kind is not good for a fair.

Found, Saturday afternoon on the fair grounds, a baby's woolen sack-blue and white. It is at this office.

T. G. Willis, Democrat, and J. H. Stevens, Republican, have been se-lected by the State Commission as Election Commissioners for Boone county.

Peaches this year are fine and prices are skyhigh—$2.50 per bushel is an easy price. The only trouble is they are very scarce in this part of the country.

The recent fine rains were a delight to all; but we were not looking for that cold snap that accompanied the showers. It was a real touch of winter. Pastures are looking fine, and the turnip erop promises to be a bumper.

Tomatoes are now one of the foremost table vegetables. Like everything else they are backward this season, but are plentiful now. The canning factories at Petersburg and Bellevue will be in full blast in a few days as they are behind on account of the lateness of the crop.

Official figures show that there were 690 rural delivery routes in operation in Kentucky on August 1, and twenty-five petitions for new routes pending before the department—20 routes have been discontinued. The total number of petitions referred was 1,275 and 552 adverse reports had been made.

The next thing in the way of outdoor amusement in this part of the

The high wages paid make it a mighty temptation to our young artisans to join the force of skilled workmen needed to construct the Panama Canal. Many are restrained however by the fear of fevers and malaris. It is the knowing ones—those who have used Electric Bitters, who go there used Electric Bitters, who go there are safe from malarious influence with Electric Bitters in hand. Birds as Air-shi: Models.
The explanation of bird-flight that occurs to the casual observer is that these winged creatures fly by flapping their wings. But all birds do not do so. In fact, the birds that fly the best these winked creatures by by flapping their winks. But all birds do not do so. In fact, the birds that fly the best and most fearlessly can proceed for bours and sometimes for a whole day, and not infrequently against the force of a storm, without making the slightest perceptible movement of their wings. Although the secret of flight on motionless wings is at present-beyond the solution of science, the principle involved gives promise of being the one that would be most successfully applied by man in aerial flavel. It is true that nearly all insects and most of the small birds proceed by beating their wings, sometimes with almost incredible velocity. Possibly the air-ships of the future, particularly those designed for short trips, may proceed by this method. But the present tendency is toward salling flight. The most common theory in explanation of flight on motionless wings is that the birds take advantage of air-currents. However, a fact that weakens the air-current idea is that birds of prey will dart instantly in any direction, quite regardless of air-currents, when a victim appears. This theory of necessary air currents, remarks a writer in Every-body's, may have been as-serious a bindrance to the progress of aeronautics as has been the raliacy that, in order to sall, a ship must be lighter than air. But the fact that there is a number that wing their way without effort in either calm or storm, some of them sailing on motionless pinions, furnishes the hope and possibility that.

A Bird-Flight Faliacy.

There have been decades of dispute over the value of the hollow lones and the airsacs as meany opecies of birds. It has been contended that innamuch as the temperature of birds is higher than that of any other creature, this network of air chambers, becoming filled with air warmer than the surrounding atmosphere, enables the bird to rise. It is true, says Everybody's Magazine, that the gannet, the pigeon, the pelican, the aibatross, and other flying birds are equipped with air chambers, but the Australian enu, which flies, when at equipped with air chambers, but the Australian emu, which files, when at all, with the greatest difficulty, as well as the ostrich and the apteryx, which cannot fly at all, are also provided with these air cells—and so, too, is the orang-utan! Moreover, notably good filers—swifts, martins, snipes, the gloss starling, the spotted flycatcher, the wood-wren and the black-headed hunting, have bones destitute of air, some of them, in fact, being filled with marrow. No failary has been more difficult to puncture than this air cell or balloon theory of flight.

Among the newest societies is that founded in France, called the Confederation of Crippies. One of its objects is to secure a repeal of the law which forbids the halt and the lame to beg. In Paris, a man who lost both legs in a railroad accident is organizing a branch of the confederaorganizing a branch of the coaledera-tion. At present he goes about on two wooden less and attracts public atten-tion by playing a hard organ. He received orders from the chief of the league in Marseilles to establish a soplew far the capital. It is pro-posed to found branches in all the French towns, with the hope that charitable people may contribute in aid of members who are unable to work. Perhaps the most extraordinary item of news shout this new brother-bood is that its Marseilles delegation went to Paris on foot!

went to Paris on foot!

Northern peoples are all given to free and independent ways, as has been shown from the days of the ancient Scandinavians and Norsemen to the present time. Even the hardy leaders of viking days were selected by their followers, and no king could rule without the consent of the peoples. King Frederick of Denmark, himself a liberal constitutional monarch, if visiting Iceland, a part of his domipion, has assured the Icelanders that they shall remain free and cooperate with him in making laws that will he satisfactory to them. And that wise and tactful procedure will probably make the Icelanders more faithful and devoted subjects than before.

JUDGE PRITCHARD IN CONFLICT

Granting of injunction in North Caro-lina Railroad Case Was Plain Violation of Law in Rail-road Interests.

To one who takes the trouble to ex-amine the law governing the use of injunctions in federal courts, when the states are directly concerned, the ac-tion of Judge Pritchard in North Car-olina, is troomprehensible upon any ion of Judge Pritchard in North Carolina is incomprehensible upon any theory except that he was attempting to bluff the state authorities. Section 720 of the revised statutes of the United States provides that: "The writ of injunction shall not be granted by any court of the United States to stay proceedings in any court of a state except in cases when such injunction may be authorized by any law relating to proceedings in bankruptcy." Now, the injunction granted by bankruptey."

Now, the injunction granted by Judge Pritchard, forbidding the state authorities to execute the rate law, was not authorized by any law relating to proceedings in bankruptey, and was, therefore, expressly prohibited was, therefore, expressly prohibited hy section 720, above quoted. This section was called to his attention on the hearing of the injunction suit, but he deliberately violated it. He substituted the unfounded contentions of the railroad attorneys for the supreme law of the land. When the state anthorities refused to obey his unlawful order the railroad attorneys and the Republican organs taked loudly of a clash between federal and state twoops and tried to frighten the people of North Carolina, thereby insinuating that the army of the United States would be used to support and enforce Judge Pritchard's unlawful orders. But Gov. Glenn and the North Carolina judges stood firm. Grand juries were instructed to indict railroad employes and officials who violated, the state would and the word to indict railroad employes and officials who violated. the state is a structed to indict railroad employes and officials who violated. the state and the sum of the state of the state of the state of the sum of the course and one-fourth points on the market in one day, entailing a loss of $7,000,000. Next day the conspirators retreated. They agreed to obey the law of the state, not withstanding Judge Pritchard's injunction and the arrangement about rebate coupons for excess of fare made in pursuance of it. They knew they were wrong. They knew it from the beginning, Judge Pritchard when with the knew that he was violating section 720 of the revised statutes. But for the course and honesty of Gov. Glenn he would have been able to establish a precedent which would have destroyed all the police powers of the states and made railroad comporations complete masters of the country.

A Democrat of Renown.

The nomination at the primaries in Mississipio of Hon. John Saarp Williams as the candidate for United States senator shows that the Democrats of Mississippi appreciate one of the most able, honest and industrious public servants that either party can bosst of. Those-off us. who have the good fortune to come in contact with him in his position as the Democratic leader of the house of representatives can only hope that his successor in that position will as ably advocate Democratic issues and so completely confound Republican fallacies as he has done. In the more sedate senate he will be a light to lighten the Republican sentiles and add glory to the faithful band of Democratic patriots by his great learning and ability to impart his knowledge in good strong English, polished by contact with the best the world produces.

The question of how the Populists will volce will dedde the fate of the Democrats in the north western states, for in 1896 they held the balance of power in Nebraska and other states, but since then have mainly been acting with the parties from which they originally emerged.

from which they originally emerged.

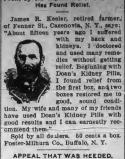

Pennsylvania Candidate.

Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania is now an active candidate for the Republican nomination for the presidency, and it is claimed that Senator Crane of Massachusetts is earnestly supporting him. There is a deadly feud between Crane and Lodge on this account. Todge is looking for the domination of the national convention by the Roosevelt interest. Knox recently declared himself in favor of state rights, and seems to be taking advantage of the conflict between Roosevelt's judge in North Carolina and the judges of the state courts there.

If this prohibition movement goes much further there will be no fit place for the Republican convention to meet where Teddy's whisky straights and Farbank's cocktalls can be dished out for the delegates.

There is no end to the nervous conditions that coffee will produce. It shows in one way in one person and it another way in another. In this case the lady lived in S. Dax. She says:

"I have had to lie awake half the night with my feet and limbs out of the hed on the coldest nights, and felt afraid to sleep for fear of catching cold. I had heen troubled for years with twitching 'and jerking of the lower limbs, and for most of the time I have been unable to go to church or to lectures because of that awful feeling that I must keep on the move.

"When It was brought to my attention that coffee caused so many nervous diseases, I concluded to drop coffee and take Postum Food Coffee to see If my trouble was caused by coffee drinking.

"I only drank one cup of coffee for breakfast but that was enough to do the business for me. When I quit-it my troubles disappeared in an almost unraculous way. Now, I have no more of the jerking and twitching and can alseep with any amount of hedding over me and sleep all night, in sound, peaceful rest.

Rochester, N. Y.—Dr. George Waldron, a physician of Rochester; Mrs. Catherine Farnsworth, of Rochester, and Mrs. William Scandling and Mrs. Jane Hobbs, both of Hopewell, were instantly killed Wednesday afternoon in a collision between an automobile in which they were driving and a Rochester & Eastern trolley car, near Canandalgua.

Dr. Waldron went to Hopewell in the morning with his daughter to visit at the home of William Scandling, and had taken the three women, all of whom were more than 85 years of age, for an automobile ride. They were on their way to the Freshour crossing to meet another, friend of the Scanding family. Witnesses of the accident say that as the machine approached the trolley tracks it was seen by the motorman made a signal and Dr. Waldron slowed up. Then, apparently thinking that he could cross before the car reached him, he started on again it is thought that the automobile did not respond readily to the levers. It was caught on the tracks and the occupants thrown with great force. The bodies were frightfully crushed.

CONVICTS ELUDE POSSE

Two Men Who Escaped from Joliet Still at Large.

Thiosen, — A posse of 100 mes, led by Deputy Warden Henry Canis, is in close pursuit of Harry Harmon and "Eddie" Quian, convicts who escaped from the Joilet pantion. Itary. The men were believed to be trapped in a box car at Brander's Bridge, near-Joilet, but—they sluded their pursues.

The convicts left the car just as the carriages conveying the posse appeared in sight. A through fust-reight train on the Santa Fe was passing at the time, and the fugitless, risking their lives, boarded the train. The escape of the men was one of the most sensational prison flights in years. By means of a roy made from strips of a sheet and an improvised hook they scaled the high pentientiary wall, eluding the armed guards and sentries, and gained their liberty be fore the alarm was give and posses started the search for them.

STATE ODDS AND ENDS

Courier-Journal Plant.

Loulsville, Ky.—Shortly after midnight the Louisville Courier-Journal building caught fire, and in a couple of hours the structure, which is five stories high and occupies nearly half a block, was gutted by the flames, which spread with marvelous rapidity despite the strenuous efforts of the entire fire department.

The oditorial and reportorial forces of the Courier-Journal stuck to the building, in hope that the blaze would be subdued and that they could issue a paper. They were caught nappling with fire at all exits, and had to wo taken out on ladders.

The linotype machines and presses are located in a re-enforced section of the building fand the damage to them will be comparatively lish. Thermaining entire contents of the building are almost a total loss.

The fire startled at the top of an elevator shart, and is supposed to have been caused by defective insulation of electric wires.

The Morning Herald has offered the use of its plant to the Courier-Journal.

The damage is estimated at $650,000; well insured.

The exhibit in floral hall was good every day, Friday's being the shortest on exhibits. The grain, vegetable and poultry shows were especially good.

Alex Petterson, the popular Sedamsville feed store man, was on hand Friday, as usual, enjoying the fine show and meeting many of his Kentucky friends.

The rain Friday morning kept at least 500 people away who expected to attend the fair that day, while the Democratic primary election in Kenton county on Saturday reduced the attendance somewhat. Presenting the RECOMPER with his quart of extracted honey which did not take the premium, J. S. Noell, of Midway, remarked, "when you eat of this you will wonder how it was that it was beaten," and right he was.

While exhibiting colts on Friday Walter Riddell was kicked on the leg by a colt lead by another exhibitor and hurt considerably. He made several shows that afternoon after receiving the injury, but on Saturday he had to use crutches.

DAVID UNITES THE KINGDOM

STORY BY THE "HIGHWAY AND BYWAY" PREACHER

SERMONETTE.

SERMONETTE.

It was David's integrity rather than his military prowess which conquered larael.

David knew how to forgive. Ierael had shared with King Saul in the persecution of David, but David was ready to return good for evil. He had no scoren to settle when the providences of God brought his former enemies under his power. Selfish ambition David had not. On the contrary, his career strikingly flustrates the possibility of a human soul gauging his, ambitions, in harmony with the will of God. He wanted only what God in his own time and his own way was willing to give. Hence he escaped the plifalts of human plotting and intique and his hands were free from the stains of the blood of his enemies.

David desired the kingdom because God had promised it to he method of righteousiless and truth and justice.

God can give what human scheming and plotting cannot

God can give what human scheming and plotting cannot gain.

The question arises: "Would David have been justified in the use of force in gaining possession of that which God had promised should be his?" Is the injunction: "Suffer wrong rather than do a wrong" a safe principle to follow in our dealings with others.

David in the Twenty-third Psalm, declares that after the walk through the valley of the shadow of death the Lord prepared for him a table in the presence of his enemies. Such proved literally true in his experience. God laid the united kingdom at his feet after all the plottings of his enemies had falled. It is surely true that they that wait upon the Lord shall not be ashmed.

THE STORY.

David's eye flashed and he took a step toward Joah.

"Think you for a moment," he thundered, "that David awould take a mean advantage of the misfortunes of his brothers in Israel? Does David's kingdom Increase. Hrough, unholy intrigues? Has God left the heavens that David campot still trust him?" "But it is now on never," protested Joah. "Israel needs a leader. If it flut not such in thee they will choose one from among, themselvos, to lead them. There are many ambitious souls among the inen of Israel." "But this thing is not of God. It Israel seek hie not as king, then will not I reach out for the king, then yill not I reach out for the king, then yill not I reach out for the king for." Further protest on the, part, of Joah was prevented by the hurried entrance of a serviant who amongued the arrival of two messengers from Israel who demanded to see King Hey will be they servants, O king. Quebec, Que,—A section of the new bridge across the St. Lawrence river, five miles below this city, collapsed late Thursday, carrying scores, of bridge workers and mechanics into the water. It is estimated that the loss of life is at least 60 and may exceed that number by 20.

The bridge was about a mile and a half in length and fall of it, from the south shore to midstream, crumpled up and dropped into the water. Ninety men were at work on this section of the structure and the whistle had just blow at 5:30 for the men to quit work for the day when there came a griding sound from the bridge midstream. The men turned to see what had happened and an instant later the cry went up "the bridge is falling."

All the men drowned were employes of the Phoenixville Bridge company, and subcontractors of Quehec and Montreal.

Mourning in the Villages.

There is scarcely a family in the villages of St. Romuald and New Liverpool which has not heen hereaved, while in some cases five and six men of a single family have been killed. From almost every house is heard the yound of immentations of women.

The disaster caused much excitement here and is regarded as a national calamity.

Nothing is known of the cause of the disaster. There was nothing of an untoward nature reported that could give the slightest indication during the past few days that the huge structure was in a dangerous condition. It was built on such immense inless that it did not seem possible it could break down.

Although there is a great effort made to keep secret the thefts in hotels and restaurants in New York, it is quite evident they are on a rapid increase. The menager of a large restaurant says the system of having servants depend almost, entirely upon patrons for their pay lowers their moral standard and causes them to look on those they are supposed to serva at their legitimate prey.

tucky State Fair.

It is said of the Kentuckian that half of his cranium is filled with brain matter and the other half with miniature horashoes. The shillty of the clitzen of old Kentucky to gain eminence demonstrates clearly the truthfulness of the first half of the statement, and his love of a horse race indicates that he latter half is hy no means an untruth. The Kentucky State Fair, which will run for six great days at Louisville, beginning September 16th, holds out special inducements to everyone, whether or not a Kentuckian, to pollsh up the horseshoes imhedded in his head by reflected glory.

The State Fair management has arranged a most interesting speed program covering trotting, pacing and running races. As the new home of the State Fair, which was Douglas Park, has the fastest trotting track in this country, and perhaps in the world, many records are expected to he amashed during this meeting.

Those who have been robbed of horseshoes beneath their scalpathough constant contact with rubber tire that certary gasoline tanks, will find in the automobile races that which appears to them, while others who have turned their thoughts from things terrestrial to things celestial, will gain their deaires in the balloon races.

An Italian, whose name is of no consequence, has climbed to the summit of one of the three highest peaks of the Mont Bianc range, called the Dame Anglaises. This peak is 11,400 feet of the ascent was over a smooth and practically perpendicular rock. It required 12 hours to make it, and when done the man of misdirected energy and enterprise actually thought he had achieved fame. But, after all, what sort of tame is it? The man had risked his life to accomplian, what? To be ahie to say he had olimhed to a spot on the mountains that no other person ever did! It is the sort of fame gained by the youth who Bred the Ephesian dome. It will be remembered as an act from which no useful consequence can flow and in which life was recklessly imperiled in order that a fool might cry out, "I did It!" In the feat there was no contribution to science, to morais or to the general knowledge of the world.

Thought Srakeman Steered.

The little girl had become well acquainted with automobiles long before she had ridden in a railroad train, and she had even attempted to help her father steer on the family's automobile trips. When she olambered out the steam cars for the first time she was much excited and her questions fairly tumbled over themselves. Finally she noticed the brakeman turning the watched him approvingly for a few minutes and then as he suddenly left the wheel set see and then as he suddenly left the wheel she grasped her father in alarm.

Tell him to go back, papa, he must go back," she shouted.

Papa looked at her in amaxement. "Who must go back," Dorothy?" he asked.

"Why, the man who steers," she said breathleasly. "He's left the wheel and well run off the track."

Mr. Fetter will have the active co-operation of commercial, industrial, financial and professional organizations in making Louisville Day one that will put it in red letters on the Pair caiendar.

No one will be bold enough, however, to challenge the popularity of Kentucky Day. Every indication points to its being the banner day of the week Mr. Browe has named many prominent editors of Kentucky as his associates on this committee. He is counting upon several large securations from different points. The editors will hold a raily on the night of Kentucky Day, which is Known as Press Night, and Col. Allison is arranging a very attractive program. Press headquarters are to be established at the Fair grounds.

Mr. Heimberger is not only appoint.

are to be established at the Fair grounds.

Mr. Heimberger is not only appointing Southern Indiana editors, but heads of commercial organizations in their section, as members of the Southern Indiana Day Committee.

The programs for every night will be attractive. This will be especially true of Military Night, when the First Regiment will give an exhibition drill in front of the grand stand.

While the days and nights have been given some special natue, it does not follow that the State Fair management wishes to confine the attendance to those interested in the way that the same indicates. On the contrary, the State Board of Agriculture invites everybody to come every day and every night.

At a great onliny of money the State Board of Agriculture, has contracted with Captain Roy Knabenshue to bring his passenger-carrying airship, the marvel of the century, to the Kentucky State Fair. September 16-10-21, and give daily flights and exhibitions with a night ride in the air guided by a searchlight.

A State Fair ribbon has the jacking of the Commonwealth of Kentucky. It is a trophy of big value aside from the money that accompanies, it.

Concrete telegraph poles may be made of various forms, sizes and reinforcement. Those above mentioned taper from eight inches aquare at the bottom to six inches at the top, the corners are chamfered two inches, and they are reinforced by two dozen one-quarter inch wires running the full length of the pole. All necessary holes, for braces, cross-arms, and steps, are made in the molding.

Strange to say, remarks Popular Mechanics, concrete poles show great clasticity as well as strength, the former depending upon the steel reinforcement. Doubt of Self is at the Root of All Failures, Doubt of Self la at the Root of All Failures.

The germ of unsuccess is persistent, cankerous doubt of self. It may enter aman's soul suddenly of the heels of an unforassen disaster, or gain an evol-intreasting find in this through a score of years. It may devastate bim like a fayer, or slowly sap his spirit's strength like an insidious creeping malady. In the and the result is the same; he is overthrown, done for, unless the one effective antidote is taken. The germ of the disease is everywhere. An abrupt change for the apparently worse in a man's chromatances—a shaking-up of the hitherto comfortable conditions of his life, and a perfect cloud of dust arises, which he, poking around in the debris, is poisoned by. What business has he going over these past conditions? His business is with the vital present, which teems with possibilities for him whose heart is in cased in the triple armor—strength of hope, strength of will, strength of enthusiasm. He who is thus tricked out is immune, be he never so old or physically frail. Unsuccess for such a one can never be more than the foe that gives sest to the battle. And whe would wish nower to have fought at all? There is scant honor in such a life and no "trailing clouds of glory" at its close.—The Circle.

Girl Had Running Screa from Ec--Boy Tortured by Poleon Oak Both Cured by Cuticura.

Boy fortured by Gutteura.

"Last year, after having my little girl treated by a very prominent physician for an obstinate case of eczema, I resorted to the Gutteura Remedies, and was so well pleased with the almost instantaneous relief afforded that we discarded the physician's prescription and relied entirely on the Cutteura Scap, Cutteura Olintment, and Cutteura Pills. When we commenced with the Cutteura Penedies her feet and limbs were covered with running sores. In shout six weeks we had her completely well, and there has been no recurrence of the trouble.

"In July of this year a little boy in our family poisoned his hands and arms with poison oak, and in twenty-four hours his hands and arms with poison oak, and in twenty-four hours his hands and arms were a mass of torturing sores. We used only the Cutt. "Smedies, and about three weeks his hands and arms healed up. Mrs. Lizzie Vincent Thomas, Fairmont, Walden's Ridge Tenn., Oct. 13, 1905."

Girls Destined for Harems.

The Circassians, who live in the northwestern part of the Caucasus, and who think it is more honorable to live by plunder than by industry, make it a custom to bring their daughters up to be sold as slaves to the Turks and Persians. ## Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmacentical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless:

**Societ**—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food: **Third*—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil.*

It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day ever, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled withe information.—Hall's Journal of Realth.

addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Illa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice, and find it very satisfactory." Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found saything that so flited the place."

Dr. J. H. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for meany years. The formula is excellent."

Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria actuanyiely, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's."

Dr. Wn. J McCrann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen's from my own family experience I have in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy."

Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kancel Oltry, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe propriet." preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

City and its Milk Supply.

It is remarkable that, with all the excitement concerning pure food laws, which has stirred our wide expanse of territory during the last year, so little attention should have been given to the food of the child. We hear of haws to provide inspection for meat, laws to control the sale of drugs, laws to regulate the movement and inspection of vegetable products, but not one of all these important movements has to do with a substance so likely to cause widespread death, or to act as a carrier of disease, as the one we are discussing here. Most of the foods are cooked, Milk is server raw. Most of the foods give comparatively little lodgment or mutrition to evil bacteria. Milk offers both. Can there be any greater municipal necessity than proper milk laws properly enforced? asks Hollis Godfrey in the Atlantic Monthly. Strange to say, the little street of the Azores, or the mountain village of Northern Hair, feeds its toldiern better to the content of the foods on the content of the cooks of the foods give comparatively little lodgment or mutrition to evil bacteria wilk offers better both. Our patient and painstaking health department says that more men are dying in Chicago than women because men are so busy leading the strenuous life while the women, presumably. To old men at home the shade of the old apple tree, with the latest novel, says—the Chicago Daily News. That may be how it is. The health department ought to know. But might not the fact that man puts in so much of his time amoking cigars and drinking whisky have something to do with it? Of course it is comforting to man to tell him that he is killing—limself with work, but if he will hire a cheap detective to shadow his wife or his with work, but if he will hire a cheap detective to shadow his wife or his sister he will discover that she puts in as many hours at toll as he does and that she sustily works a few more hours after he comes home while he is sitting on the front steps smoking and settling the affairs of the nation-with some overworked neighbor. Man may be killing himself by overwork, but it would be hard to make the neighbors believe it.

European armies blaze with decora European armies blaze with decorations and orders of merit. It is contrary to the spirit of this country to give official sanction to arbitrary ranks and distinctions apart from the regular grades of service and special recognitions of merit given by congress. But there is at least one order of American officers which congress has recognized to the extent of permitting the members to wear the badge with their uniform on proper occasions. This is the Order of the Dragon, which was established by commissioned officers of the army at Peking in 1900. The members are commissioned officers of the American army and navy who served in China during the Boxer troubles, and there are honorary members from the services and there are honorary members from there are honorary members from other armies and navies which took part in the campaign of the allies. The part in the campaign of the allies. The society is in some ways similar to the Order of the Cincinnati founded by French and American officers at the close of the American revolution, the object of which was to perpetuate friendships formed during the war.

Queen Alexandra has set a new fashion, that of the summer muff, a dainty trifle made of flowers, feathers and chiffon and tulle, which must match the wearer's toque and ruffle It is raid that the summer muff, be sides being artistic, will be a boon to the wearers of pocketless gowns, as it is fitted with a pocket large enough to hold a handkerchier and purse—and a powder puff, of course.

THE RECORDER THE RECORDER OF ANGRY MOB

ARTIST EARLE DROVE QUICKLY

From the Dock After He Bade He Farewell—Neighbors Assembled To Witness Departure.

New York, Sept. 5.—The "artistic temperament" coilided with "public decency," and Ferdinand P. Earle, the artist, reaching Monroe after having shipped his wife and child to Europe in order that he may marry his "soul's arfinity," fell into the waiting and welcome arms of a mob.

The mob, composed exclusively of aminity," fell into the waiting and aminity," fell into the waiting and come arms of a mob.

The mob, composed exclusively of Earle's neighbors and former friends dragged him from his carriage, which they overturned, trailed him in the mud, lashed him with a horsewhip and might have responded to the repeated suggestions that a rope be secured had not the mayor of the village and the chief of police recalled them to their senses and given Earle a safe conduct to his home.

Pardinand Pinney Earle, the artist.

had not the mayor of the village and the chief of police recalled them to their senses and given Earle a safe conduct to his home.

Ferdinand Pinney Earle, the artist whose temperamental yearnings have brought him into the imelight of publicity, had a narrow escape from being mobbled by a crowd of unsympathetic longshoreme while he was waiting on the Hamburg-American pier in Hoboken to wave farewell to the wife and infant son from whom he had decided to part in order that he may wed his affinity, who is said to be Miss Sophie Kuttner, of Bethlebem, Pa.

Five minutes before the liner left the artist-socialist-millionalre-poet fled from the Hoboken dock of the Hamburg-American Co, dodging the blows at him by the crowd of dock abovers, who knew nothing of the longings of the temperamental nature, and who are so crude as to have nothing but contempt for a man who would trade wives at the promptings of his artistic soul.

On the deck of the outgoing Rhyaare so crude as to have nothing outcontempt for a man who would trade wives at the promptings of his artistic soul.

On the deck of the outgoing Rhyndam stood a slender little woman in gray—Earle's wife—holding by one chubby hand a sturdy little round-faced two-year-old child. The discarded wife was smiling gamely through the tearmarks on her face. To the reporters who swed a farewell to her she waved back, her little white handker-chief fluttering bravely.

Just before the liner pulled out Earle freed himself from a singular interview. He cracked a joke about the possibilities of life in Utah, if, after all, he should be disappointed and recall the old one back from Europe.

The last day of the life together of the present Mr. and Mrs. Earle was marked by a significant scene at the railroad station in their home town. Possibly it was this incident that moved Earle to speak rebutkingly of the sneers of his neighbors white he waited for the boat to sell.

Nearly every man and woman in the town of Monroe had assembled at the railway station to witness the departure of the Earle party, and the artist was visibly worrried lest some of his disapproving neighbors might attempt violence, as there had been talk of tar and feathers for the apostle of freedom flove. There was no demonstration, however, beyond a few-hoots and catcalls.

Bellingham, Wash, Sept. 6.—Sisbably deaten Hindus are in the biospital, 400 frightened and halfanked Sihks are in 1st and the corridors of the city half are guarded by polleemen, and somewhere between Bellingham and the Brilich Columbia line are 750 natives of India, beaten, hungry and half clothed making their way along the Great Northern railway bound for Canadian territory and the protection of the British flag.

The long-expected cry, "Drive out the city and along the water front.

The police were helpless. All authority was paralyzed, and for overfive hours a mob of half a thousand white men raided the mills where the blacks were working, battered down doors of lodging houses, and, eragging the invaders from their beds, escorted them to the city luntus with orders to keep on going.

The trouble started at C and Holly streets, a district with Indian lodging houses. The houses were cleaned out and the dentzens started on the track for the Canadian line. The mob then swept down to the water front and mill after mill was visited, the while employes joining the mob, and every black man was hustled outside. Here the police suggested that the undesirables be taken to jail. This was hailed with delight and the blacks were hustled along. From this time on very few were heaten and the bloodthirst less of the mob sceme dastlasfied during the tattack on the lodging houses. The mob kept up lis work along the water from where from among the crowd in the city building. The city is quite but there is a strong undercurrent of opinion which apparently approves the action of the mob and it may be found impossible to prosecute the leaders. Ractal feeling has played no small part in the affair. Every day whites are being reported. General uneasiness of the whites is given as a reason for the ombreak. The invaders have become bold and finsolent, many instances of women being pushed into the guiter and in sulted on street cars being reported. sugar Baskets at a Gay Dinner. There are hostesses who insist on making their dinner parties a mixture of the toy shop and the conservatory, in spite of the report that a social ban has failen on lavish displays. At a dinner in a fashlonable reaort last week baskets made of drawn sugar with flaring edges and long handles stood at each place. The baskets were woven from strands of variegated color and were further embellished by a sugar bow. They were filled with flowers which matched a display of blooms in the center of the table. The dinner was very, very gay, though no pet doze were invited.

Forty-Eight Years in Prison.
The release of a prisoner of the great Indian mutiny of 1857 from the Andaman is reported by a Hindoo newspaper. ### IS ONLY ONE WAY

DEMOCRATIC SUCCESS IS NECES

Relief for Plundered People Can Come Only in This Way—Republicans Tied to Trusts and Monopolies.

The wholessie prices of all commodities have increased over 50 per cent. since 1888, according to the index figures of Duna's merentile agency. And according to the index figures of Duna's merentile agency. And according to almilar figures prepared by Bradstreet, prices have advanced over nine per cent. during the year ending June 30, 1907. As very many of the articles included in those figures are controlled by trusts and are virtual monopolics, and the trust-protecting tariff practically prohibits competition from shroad, this enormous increase in the cost of living in a most-serious question for the consumer of restricted income. To the rich, of course, the increase is hardly noticeable and does not deprive them of luxinics, much less necessities. Flut this vast increase in wholesale prices is not the worst of the matter to consumers, for retail prices have been "put up" to a much higher level, so that those with librar incomes are beginning to feel the necessity, much more those with librar incomes are beginning to feel the necessity, much more those with librar incomes, for economy. Rents, groceries, dry goods, meat, vegetables and fruit not to mention luxuries, are higher than ever before, except when gold was at a premium and prices were inflated to meet the depreciation of paper money during and after the critication of the proportion to the increased road of living, except perhaps in these industries in which the workmen are thoroughly organized and have been able to meet high prices have been able to meet high prices when any proportion to retuce the turiff duties which protect the trusts and mannfacturers from the only competition possible through imports from abroad. Congress will meet in the protected manufacturers are considered precessary for Republican processor of the Workmen and the protected manufacturers are considered precessary for Republican succe president and a Democratic congress.

Senator Bacon's Advice.

Senator Bacon, of Georgia, an experienced and judicious statesman, declares that "the Democratic platform should expressly and distinctive put the fight upon the issues of the revision of the tariff and opposition to the centralization of power in the general government and the usurpation of power by the executive department of the government."

With respect to the government ownership of railroads and the initiative and referendum, Senator Bacon is of the opinion that "they ought to be distinctly disavowed by the convention, otherwise they will cling to us in the campaign-like the shirt of Nessus."

Senator Bacon favors the selection of a more of the campaign-like the shirt of Nessus."

Sus."

Senator Bacon favors the selection of a presidential candidate from the south, if the Democrats of the necessary doubtful states feel such a candidate will best unite the party.

The Chief Republican Policy, Favorities to the few strutting under, the pseudonym of protection to all, is the true meaning of protectionism, which offers the greatest good to the smallest number and the least good to the greatest number. This tariff, protection is the policy of all frepublican policies. It is not only immorat in itself, but it suggests and breeds—and fouters the plundaring trusts and monopolies.

REPUBLICAN PROSPERITY.

There is great effort by Republican newspapers to show that the Wall street panic has had no effect on general business and will not hurt the people generally. But a special dispatch from New York to the Washington Post puts a much more serious aspect on the matter and shows that the official report on savings banks exhibits a decline in the value of honds and stocks in which their deposts are invested from 1896 of almost $13,000,000$. Since January I, the date of that report, there has been an average decline in the price of stocks of 20 per cent., which must have affected the value of bonds and stocks owned by the savings hanks very seriously.

The 6,529 national hanks of the United States on May 20th heid bonds and other securities amounting to a trifle over $679,000,000$, and these investments must show a similar loss to what the savings hanks have suffered. The report of the national banks to the comproller of the currency does not show how much the banks have written off for depreciation of investments and the actual situation is, therefore, obscure. An Index is to be found, however, in the case of the national banks of the volve of the national banks in the force of the national banks of the volve of the country, and the securing loss at that high r

Southern Candidates.

That stalwart Republican paper, the Minneapolis Tribune, declares "there is an astonishing dearth of Democratic available for the presidential nomination." This arouses the Houston Post to remark that: "There is no dearth of Democratic material in the South, if the party should deem it proper to ignore the events of nearly half a century ago, and choose a candidate purely upon the ground of his personal and political fitness. Virginia, North Cârolina, Georgia, Mississippl, Tennessee, Missouri, Louisians and Texas contain men of presidential stature—men in, every way qualified to fill the first of fice of the republic in a manner worthy the best traditions of the Democracy. In the way of material, the Democracy is as fully equipped as the Republican party. For every Republican stateman of acknowledged fitness we can name a Democrat who possesses all the requisites of the presidency, provided we are not compelled to ignore the public men of a section of the country where Democracy flourishes according to the teachings of the fathers."

Lahor and the Tariff.

The census report of the earnings of workmen engaged in manufacturing, including those receiving salaries for the year 1985, shows an average of $531 each. That is less than $45 a month, and as the cost of living has increased over 50 per cent. and was over 40 per cent. in 1905, the prosperity of tariff protected labor, which the Republicans boast so much of, is hardly a hed of roses. If the large salaries paid to managers and others were omitted the average wage to the workmen would be much less, and yel labor is expected to vote to continue this policy of protecting the trusts which, while it adds but little, if any, to their wages, extracts much more in the high price of all they buy.

Protection Does Not Protect.
The window glass trust, in order to keep up the price of its highly tar in protected products, only runs par of the year, so the workmen, although paid large wages only get a small in The National Commence of the years. of the year, so the workmen, although paid large wages only got a small income on the average. The National Glass Budget, the organ of the Trust, said on July 27: That (wo-third; of the Amaiganated"—the glassworkers organization—got haif a pear's boy's while the balance got in a nine months fire. And yet window glass is protected by the tariff from 60 to 100 per cent. which consumers have to pay over and above a fair, profit.

Mr. Rooseveit has swora as president of the United States "to see that the laws are faithfully executed." In the last two or these years several sections of the State bone been annoyed with night riders, whose sole aim is to commit some unlawful act, and it was hoped that Boone county would be free from that class of lawlessness, but the partial destruction of a Petersburg and Bellevue telephone line, one night last week, demonstrates that there are in Boone county, those who will resort to the cover of night to retailate on their neighbornos, and that, too, in a neighborhood, which, for many years, the people have borne the reputation of be ing among the most law-abiding in this party of Kentucky. That the work of the night riders was a shock to the people in the neighborhood where it was done, is evidenced by the manner in which they discuss it. SERMONETTE.

There come periods in the lives of men when further progress in the material real in set in the material real in set in the material real in set in the material real in sentirely dependent upon the conquering of the difficulty which lies at war the pathway. To turn aside and seek to find a way around the difficulty would be a sign of weakness. To stand still or to turn back would mean absolute fallure. There is but one way ahead, and that is by way of victory over the difficulty would be a sign of weakness. To stand the way and the still or to turn back would mean absolute fallure. There is but he way of victory over the difficulty of the way of victory over the difficulty of the way of victory over the difficulty. The set was now king over a unled take his ease. But just at that mowen the might rest content and take his ease. But just at that moment when the temptation was upon him to enjoy the luxury which was at his command, there rose up a fee to trouble him. THE STORY.

IT WAS with a feeling of content ment and satisfaction which David viewed the affairs of his kingdom following his anointing as king over israel. The desire and ambition of his heart had been gratified. He had obtained the promise of God and was now indeed king over all the tribes of Israel, even as Samuel had declared so many years before he should be. How pleasant it was after the long years of conflict and viclesitudes to be able to feel that now he could take his case and enjoy the honors and riches which had come to crown his efforts. There was no foe within or without to dispute his authority. It had been many years since the Philistines had troubled him, and surely if there were any in Israel who were his enemies, they did not show their hands. Everything seemed peaceful and prosperous.

To be sure the people who lived in the country adjoining the vistronghold of tigs Jebustes, Zlon, or Jerusalem, as it was called, complained or the occasional depredation of the manual tribe. But what did that amount to? David had then hemmed in on all sides; and they david nor mout and meet him in the opic one out and meet him in the opic one out and meet him in the opic of the darked had been been used to the state of the day of the state of the their day of the tribe which dwelf within but because the rocky beights which surrounded the place seemed to be absolutely manual tribes and they surrounded the place seemed to be absolutely manual tribes and the state of the strength of the tribe which dwelf within but because the rocky beights which was consequence is it?

rew Jebusites that he should trouble himself concerning them? and what was the city which they held tast he should desire it? So he reasoned, and Sought for satisfaction in the things which he had obtained. But, within the sinner chambers of his heart there were voices whispering words of condemnation. While there remained a spot within his reaim which he had not conquered was he really king? While there was a people who dared to cast defhance in his face and repeatedly amoy and distress the people whom he as king had sworn to profect and cherish was he performing his duty? Could he retain the respect and confidence of his people and his army If he falled to master the Jebusites and gain possession that the stronghold? Such were the questionings which froubled him from within; and from without there came the fresh protests of the people and to sow our fields if these points are to Jerusalem. "What use for us to plant our vine-yards and to sow our fields if these yards and to sow our fields if these years to their pleadings? Could he refuse to put forth effort to help? To be sure it seemed like a difficult upon us from the walls."

Such was the least bitter complaint, and David found himself asking the question whether he could turn a deal ear to their pleadings? Could he refuse to put forth effort to help? To be sure it seemed like a difficult and, but ought he not try? Just the failure of the nations shouly 16 conquer the place gave, him little connidence that he would prove more succapatial is any attempt he might put forth. # WHAT ONE MERCHANT DID

Correspondent of Home Trade League Testifies to Value of Publicity

One country merchant writes the Home. Trade league as follows.

"Since I have adopted the city idea of advertising—naming new goods with prices, and at the same time making known what I desire to dispose of at or about cost to make room for new goods—why sales have not only increased very largely with regular customers, but I have secured many new ones. Not only this—instead of the farmers wives spending from a half to an hour and a half tooking about the store to see what there is in stock they may went and taking the clerk's time who otherwise would have a chance to sell goods to several other customers, they come in sand ask for the very arricles they have seen advertised and which they shave a chance to sell good to several other customers, they come in sand ask for the very arricles they have seen advertised and which they shave a chance to sell good to several other customers, they come in sand ask for the very arricles they have seen advertised and which they shave a chance to sell good to several other customers, they come in sand ask for the very arricles they have seen advertised and which they shave a chance to sell good to several other customers, they come in sand ask for the very arricles they have seen advertised and which they shave a chance they are advertised and which they shave along the complete the seen advertised and which they shave a chance the complete the seen that the same time and taking the clerk's time who otherwise would have a chance the seen that the same time and taking the clerk's time who otherwise would have a chance the seen that the same time and taking the clerk's time who otherwise would have a chance the same time and taking the clerk's time who there will be a suppose they for the restance of the present and persenting as of every device for publicity the catalogue houses have built up their present enormous trade. It is not reading to end the present and the cast long the conditional persent and the cast long and the cast long and the cast long and the cast long and One country merchant writes the Home. Trade league as follows:

"Since I have adopted the city idea of advertising—naming—new goods with prices, and at the same time making known what I desire to dispose of at or about cost to make room for new goods—my sales have not only increased very largely with regular customers, but I have secured many new ones. Not only this—increased of the (armers' wives spending from a half to an hour and a half tooking about the store to see what there is in stock they may want and taking the clerk's time who otherwise would have a chance to sell goods to several other customers, they come in sad ask for the very articles they have seen advertised and which they have already deeded they do want from seeling the advertisement in this weekly paper, and the result is I have been able to dispense with one of my clerks to whom I was paying £300 per year."

This merchant further says that this saving of clerk hire excended in

This merchant further says that this san's that this san's that this san's that of advertising during the year will, he is confident, increase his trade 50 per cent. and that he can already name 28 customers who but very recently have been huying their goods almost entirely from Chicago catalogue houses.

catalogue houses.

This experience without doubt can be duplicated by thousands of othermen in husiness throughout the country. It is to be feared that the average merchant in the smaller towns has allowed himself to get into a rut, and it is one from which be must swiftly emerge if he has any desire to "stay" to expect it will come to you unsought?

Take the experience of this Home Trade league correspondent as a guide. He had the goods. He wanted to sell them. His proceeding was simple. Through publicity, which in his case simply meant attractive and truthful advertising, he brought the goods and the people together. Results were never in doubt.

To sum up, successfully to compete with the powerful catalogue houses of the citles the country merchant, must ln a measure adopt their methods. They have won by publicity. Meet them on that ground. Match advancement with advancement. You have the medium in your local paper. Let your advertisements say something, and mean what they say, Let the people know what you have to sell, and depend upon it, they will come to buy.

IS HUMAN WEAKNESS

THE DESIRE TO GET SOMETHING FOR NOTHING.

AN IGNIS FATUUS TO AVOID

One Cause That Has Led to the Do of Many—Fallacy That Ever Tends Toward Evil.

A man who won the confidence, respect and admiration of the people of his siste was elected to the United States sensie. Soon it is discovered that he was "owned by the railroads," hough by favors and instead of representing the interests of the people who seen him to his high place in the nation's councils, preferred to represent the corporations that made it possible for him to ride over rallroads without cost. It is only a demonstration of human inclination to get something for nothing.

The member of a state legislature something for nothing.

The member of a state legislature was accused of showing special attention to legislation favorable to the railroads and corporations. He was charged with riding on passes: and in fact it hecame known that his principal supporters, too, rode free over the railroads. Another illustration of the human desire to secure something for nothing.

for nothing.

The mayor of a city regularly occupied a box at the leading theater, handed out a free street car ticket to the conductor, enjoyed free drinks at the bars—another example of the manwho wanted something, for nothing, and at last his greed caused him to enter into dishonest deals that landed him in the pentientlary.

From the highest walks of life to the lowest the ail-prevailing and dominant trait in evidence to show the weakness of the individual is the struggle to get something for nothing. It is based upon a knowledge of this walling of humankind that some great businesse enterprises are built. Wonderful bargains are advertised, and the masses rupt to buy, without callo reasoning in the matter of any comparisons of value. Good business judgment is cast in the background by the midness to get something for nothing.

The get-ricb-quick operator uses the same methods to lead to his trap victims with dollars as do the reliroads, the big department stores and the others who have certain objects to gain. It is always the promise head out to give something for inadequate compensation, without its equal in expenditure, of money or labor that allows the frauds to succeed. There is magic in the "something for nothing" deal. It is a hait that catches people in every rank and walk of life. It often is the cause of the downfall of men who have all the abilities to succeed. It is a fallacy that tends toward evil. There can nothing be gained without adequate compensation. "The something for nothing is an ignis fatuus that the wise will avoid.

Schemes by Which People in Country, Districts Are Defrauded.

One of the winning games that is widely played, is the giving of prizes for the sale of baking powder, flamening extracts, etc. Numerous concerns are interested in this line of business. Premiums are offered to club raisers, and an outfit for canvassing is sent for a dollar or so, or perhaps furnished free if some person will youch for the honesty of the applicant. But a "bond" is required as security for goods sent. The offer is so attractive that many are induced to order a lot of the goods to get the premium. The goods are of the cheapest sand most trashy kind. The soap, the extracts, the species are all of an inferior quality often adulter ated and unwholesome. The person who orders them realizes that the loi is worth little. If they are not sold by the agent, it matters little to the concern sending them out, as the persons youching for the honesty of the "agent." will be informed that they will be held for the price of the goods and to save trouble, the "agent will send the money due, anake the best of a bad bargain. It is a good thing to avoid all propositions this offer much for little.

Give Charm to Town.

Attractive streets, well paved, good sidewalks, clean appearing buildings, signs arranged well, all go to add a charm to a town. One of the things that often gives strangers to a towas bad impression is the loose manner in which storekeepers and others take, care of the exterior of their places. Often not a sign about the place it to be found to designate the character of the business carried on, and this can only be known, by a peep through the open door. The windows are often arranged in such a way as to give little knowledge of the goods handled. During the some time awnings hanging low over the waits, so the passer-by must stoop to away as to give little knowledge of the goods thandled. During the some time awnings hanging low over the waits, so the passer-by must stoop to away as the stander of the store that it is a little care is needed to improve along these lines. An attractive sign does not cost much and is a good investment for the storekeeper. Clean liness in front of business places makes a good impression. In fact strangers will seldom enter a store if the outside appearance indicates slovenliness and carelessness. The upto-date merehant will always be found with a well-cared for establishment. It is quite often you can tell the business implemes in portance of a man in the community by the spipearance of his store Make business places attractive as possible. It may cost you a little money, a little extra labor, but it will pay in the long run.

Pays to Keep the Town Nest.

The streets of a town overgrown with weeds never makes a good impression on the stranger. Good side walks, well-kept streets in the rest dense and business portions of a place, always speak well-for the habits of its residents.

Honest Dealings, or Political Revelution Certain.

It is in the courts that reforms and revolution usually start. The great English revolution of 1688 started with the ship-money case, in which John Hampden resisted the unlawful tax imposed on carts and carrisges by Charles the First. The American revolution of 1768 started with the prosecution of certain men in Boston for-revisiting with arms in their hands certain edicts of George the Third. The French revolution really started as a practical movement with the prosecution of the parliament of Paris, the highest law court in France, to register a tax which had been decreed by the French king. And finally our own great clyll war was produced mainly by the Dred Scott decision rendered by the supreme court of the United States. It is judicial resistance to surpration, rather than legislative programmes, that produces effective popular resistance. Where the judiciary is independent, as it is in the states of the union at this time, the people follow the judges. But where the judges are partisans or known tools of powerful interests, they rebel. That is why one great legal controversy arouses the public more than any or all the debates in legislatures and all the harangues of lecturers and spelibinders. Hence the importance of the North Carolina controversy over the rate law of that state. AN ILLINOIS MAN WRITES RE GARDING HIS SUCCESS IN WESTERN CANADA.

Accomplished.

"Nothing succeeds like success" is an old and true saying having many applications in Western Canada. The following letter is an illustration. The writer, Mr. Gerts, left Chicago a short following letter is an illustration. The writer, Mr. Gerta, left Chicago a short time ago and the success he has achieved may well be gained by anyone having pluck and energy by locating on the free homestead lands in Western Canada. A change recently made in the Canadian Land Regulations concerning homesteads makes it possible for any member of a family to make entry for any other member of the family entitled to a homestead. For instance, a man may now make entry before the local agent for his father or for his brother or brothers, or for his son or sons, or for a sister or daughter who may be the head of the family having minor children depending upon her for support. A sister, daughter or mother are also entitled to make entry upon a homestead. The only foe required is $10.00 for each entry. A great saving in railway expenses is thus made. Battleford, Sask., Aug. 4, 1907.
Dear Sir:—
Thinking a letter from us Northwest settlers might interest you, and I write a few lines and fet you know we are progressing finely and well pleased with our new home.

When I think or the many hard write a few lines and fet you have well and the many hard write. A finish who are struggling for a living and doing the strenguous, laying upractically achiding for old age and the thousands of acres of land here yet to be plowed and cultivated capable of raising sixty to eighty hussless of oats, thry to forty bushels of wheat, it certainly seems a pity the two cannot be brought together. But I will repeat, this country is only for the industrious and thrifty; also I might add, it requires some capital to start.

A man should have at least a team of three good horses; better to have mares so as to have some colts coming along each year. It is hest to bring them with him as work borses are high. He should be able to purchase jow, disc and drag, harrow, drill, binder and hay rake. Of course several taking, up claims or huying leand near together can divide up the purchasing of the above machinery and exchange work. This plan will work well for a few years or until crops will warrant each individual to purchase a faill outfit.

We have 489 acres of as good farm and a size to the fewore Cut Knife.

well for a few years or until crops will warrant each individual to purchase a faill outfit.

We have 480 acres of as good farm land as lies in the famous Cut Knife district. Every foot can be plowed. Last year our oats run 60 bushels per acre. I sold them for 50c per hushel on the place.

The indications are for a good crop this year, though we were very late in seeding owing to the late spring. Last winter was the coldest known in this country by the oldest settlers (some who have been here 85 years), but with a comfortable house and plenty of frewood, which we hauled fou miles, we passed the winter quite pleasantly. The air is clear and dry. Some of the days I came from work I was surprised to find the thermometer registering 40° below zero. Though we never keep fire at night, we had nothing freeze'n our cellar.

Our stock and chickens wintered fine. I have a yearling helfer, who would hold her own in any "fat stock show." She has never had a drop of milk since she was four months old and has never had a mouthful of grain. A gentleman who saw her made the remark, "He bet that helfer had eater her head off with grain," but would hardly believe ahe had never had any grain.

This is a great country for growing all kinds of vegetables and we are certainly enjoying our garden. The flavor of the green, peas is especially fine. Last season Mrs. G. canned a lot of them, and we have enjoyed them up to the fresh crop.

I am sorry I did not have time this past season to attend to transplanting trees, but will keep the land I had prepared worked up for next season's planting trees, but will keep the land I had prepared worked up for next season's planting. I received a number of small trees tash and mapley from the Government Experimental Farm at Indian Head. I put them around the edge of the garden and they are doing fine. I also received outle a lot of other seeds, oats, wheat, potatoes and rubarbroots which were acceptable.

It is useless for us to bottler with garden flowers as wild ones grow in profusion. We are located near a fine-creek, the water of which is soft and fine for bathing and washing. We have a well of water near the house, 32 feet deep and 21 feet of water all the time, though it is harder than the creek water.

Land which could be bought for five dollars per acre three years ago is now worth $14$ per acre and steadily advancing each year.

All kinds of improvements are going on. Steam plows and large threshing outlits are already in. Roads are being graded, hridges being built across rivers and creeks. Last year I tookny family, slo wagon, across the Saskatchewan river in a row boat, swam my team across and now the contract has been let for $200,000 bridge at that place.

The C, N. R. have run a survey, which runs northwest passes about 500 feet from the northeast cornes of our farm. The country will soon be covered with a net work of railroads and as you see, the prospects are we will have a railroad and over 130 miles to our claim. Last fall we had only 18 miles to hail our wheat to railroad and as you see, the prospects are we will have a railroad and over 130 miles to our claim. Last fall we had only 18 miles to hail our wheat to railroad and as you see, the prospec

So to sum up the whole. Why should we not be glad we made the break? A good farm, stock increasing, health and an independent life. What more can we expect?

Did we have to make an effort? You can het we did and hustle, too. Should you pass this way with your shotsun this fall, we should be pleased to let you shoot prairie chickens off our grain stocks.

Respectfully yours.

In Oregon they are going after the whisky traffic in a novel way. Instead of licensing the seller, the buyer of strong drink is compelled to take out a license for which he hast o pay 85 for every six months. Saloon men are compelled by law to confine their sales exclusively to persons holding licenses to buy, under pain of a heavy fine for selling to unauthorized drinkers. A feature of the law is that every six months a complete list of the licensed drinkers is published.

Red Clover Best in Rotation

Red Clover Best in Rotation.

Many when starting in with red clover get the impression that land kept in clover-will grow better year after year. This is an error. Land will not stand continuous clover cropping any better than it will continuous growing of any other crop. The best results are obtained with clover when it is brought regularly into a rotation with other crops. If this were practiced systematically we would have much less complaint about "clover sickness." The growing of clover year after year invites discase, and must exhaust-certain elements taken up in the growth of the plant. It is said that land attacked with clover sickness will not afterward grow clover with success. That is an error. Put the soil in condition again to invite clover growth, and there will be not rouble. In commercion with this question, a correspondent says that there were spots in his field this year which are nearly cleaned out. He says the clover started all right and was making a fine growth, but it began to with or divertible in the control of the school at the plant was whether this is clover sickness, whether this is clover sickness, where there will be under the clover scan and was waken and was making a fine growth, but it began to with or dry up. They are to be found, where many similar hints have been given, in the consular reports. A sample is the statement by Consul Dunlap of Cologne, Germany, who has been to the farmers' fair at Dusseldorf and evidently kept his eyes open while there. Consul Dunlap took particular note of the agricultural machinery on exhibition and which was put to test at the fair. He noted that the only American machines on exhibition were of minor importance, and adds: "An American-made harvester with self-binding attachment selfs been been been been been been dealers with self-binding attachment selfs been for about $200. There was an endless variety of plows, but no American-made ones were noticed. The plows look heavy, awkward and poorly made. If American manufacturers want German irade, they will have to make plows to conform to German ideas of size, shape and style." Here is much the same advice that has come from other consuls, all given with earnest desire to help American interests. American farming implements and machinery are justify famed for superiority in the qualities needed for effective and economical work, and when properly pushed they invariably find customers abroad. At the same time, remarks the Troy Times, due attention must be given to local tastes and preferences, a matter which is too much neglected by American manufacturers.

Divorce Statistics.

The census office is busy gathering divorce statistics, and when they are compiled and tabulated, and prinaced, some very interesting conclusions can be figured out from them. We have always admired the type of mind which attempts to tabulate human emotions, there is such a fine audacity about an effort like that, such a splendid refusal to recognize the limitations of mathematics. And we admire that kind of statistics for their own sake; they are so accommodating, so willing, so good natured; they let you work out of them any conclusion which you are minded to put into them; they exist for the convenience of the man who has a case to prove, and they are so liberal and catholic that they would just as soon help him prove. one case as another. There are few other things on earth that have so lovely a disposition as a scutteful of statistics, says Uncle Remus' Magazine. These particular statistics will probably enumerate the number of cases of renidely, the number of cases of infidelity, the number of cases of infidelity, the number of cases of cuelty, and the instances where desertion, drunkenness, and so forth, led to divorce; and the optimists will take them and be optimistic, the presumistics will take them and be potimistic, the presumistics will take them and be potimistic, the presumistics the advocates of laxer divisions of a tensure of the sum of the manufacturers and the patient of the proposed to the manufacturers and the patient of the proposed to the manufacturers and the patient of the proposed to his more than the patient of the proposed to them: they exist for the convenience of the man who has a case to prove, and they are so liberal and catholic that they would just as soon help him prove one case as another. There are few other things on earth that have so lovely a disposition as a scuttleful of statistics, asys Uncle Remus Magazine. These particular statistics will probably enumerate the number of cases of infidelity, the number of cases of cruelty, and the instances where desertion, drunkenness, and so forth, led to divorce; and the optimistic will take them and be optimistic, the pessimistic; the advocates of laxer divorce laws will prove their case, and the advocates of stiffer divorce laws will prove their, and everybody will be happy.

An appeal is being made in England for funds to undertake the great task of excavating the ruins of Memphis, the works to be done under the aus-pices of the British school of archaepieces of the British school of archae-ology. It is strange that the explora-tion of the ancient Expytian capital has been deferred so long, and it is expected that England will now do for Memphis what the French govern-ment has done for Delphi and the Ger-mans for Olympia. The sites of the four great temples are plainly marked, so that exploration can begin at once. This mass of ruins covers 100 acres, as much as the whole site of Karnak, and it is estimated that $15,000 will be needed annually for 15 years to ac-complish the work. Important ma-terial is believed to lie within a few yards of the surface, so that results should be reached promptly.

Speaking about the navy jack targ uniform, the New York Sun says: "Jack cannot wear his pancake cap when he is aquinting through the telescopic sight of a six-inch rapid-fire gun." Those who have had experience on the warships know that when Jack is engaged in fighting, or even in target practice, he doesn't as a rule wear much of anything.

CONDEMNED CATTLE

As Diseased, It is Charged, Then Pur-chased Them For a Song.

Louisville, Ky.—Dr. Samuel Bradley, city live wtock inspector, was arrested on a warrant eworn out by W. W. Davies, chairman of the board of public safety. It is alteged that Dr. Bradley, through a confederate, Lawrence Schang, purchased cattle which he had condemned as diseased, and, after sending them to a farm near the city and fattening them, sent them to the stock yards, where they were sold to hutchers. On their second appearance at the stock yards Dr. Bradley is alleged to have passed the cattle as healthy, and the technical charge against bim is that he made false entires on his books.

Together with agects of the United States government Mr. Davies has been working on the case for several weeks, and it is claimed have ample proof that Bradley and Schang did a thiving business.

Condemned steers are sold at $1.50 and are supposed to be sent to the glue factory. It is charged also that Bradley and Schang made a practice of securing hams which were diseased and of having them peddied in the poor quarters of the city on Saturday nights at reduced rates.

MISSOURI CASE LIKE KENTUCKY'S

the Matter of Trouble With

A Tax Commission Has Just Made Report That Is of Interest In This State, lifficulty in its tax system nearly exactly similar to that of Kentucky. A active similar to treated by the control of the sources of the situation in Kenneky that the form the sources of state and local revenue. The commission of the progressive states it has found no solution of the difficulties of the situation short of a constitutional amendment that will give the legislature greater liberty in dealing with the question; but it also points out that such an amendment is chiefly desirable because it will lead to separation of the sources of state revenue from the sources of county revenue. The comments of the Missouri tax commission are so pertinent to the situation in Kennicky that the following extracts will be found of interest: "We all agreed that the first step in any tax reform is the separation of the sources of state and local revenue. This change would not require the exemption of any class of property from exation. The proposed change may be effected by the adoption of a single constitutional amendment. "The seneral features of this separation of the sources of state and local revenues may be briefly summarized. The state would discontinue the levy of a general property us upon the real and personal property of the state, leaving the assessment and collection of this tax to the counties and municipalities for local purposes. This would make a saving of the large expense incident to the present dual system. It would also dispense with the work of the State Board of Equalization connected with the attempted equalization of assessment of real and personal property among the counties of the state. "The state would thereafter derive strength of the state down the reference to the state. The time the counties of the state. "The state would thereafter derive remedy. Each community could fix its own rate of valuation as its local needs may require, without subjecting its citizens to the injustice of being compelled to pay an undue share of state taxation. "There is now a certain kind of home rule in taxation, which consists in the variation of the rates of assessment upon property local needs of the community, some counties panjing taxes on 7 or 8.9 percent of the real value of property, and others only 20 or 30 per cent. The ceptor of the Tax Commission of 1993. Agas: it is in the bounds of truth tosay that no two counties of the state have the same rule for the assessment of all classes of property. Ind generally speaking, there is absolutely no uniformity as to the proportion of the cash value falsen as a basis of the assessment of the proportion of the state have the same rule. Some counties value scale state, so far as our reports show, as low as 30 per cent of its selling price, while others have a 30 per cent basis. Some assess real estate at 33½ per cent, and tangble personal property at 30 per cent. The commission concluded that there was an absolute want of equality in texation. "This incupality can not be remedied by the State Board of Equalization, for the obvious reason that the high rate of assessment in certain counties, including the city of St. Lonk, is enforced by the pressing demand for revenue for local requirements. The board can not raise the assessments of the counties which make a low valuation, as that would be imposing an unnecessary burden appont those communities.

"We see no remedy for this existing inequality and resulting injustice, except in the separation of the sources of taxalion, except as to the general property which would be assessments of the state months of the state Board of Equalization and personal property, which would be assessed and collected by ounties and therefore the counties, cities and resoluting injustice, except in the separation of the sources of taxalion, except as to the general proporty tax upon real and personal property, which would be assessed and collected by counties and tites for local purposes. The state now levies.

Digging into Jericho.
Prof. Seilin's excavations on the site of the ancient city of Jericho are yielding unexpectedly rich treasures. In bis last letters to the Vienna Academy of Science the professor writes that over 100 men are digging at five different points. One of the most interestover 100 men are digging at five different points. One of the most interesting finds is—the historical city wall, built of burnt-lime bricks. It was some ten feet in—thickness, rising from a stone foundation. On the western side of the city the wall was nearly 40 feet in width. At another point a private house was found built over another house of a still earlier epoch. Other discoveries, says Pall Mail Gazette, include lamps, plates, cups, needles, weights, mortars and mills of bronze and stone, some of very rough and-primitive handlwork—and—others very finely executed. In the inner city and primitive handlwork—and—others very finely executed. In the inner city remains of rows of houses have been uncovered. The ancient Hebrew let-tering proves that the old Hebrew characters were in use.—Prof. Sellin hopes to renew the excavating work next winter. In the meantime he says that the work aiready done has opened up a wealth of material for the student of the pre-Israelite and Canaanite period.

Drainage vs. Irrigation.

The immense possibilities of drainage in making new productive land for the United States are forcefully pointed out in the latest report of the geological survey. It is estimated that no less than 60,000,000 reces of land may be reclaimed in this manner. If less than half of this work is done, it is said that the land values of the United States would be increased $2,000,000,000 and that the crop values would be advanced $750,000,000 a year. This showing, says the Monitor Magazine, is expected to have a marked effect on congress in the matter of appropriations. But to impress the lesson still further, it is estimated that with the division of this new land into 49-acre farms, 1,250,000 families, or 6,000,000 persons, could be provided with homes; that each family would spend some $2,000 in making waste places bloom, and that the total expenditure in thus bettering the United States would be something like $2,500,000,000. Truly an imposing array of figures.

Ethical Code of Electrical Engineers. One of the most gratifying incidents of the present era of ethical awakening in America was the recent agitation in favor of the adoption of an ethical code by the Institute of Electrical Engineers. It is true that at the ethical code by the Institute of Electrical Engineers. It is true that at the recent annual meeting at Niagara the carefully prepared code, upon which a competent committee had unanimously agreed, met with delay, on mere grounds of technical procedure. The postponement of consideration by no means, however, implies rejection of the measure, says Century Magazine, and the present authorities of the institute will doubtless carry the matter forward with all constitutional—dispatch, for no member of this honorable profession, a profession yearly increasing in responsibility and importance, would be willing to go on record as permanently opposing so desirable a reform, and one which the press of the country has hailed with such cordial and significant approval.

The London Chronicle advances the proposition that literary women live long, and says that, for instance, Carolina Herschel reached the age of 98, Harriet Lee 95, Mary Somerville 92, Hannah More 88, Maria Edgeworth and Anna Barbauld 82, Jane Porter 74, Georges Sand 72, and Mary Mittord died in her 70th year. It would be easy, however, to make a list as long as that of literary women who have died young.

50,000-Barrel Oil Tank Exploded, Caus ing Spectaular Conflagration.

Oakland, Cal., Sept. 19.—One of the most spectacular fires destroyed the 50,000-barrel oil tank of the Oakland Gas, Light and Heating Co. and disabled the power plant of the company to such an extent that the city was practically in darkness Wednesday nicht.

practically in darkness Wednesday nincht.

The origin, of the fire was more than a mile from the scene. In the heart of the city a lineman accidentally dropped a heavy cable across the power wires, which short-circuited into the power house at West Oakhand.
One of the heavily charged wires broke and dropped on top of the huge oil tank, and almost instantly it was ablaze with a series of explosions. The spreat sides of the tank spilt and burning oil begain pouring in all directions over the company's property.
The loss is estimated at $100,000.
The immense oil tank and its contents were totally destroyed, and the power plant suffered much damage.

STRIKE OF 40,000 SHOE WORKERS

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 20.—Between 25,000 and 30,000 shoe workers, including almost every craft of the work, will walk out on a strike at 8 o'clock Friday morning. The general strike order followed the walking out of about 7,000 shoe workers. It means that every shoe factory in St. Louis, with the exception of the Friedman & Shelby Co., who have acceeded to the demands of the union, and three or four shops who employ members of the International Shoe Workers' union, will probably be entirely shut down by Saturday.

The strikers are divided as follows:
Cutters, I,500; stitchers, I,200; sympathizers from various crafts, including lasters, bottomers, edgemakers, slock fitters and finishers, about 5,000. The strikers declare they are prepared to stay, out six months or more, and that in the end they will; close down every factory which employes members of the order.

ings is Read From Trust's Books in Open Court.

New York, Sept. 21.—Evidence of oppressive and extortionate measures, monopoly of supply, arbitrary fixing of prices and glaring adherence to methods of management stamped lilegal by the courts, piled up at the two sessions of the investigation of the Standard Oil trust of New Jersey, and in addition Inquisitor Kellogg added to the record another chapter of settletics showing the amazing profits which the trust has wrested from the people in the last 20 years.

An incomplete examination of the records of the liquidating trustees, unofficially made public, shows that whee 1832 the trust has recaped profits agregating $400,000,000.

From the books of the New Jersey Standard Kellogs brought to light the present atockholdings of the oil magnitude that the present atockholdings of the oil magnitude that the control the record of the stockholders. But a round ozen men absolutely control the organization with all its vasc capital and earnings.

John D. Rockefeller, bortion of the liquidating certificates was anotted to him. The estate of Oharles H. Fratt controls $2,528 z shares, the D. M. Harkness estate, 42,000, Oilver H. Fayne, 40,000; Heary M. Fingler, 50,000.

By this list it is shown that William Rockefeller, brother of Le Roi Du Pe Payne, 40,000; Henry M. Flagler, 30,000.

By this list it is shown that William Rockefeller, brother of Le Roi Du Petroleum, as the French call John D., owns ofnly 11,700 and H. H. Rogers to the surprise of the street only 15,200. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., possesses only 120 shares, and his wife 32, while H. H. Rogers, jr., has to his credit 1,605 ohares.

As the present value of Standard Oil stock is $440 a share it is a matter of simple arithmetic to figure out the wealth possessed by the holders of this stock on this item alone.

John D., for instance, starts his fortune with $108,989,480 in oil stocks alone, which takes no account of the dividends he has drawn from it nor from the accretions from investments in the thousand and one interests with which he is identified.

from the accretions from investments in the thousand and one interests with which he is identified.

There sting as these figures are, they are but a sidelight on the lavestigation that is under way before Examiner Ferris. Note the significant fact, which was the main reason for bringing out these stockholdings that either the same men or their heirs now control the oil trust that wielded its destinies in the days when it was out lawed.

That is what Kellogg is hammering at—the same men, the same methods; nothing has changed since the Standard Oil trust of Ohio was ordered discolved except the name. Then it was the Standard of Ohio; now it is the Standard of New Jersey; with the same constituent companies, the same anagement, the same extortionate prices, the same autocratic methods. Tillord was again the star witness. Kellogg forced from him an admission before the session was an hour old that the Standard of New York controls the export market, that it secured this advantage by oppressing a group of Pennsylvania refiners and exacting from them a monopolistic agreement; und that in consequence of this monopoly the Standard adopts a scale of prices which it hands its brokers, whereupon they become the "official" prices for the trade. Tillord's testimony on this point was particularly illuminating.

The Kind of Food Used by Athletes.

A former college athlete, one of the long distance runners, began to lose his power of endurance. His experience with a change in food is interesting.

"While I was in training on the track athletic team, my daily 'logs' became a task, until after I was put on Grape-Nuts food for two weeks I felt like a new man. My digestion was perfect, nerves steady and I was full of energy.

"I-trained for the mile and the half mile runs (those events which require so much endurance) and then the long daily 'logs,' which before had been such a task, were clipped off with ease. I won both events.

"The Grape-Nuts food put me in perfect condition and gave me my 'ginger'. Not, only was my physical condition made perfect, and my weight in creased, but my mind was made clear and viscorous so that I could get out my studies in about half the time formerly required. Now most all of the University men' use Grape-Nuts for they have learned its value, but I think my testimony will not be amiss and may perhaps help some one to learn how the best results can be obtained."

the Creator gave these women common sense, they little know how to utilize it.

Some means should be devised to tax directly or indirectly the concerns in foreign cities that seek to do business directly with consumers through the unails. At present they are protected by the interstate commerce law. These concerns make their money by dealing with the people of some community, where they pay no takes direct or license fees.

The merchants of the town are taxed upon the business they do, is this proposition a fair one? The foreign insurances companies doing birstness in a state must pay a license fee for so doing. Why not compel the foreign mercantile concern to do the same? Our-national-laws should be so constructed as to provide that there be a tax on the amount of business transacted in a state by any mercantile concern in another state, unless the business he transacted by concerns which pay taxes within the state for the doing of such business.

During the past ten years coton manufacturing in the south has increased more than a bundred percent, and there has been a decrease furing centers in the New England states in proportion to the increase in consumption. A score of years ago the great floor manufacturing centers were in New York and other castern states. To day the west controls manufactures of flour and cereal foods. When mills are located in centers of wheat and corn producing sections in uniber sufficient to utilize the crops of local territory, it will work a benefit to the farmers of the land in freight rates or raw products to manufacturing centers, and the distribution cost consumers of the land. Tariff and Patent Monopoly.
There never was a day in the history of cotton production in this country when one per cent. of the enhancement of the price of cotton came from the tariff. Yet the tariff has increased the price of everything the planter or the laborer in his cotton field had to pay for plows, scrapers, shovels, axes, hores, barbed wire, goaring, gins, cotton-oli, mill marchiner, clothing, sugar salt—in fact every manufactured product. The same is true of all other producers, except manufacturers. Some manufacturers have double monopolies. They have patent rights in addition to tariff protection. One or the other ought to be denied them. No monopoly should be allowed to rob people at its own will. The tariff on products made by patented machinery or processes should be abolished. If this were done the Steel trust "protection" would no longer be worth $1,00,000, but only what the constitution secures to it as the value of its patents. environments improved.

The individual is responsible for the corporate morals. They, are in reality neither good nor had corporations, as such. A corporation is only a mechanism invented and used by men for their conveniences, and profit. What is, if the property is the corporation is only a mechanism are responsible for it. If a railroad train or a street, and the men, in the mechanism, are responsible for it. If a railroad train or a street car, or an automobile sruns over a person, we arrest the engineer, conductor, motorman, or chantfeur, and punish him. We don't demolish the engine, or the motor car. Neither do we fine them. Fining corporations is no engine, or the motor car. Neither do we fine them. Fining corporations is not engine, or the motor car. Neither do we fine them. Fining corporations is not engine, or the motor car. Neither do we fine them. Fining corporations is not engine, or the motor car. Neither do we fine them, the motor car. When the siates, such as North Carolina, pass laws for the imprisonment of railroad agents who defy the state's authority, these former corporations; attorneys, like Judge Pritchard, attempt to nullify those laws. But the states will imprison the criminal agents of the trusts, nevertheless. Governor Glenn, of North Carolina, has set an example that should, and probably will be widely followed.

Would Reduce Cost of Living.
Mr. Haldane, the British war secretary, has just placed an order for 400,000 horse shoes in this country. Horse-shoes are protected by a tariff of one cent a pound. Under that duty the American buyer of horse shoes pays a considerably higher price for them than the Pritish army. This is only one recent example of the familiar fact of high prices for home consumption. low prices for the foreign buyer. The Standard Oil monopoly is a fattened child of the tariff. Oil itself is duty free. In practice the Standard would stamp out breign competition as it stamps out domestic competition; and upon many of its more than a hundred by-products it is heavily protected. So it-too sells—abroad far cheaper than at home.

The tariff duties on potatoes, blank taken its goods, tin plate, woolen yarns and ciothing, soap, oilcioth, linen, glassware, affect directly every shopping woman: upon a thousand articles they affect her indirectly. A reason able reduction of the tariff, not in 1909, but now, would reduce in every home the cost of living.

home the cost of living.

The Little Brown Man.

The war department thinks self-government is a failure in the Philippines, because a lärge majority of the Filipinos voted for the party that stood for independence. It is a good joke the little brown men played on the President and the war department by making them believe up to the day of the election of the Philippine legislature that they favored the party which had declared for statebood and beling part of the United States. It was really too bad to deceive those great and good men who were taxing without representation and governing the Filipinos without their right to say yea or nay. But the mask has been removed and the Independents will now have a chance to discuss the continuation of enormous taxes mostly-used to provide soft snaps for Republican politicians that could not hold their heads above the political stream in the United States. The administration will now have to suppress the legislature or veto its decrees.

"Anarchy by injunction" is the heading which the Darlington (Wis.) Democrat places over an article on Judge Pritchard's doings in North Carolina. Pretty good name for it! To call it government by anjunction would be a misnomer.

TOBACCO COMBINE FINED.

Jury Finds American Co. Gulity of Vio-lating Anti-Trust Law.

Newcastle, Ky.—The jury in the case of the common-wealth against the American Tobacco Co. brought in a verdict of guilty and assessed a fine of $2.700 against the trust for alleged violation of the antitrust laws.

The proceedings against he company were quasi-criminal, being founded on petition instead of indictment.

The commonwealth alleged that the American Tobacco Co. unfawfully entered into an agreement, became a member of and a party to a pool or Urist, with the Continental Tobacco Co. and other organizations for the purpose of regulating and controlling the price of tobacco in the leaf, there by committing the crime of conspiracy against the peace and dignity of the commonwealth of Kentucky, to the damage to the commonwealth of $5,000.

The jury, after hearing the evidence

The jury, after hearing the evidence and receiving the instructions of the court, retired for a verdict, and was out over an hour.

This is the first instance in Kentucky where a so-called trust has been tried on such a charge.

The case will be appealed by the attorneys of the American Tobacco Co.

NESDAY, SEPT. 25th, 1907.

The State Fair which closed at Louisville, last Saturday was a grand success in every particular.

The American Tobacco Com-pany was found guilty of confed-erating to control prices by a Henry county jury, last Thurs-day, and a fine of $2,700 assess-ed against the Company.

The Kentucky State Temperance Society is planning to carry its fight into the next legislature, in the hope of making the entire state prohibition. The contest promises to be a bitter one.

The Tri-County Fair, composed of the counties of Carroll, Gallatin and Owen, closed its first meeting at Sanders, last Saturday week, and was pronounced a howling success by its management.

If the crowds attending the political speakings in the state, are as large as claimed by the daily papers, a hault will have to be called soon, in order to give the farmers a chance to harvest their crops of corn and tobacco.

The Kentucky Colonel is the name of a monthly magazine published at Germantown, Ky., in the interest of the "New Kentucky," a copy of which has been received at this office. This is the only magazine of its kind published in the state.

The people of Carrollton are making an effort to have a monument erected to the memory of Gen. William O. Butler, who was a soldier who won distinction on the battlefield during the war of 1812 and in the Mexican war, and was also, the Democratic nominee for vice president in 1848 upon the ticket with Gen. Cass.

A primary election for the purpose of selecting a Democtatic candidate for Representative of the S3rd legislative district, to be voted for at the November election, has been called for Monday, Oct. 14, in Gallatin county. The use of liquor, money, property or anything of value by any candidate, for the purpose of influencing his election, is prohibited.

At the election in Oklahoma
Tuesday of last week, the constitution was adopted by a vote of three to one; prohibition carried by at least 30 000 majority; the entire Democratic tucked was elected by from 30,000 to 35,000 majority; four of the five Congressmen are Democratic, the legislature is largely Democratic, and the Democrats will elect two U. S. Senators.

The Grant county News says:
"More than three million pounds of white burley tobacco grown in Grant county during the year 1996 is stored in various pooling houses in the county, and about three hundred and fifty thousand pounds belonging to the pool still in the hands of the growers, is being delivered as rapidly as possible to make room for the crop being harvested."

The profits of the Standard Oil Company, of Indiana, last year, were $10,516,082 and in 1903 $8,753,410. This is the corporation which is capitalized at $1,000,000 and which was fined $29,240,000 by Judge Landis in Chicago. These figures were brought out in New York last week in a hearing in an action by the Federal Government against the Standard Oil Company, of New Jersey.

The Hon. Augustus Willson Republican candidate for Gover Republican candidate for Governor, is against general prohibition in the state—he thinks it will be well enough for the people in the country and small cities to be deprived of their toddy, but that the larger cities should determine for themselves the control of the liquor question. Mr. W. H. Cox, candidate for Licutenant Governor on the same tickel, declares unreservedly for a general county unit law.

A copy of the Democratic Hand A copy of the Democratic Hand Book issued by the State Campaign Committee, has been received at this office, an among the many phings things it charges against the Republican party is this: That President Roosevelt offered an asylum and protection to W. S. Tayler in New York, and that Kentucky Republicans are being urged to support Vice-President Fairbanks for President because of the friendship shown by Fairbanks to Taylor sunce he has been a refugee in Indiana.

STORY BY THE "HIGHWAY AND BYWAY" PREACHER

Authority:-2 Samuel

Even the loftlest ambition must be ordered after the counsels of God's will.

David showad a sublime spirit of submission and found new revelations of the purposes of God as he yielded his will to the will of God.

will of God.

It is ever true that the pathway of submission to the Divine will leads to the place of larger blessing.

will leads to the place of larger blessing.
David desired to build a tem-ple and God gave him a pol-terity whose crowning glory and triumph was the Christ. How true then as now that God is "able to do exceeding abundant-ly above ail that we ask or "shick."

bafore.

Nathan's haste in indereing the plans of David brought him embarrassment, for he was compelled to return to David with a message which he must have feared would displease the king and bring him into reproach. He should have waited until he had learned the mind of the Lord. It seemed a very worthy and proper ambition to him until the searchlight of the Divine will was turned upon it and then he knew that both he and David must true their course according to the unchanging polar star of the eternal purposes of God. Here there is the leason for you and must true their course according to the unchanging polar star of the eternal purposes of God. Here there is a slow to indoor the eternal purposes of God. Here there is the leason for you and must true their course according to the unchanging polar star of the eternal purposes of God. Here there is a slow to indoor hear the Divine Will. #### THE STORY.

THE STORY.

NOT only had the religious life of King David been quickened by the bringing of the ark to Jernsalem, but that of the whole nation as well, and the king found new delight and purpose in the performance of his religious devotions as he came to realize how the people looked to him as example and leader, and were pleased to follow him in a closer observance of the Mosaic law.

The sad tragedy connected with bringing up the ark had stirred the hadion profoundly, and the depression which had followed gave place later to a more profound reverence for God, for David had completed the task of bringings up the ark had stirred the nation profound reverence for God, for David had recompleted the task of bringings up the ark to the royal-eity and placing it within the holy of holles in the tabernace. Thus he had reassured the people.

What a glad time that had, heen and the tabernacie. Thus he had reassured the people. What a glad time that had heen and how King David had won the admiration and love of the people as he had minsied in common with them. In the joyral procession that danced before the Lord as the ark progressed upon its journey. And what a new meaning the sacrifices had taken on in the regard of the people as the solemn service was performed at short intorvals upon the journey. David having caused the erection of altars along the line of the march. And following the glad but solemn ceremony of installing the ark in its place in the temple had come as we have said, a revival in the heart of the king as well as in the heart of the king as well as in the heart of the king taking delight in leading the fathing to the Lord were regularly and fathfully performed by all the people, the king taking delight in leading the leading the larking delight in leading the he king taking delight in leading the people in this respect.

One day after King David had been to the tabernade to present his oftering hefore the Lord and to have the priest make sacrifice for him he was in particular elation of spirits, and his whole heart overflowed with impulse to honor the God who had so signally blessed him and who now had given about.

"Why, this splendid palace of cedaris a monument and testimony to the friend whom the Lord has rissed by for me in Histan, king of Tyre." Bayder and the stately portal and proceeded to the inner private apartments, whither he had leved of late to withdraw himself and let his mind centemplate the things of God and to dwell upon his holy law. Laying aside his outer robe, he stretched himself upon the low divan in a nook of the spacious apartment overlooking a courtway in which rare flowers bloomed and cool waters; played like a chime of aweet-toned belis.

"What more could the heart of the king desire, seeing that the Lord hith established me in the kingdom and given me this splendid house in which to dwell. My heart does magnify the Lord, and I do long to serve him and to establish the people in their devotion to the Lord. What more can i do?" And David lay in silent medication striving to find some new way in which he could show honor to God and prove his devotion before all the nation. Strangely enough his mind kept reverting to the recent incidents connected with bringing up the ark to Jerusalem, and he soon was absorbed in tracing the journey step by step. and the sound of music and with the sound of music and with dancing. The ark was restored to its place in the Labernacie.

Suddenly, almost vidorelly, the king sat bolt upright as the thought flashed across his mind that the ark of the Lord rests still within. the curtained within a thereascle made of curtains, and he, the king, dwelt within a house made of redar. With almost a reproach in his eyes he looked about him, as he erclaimed:

"Can it be that I am content to dwell-within a house made of redar. With almost a reproach in his eyes he looked about him, as he erclaimed:

"Can it be that I am content to dwell-within the surface of the rown and the prophet with him the curtained walls of the tabernacie, as it did when our fathers of the first part of the laber him to be a state of the laber him to the surface him to the laber him to the laber hi

"You remember that descriptive storm piece I used to play when I wished to show off at boarding school? Well, I literally made the plano crash with thunder, and I had hallstones and big raindrops rattling and pattering solisly against the windows and shingles. Perhaps I improvised a little and got in more thunder than the composer's score called for, but I was determined to drown Jack's snores, and to make the storm more realistic, I switched the lights on and off a few times. Finally, I heard Jack get up from the lounge and mumble something about the heat.

Seifish, Helpiess Women.

The helpiess woman is the most preeminently seifish of all women. The worst of it is that it is a very hard seifishness to fight against, as as is usually sweet-tempered in her tyranay. "Shortly after his arrival at Swine-munde the kaiser was standing on the bridge of the Hohenzollern, when he noticed that the sentry, a member of the Stettiner Royal Grenadiers, on duty near the customs officer, wore a topcoat, but had his trousers over his hoots. The Kaiser shouted to the lieutenant of the guard: 'Lieutenant, when topcoats are worn the trousers must be worn linside the boots.' The officer, an extremely youthful fellow, became confused and did not know what to say, and the emperor called in louder tones; 'Lieutenant, I again call your attention to the regulation—hoots must be worn over the trousers by men who wear topcoats.' The command then flew from post to post, and pedestrians wondered why the soldlers suddenly became busy with their boots.

The press committee of the Proprietary Association of America will present at the next meeting of that body a report showing the number of accidential deaths caused by patent medicines in the two years anding June 30, 1907, as compared with deaths from on their causes.

Almost immediately after the bidding of the latest crussed against proprietary medicines this committee was instructed to collect data. Thiswork was done through the clipping bureaus, which furnished accounts of all deaths, exclusive of suicide, due to the misuse-of-medicines, druss or poisons. The result showed that only three per cent. could be traced directly to the products made by the members of the association.

The greatest care is said to have been exercised in tabulating the figures received. Wheisver the cause of death was doubtful, special investigation was made, no matter where the case might have occurred. The work of assorting and preparing the record was done to Chiesse, and the record was any medicine, the cause of the chiesse of patent medicine ecaped the newspapers, but that it is profused to the cause of patent medicine ecaped the newspapers, but that it is profused to the cause of patent medicine ecaped the newspapers, but that it is profused to the cause of t Japanese Officers Among ti tims—Cause of Explesion is Under Investigation.

Tokyo, Sept. 18.—Porty of the crew were killed and injured on board the Japanese battle ship Kashima, by the explorion of a 12-inch shiell within the shield after target practice near Kars on Spirember 9.

The Kashima, under command of Capt. Kolzumi, resched Kure, where the wounded were placed in a hospital. The fatabilies included a lieutenant, for catched and one star officer, the right and one star officer, the right and name of whom is not given.

rink and name of whom is acceptive.

The exact details regarding the effects of the explosion are lacking, but it was terrific and the ship is badly damaged. The explosion followed as attempt to remove an unexploded shell from the gun. A majority of the bystanders were fearfully muthated. The candities are as follows:

Killed—Five officers (names not given) and 22 meh.

Severely wounded—Two officers and sky men.

Slightly wounded—Two officers and six men.

The cause of the explosion is under investigation. It occured inside the shield of the sterboard after ten-inch gun. It was not the shield which exploded, but powder, which evidentally caught for from the gas emitted from the breach when opened for the purpose of reloading the gun. The hulf of the Kashima is not damaged.

Two years ago the Kashima, buttle by a British firm for the Jaganeses navy, hunched from the Elswich ship yards. The vessel is 455 feet long and 78 feet wide, with 16,400 displacement. The main armament comprised four 12-inch guns, four ten-inch guns, 12 six-inch guns in the citadel. For the 12-inch guns the projectiles weigh 350-pounds each, with cordite charge. No armer which any ship can carry can hope to cope with their penetrating form.

Independent magazines are provided for each pair of 12 inch guns and for each ten-inch gun, while the siz-inch and smaller quick-firing guns may obtain their supplies from a passage running right around the 'machinery' spaces below the protective deck. The torpedo tubes are located in water-tight chambers, two forward, and two art, firing on the broadsides, and one tube firing right astern, also under water. The protection afforded to the engine and boilers of the vessel by the side armor and protective deck is increased by the arrangement of the coal bankers, which are designed so as to minimize labor to the furnace.

Horribis Method of Suicide.

Most people have at some time witnessed revolting slights, but the falling of a guicide from the cathedral tower onto the pavement, 220 feet below, into the midst of the hurrying neonday crowd, upon whose faces and clothes his exploiding debris scattered itself, which was seen in Antwerp recently, beggars description. A merchant known as Jacques Simons quietly left his wife and two children at home, as if to go on some business errand, made straight for the cathedral tower, climbed it, and without an instant's hesitation, buried himself into space. History relates that no one has jumped from this tower since the suicide of its architect, to whom a popular legend of the sixteenth century attributes the name fate, small bits of brass marking the spot on the pavement where he fell.

The New-Fashloned Country Girl.

Amid all the pleasurable recollestions of the summer possessed by the crowds of city dwellers herding back to town, it is safe to hazard there is not one distinct impression of that one-time dominant figure on the country landscape—the old-fashloned, unapplisticated, brown-cheeked girl, with the rustic, woodland air of poetry. In her place in memory and on the films that the amateur will develop later is another creature, to whom rusticity is a matter of psychological analysis and unsophistication a sociological problem. As the modern country girl is so often a product of higher education, remarks the Troy Times, a new value has been given to rural life. To her not only nature in her infinity but even "the meanest flower that blows" can give not only thoughts that lie too deep for tears, but can also afford opportunity for the profoundest use of a knowledge of botany. The physiological value of sunburn she understands and will expound: the chemical constituents of air that's fresh she knows by rote. To her the earth is no more a mere stretch of landscape to be admired, but soil and subsoil to be fed as per the formula which she can and probably will convey to you in no mistak. The horse of the convent of the profoundest which she knows. She may be discovered "coming through the rye," but it's no hazard to affirm that her interest mentime is in the quality of the grain, and any possibility of an amorous meeting midway is farthest from her mind and mood. The romaneers and the poets still deftly evolve the rustic maiden unsophisticate, but the maid herself we now seek in vain.

The Human Form Divine.

When Fleiding in "Tom Jones" said

cate, but the maid herself we now seek in vain.

The Human, Form Divine.

When Fielding in "Tom Jones" said of Sophia Western that "her shape was not only exact but extremely delicate," he used one of the beat words that perverse fate ever dropped from polite use. There is an aptness, simplicity and a certain quiet gentleman-plicity and a certain quiet gentleman substitutes of today. In our speech, Anne, so often brushing away sweetness with the merely timely or "smart," the only people who have shapes are those who have little else. Graces of mind or heart are not supposed to reside in them. If they sumiciently, shine behind the footlights, "our 28—Beautiful Dreaden Dolis—Graces of mind or heart are not supposed to reside in them. If they sumiciently, shine behind the footlights, "our 28—Beautiful Dreaden Dolis—Graces of mind or heart are not supposed to reside in them. If they sumiciently, shine behind the footlights, "our 28—Beautiful Dreaden Dolis—Ge," nothing more is asked or expected. The word "figure" almost inevitably connotes something for he hourslaby connotes something rounded, soft and yielding. You can not speak of a woman's form without at least a suggests something rounded, soft and yielding. You can not speak of a woman's form without at least a suggestion of nudity. And such phrases as "angular form" are as clashing in connotation as "tivid gray." "Shape," on the other hand, connotes nothing at all but outline. One may speak of a rounded shape, an angular shape, a cause or a delicate shape, with equal propriety. It is, declares Collier's Weekly, the best word in the language for the place. Here—and in an age of many inventions it is well to watch and prevent such things—with all our improvements we have not improved.

Perils of Chioroform.

At the recent meeting of the British scientists at Leicester, Dr. Waller laid before the physiological section some facts to show the perils of chioroform. The list of deaths in the past 50 years due to this cause is 'incomplete and yet was unable to sive percentages in comparison with the total number of operations, but he held that the danger is still great, and that surgeons are remarkably ignorant as to the quantity required to produce the deading of the produce the pre

Here in this incident we find another side of David's nature of revealed. Here he is the loyal feland keeping faith with the choice companios of his young manhood, Jonathan. Here, after the flight of the years and the mutitiplying of the burdens and carea reating upon him, we find him taking time and thought to redeem the promise made so long before. Loyalty to the friend of the long ago. Faith fulness in redeeming the promise in greater than that which Saul had ever dreamed of ruling. Richea and honors were showered upon him in such measure as to have made it not at all strange if all thought and care for former things had then the strange if all thought and care for former things had been drived in a surface of the promise of the years before and he hastened to fulfill it.

Such act on the king's part could be the companies of the years before and he hastened to fulfill it.

Such act on the king's part could not have been without much ascrifice of personal comfort, as well as the giving up of the rich possessions of Saull which had come to him in right work in the surface of the surface of the faithful discharge of that old bilgish. THE STORY.

A MESSENGER from King David!

A the news of his coming spread quickly througa the country about Lodebar, and soon the people were eagerly discussing the purpose of the visit. Did he bring good tidings or Bi? Was his mission one of peace or did he come with some sinister motive? And when it was learned that the messenger had gone straight to the house of Machir, the chief man of the place, in fact, the most powerful shiet in that part of the country, and had inquired after one Mephilosheth, who was said to dwell there, the knowing ones said it boded ill for the sun of Jonathan, the son of Saul.

Tidings of the growing power of King Bavid had reached Lodebar from time to time and no more eager listener to the stories could be would always manage to get to the place where the news being discussed, and though taking no active part in the conversation he futer-jected brief and though taking no active part in the conversation he interjected brief conversation he had always brought, out all the details of the Story.

Although only five years old when the track events fell upon the house hold of Saul they had burned them salves into his tender mind. The construction of the royal household when the resedual tidlings of the reaction was preparation was made on the story.

that day he had women's the considered his helplessnear that he had.

As we have said, he was always in the left of the considered his helplessnear that he had.

As we have said, he was always in the left of the considered his helplessnear that he had he had helplessnear the reliance of his birth, and had followed with special interest the rising for tunes of King David. The old servent who had carried him and carried for him tenderly in his youth had told him of the great friendship which had existed between King David and his father, and much of the gentic, herote spirit which had characterized his father was possessed by himself. He felt a warm glow in his heart at every mention of King David's name, and had a longing desire to have him for his friend, too.

When it was suggested to him once that the kingdom of inract belonged to him by right of inheritance rather than to David, and that had it not been that he was a cripple he might by force of arms have asserted his rights, he had replied with spirit that if his father Jonathan had recognised the divine will and was willing to yield the kingdom to the man whom God had chosen for king surely he was nat soing to be less a man. He foll he could honor the memory of his noble father in no better way than to cherish the friendship which he had held for David.

And so it was when the messenger came from David seeking him, he did not share the evil forcebodings which troubled his friends. They were certain that King David potted his hurt, and that for him to place him, self entirely in David's power was to court disaster of the most distressing kind.

self entirely in David's power was to court disaster of the most distressing kind.

Be it good or bad which shall be fall me," he had replied, quietly, "nevertheless I will go. I would see the fall me," he had replied, quietly, "nevertheless I will go. I would see the face of him who was so great a friend of my father." And quickly gathering his household together, he prepared to leave with the messenger on the following day.

"How came King David to know of me and my whereabouts" he questioned the messenger as they made their journey.

"One Ziba, a servant of the house of Saul, thy grandfather, told him of thee and he would not rest content until he had sent for thee," the messenger replied.

"But why should the king take thought for one like me, who an least of all my father's house—and a cripple." he added, sadly.

"Ah but thou knowest not the goodness of the king's heart. His thought is toward the least of his people in Israel. Surely thou knowest the great love which he had for thy father. Jonathan, and would he not desire to do kindness unto his son?"

"But do not the great burdene of rolling so wast a kingdom press heavy upon him and give him no time to follow the dictates of his own heart?"

"Again thou dost not understand or know the king, for more precious in his sight is loyalty to the friend of former days than all the prestige and honor and glory which the making of new and powerful friends can bring," was the earnest response.

And so as they journeyed the heart of Mephibosheth was cheered by the goodly account which the messenger gave of all the righteous acids of the king, until at last he exclaimed:

"Surely, God hath chosen a man like unto himself to rule over his people."

In this spirit of adorstion for King David, Mephibosheth entered Jeruss

"Surely, God hath chosen a man like unto himself to rule over his people."

In this spirit of adoration for King David, Mephibosheth entered Jerusalem: and was shown into the royal presence. And Mephibosheth tell upon upon his face to the ground and did the king reverence. But the latter came forward quickly and placing his hand upon the bowed head, said, affectionately.

"Mephibosheth: earneatly.
"Behold thy servant," responded. Mephibosheth, earneatly.
"Tear not, Mephibosheth, for I-will surely shew thee kindness for Jonathan thy father's sake, and will restore thee all the land of Saul thy father; and thou shalt eat bread at my table continually," said David.
The possessions of the house of Saul and a place at the royal table! Royal and the shall have been a dream. Could it be true? Again he Mephibosheth listends as one in a dream. Could it be true? Again he bowed himself before the king, and will said:
"What is thy servant, that thou bowed himself before the king, and of the royal household and calling list."
But the king would hear no more, but forthwith gave orders that Mephibosheth was to become a member of the royal household and calling liberation of the royal household and calling liberation of the croyal household an

Where The Horse is Considered.

Where The Horse is Considered.

The Canadian country on the northeshore of the St. Lawrence is very hilly indeed in some places. The country "gets a move on" occasionally, if the people on not. We can readily believe it to be an earthquake region, so jumbled up did the hills appear. We were told that the first church of Les Eboulements, our well-named village, slid into the St. Lawrence, and that is why the second was built on the top of a mountain a couple of miles back from the shore. Our farm-house was one of those on the plateau about half way up between the wharf and the village. We took a buckboard to the latter the day after we arrived at the former, but no more driving for us in that direction. What is the use when at every hill—and you-can go fin no direction without encountering specimens steep as the side of a house—the driver gets off the vehicle imself and politely requests his passengers to do the same. If you do not instantly comply, the horse turns around and gives you a look so reproachful that you skip off the buckboard in a trice, to toil meekly upwards in the leat and the dust.—The Travel Magazine.

BURLINGTON, . . KENTUCKY

A Significant Nickname.
The unfeeling frankness of youth does not stop at unpleasant truth-telling. Even the geztle sex may suffer at the hands of its brothers. It is dangerous for a girl—at least for a girl at a coeducational school—to echo Burn's wish,

'O wad some Pow'r the giftie gie u "O wad some Pow"r the giftle gie us To see oursel's as others be', us! lest her desire be realized with unexpected fulness. For—could mind of women ever think 1t?—the boys of these schools have nicknamed their sister students "fussers!" Was the name born of the numerous sofa pillows and footstools with which the maldens fill their rooms, the chafing-dishes and teatables and hatpin-cases and ring-boxes and alpenstocks and rocking chairs which make dangerous a hasty progress through the femirocking chairs which make dangerous a hasty progress through the femi-nine study? At all events, the com-bination of these feminine acquisitions has embodied itself in the crisp, mas-culine epithet, "fusser." Perhaps the phrase is a comment on a state of mind as well as on a method of house-keeping. In the opinion of the college boy, Maid Marian "fusses" about less-sons, about "marks," about commit-tees about what faculty or classmates. sons, ahout "marks," ahout committees, ahout what faculty or classmates

All the iron furnaces in the world produced less jon in 1894 than will be turned out of the furnaces in the United States during the current year, if the rate of production for the first six months is maintained. This fact indicates a marvelous expansion in the iron husiness. No more convincing. indicates a marvelous expansion in the iron business. No more convincing proof of the solid foundation of the nathe iron business. No more convincing proof of the solid foundation of the national prosperity could be afforded than this, for it is well known that a nation's consumption of iron is an index to its business condition. This is not because there is any mysterious virtue in Iron, but because iron is used extensively only in prosperous times. Nearly 13,500,000 tons of pigiron were turned out from January till June. This is more than the total yearly output for any 12 months prior to 1899, and more than either Germany or England have ever made in any full year. There are no indications of a falling off in the American production. On June 30 29 new furnaces were under construction, and 13 more were projected. The United States produces more iron and more cotton than any other country. It exports the greater part of the cotton, but uses nearly all of the iron in its own industies.

The scarabaeus, the sacred beetle of Egypt, was an object of worship in olden days, and was most carefully embalmed at death. The ancient Egyptians believed the heart to be the center of intellect as well as the source of life, and removed this organ when the embaiming process took place, a model of the scarabaeus being put in its place. There are many varieties of this sacred beetle, as the monuments in Egypt show. The scarab was the favorite insignia of both men and women, and was worn as a charm to protect from harm and Insure desirable qualities to make them attractive. Many hard stones were used for these models, and turquoiss matrix, lapis-lazuli, jasper, amethyst, agaté and onyx being much in favor. Some of the ancient ones are cleverly cut and, were used as coin of the realm. The finest are found with the mummles in old tombs.

What a pity it would have been had the Bastile been taken in the winter, rather than in the summer. No doubt those who participated in that famous victory found it full bot enough at the tirke, but those who now recall their doughty achievements with feast and dance would have found far less incentive from a French summer. In this way does a kindly fate look heedfully to the future. The perspiring and powder-grimed fighters of the Place de la Bastille a hundred years ago little thought how much their descendants would appreciate the July weather which is an established part of the great autonal fete.

resident Says Every Man Must Have a Master; if He Does Not Master Himself, Someone Else Will.

Keokuk, Ia., Oct. 2.—Keokuk put on her Sunday dress to receive the president of the United States when he arrived here at 9 oclock. Truesday and the people of the city were assisted in their reception of the chief magistrate by a notable gathering of distinguished amen, including governors of more than a dozen states, a number of members of both houses of congress and the members of the inland waterways commission.

The occasion of the president's coming was the movement in the interest of a deep-water way down the Mississippi river to the guif and this city was selected as the point of embarkation on his vorgas down the river, which will end at Memphis next Friday. The president was given a drive through the city and made a noteworthy speech at Rand park to many thousands of people. The reception to the president both along the line of march and at the park was cordial in the extreme and he was in excellent health and spirits.

As at Canton, the president did not deliver his speech just as he had prepared it and given it to the press. He did not omit any feature and but frequently turned from his manuscript to interject extemporanous remarks for the "propose of emphasis and elaboration. Before beginning he insisted that the ropes be let down so as to admit enough people to fill a number of vocant seats and when a man and woman appeared carrying children the president directed that they be given chairs.

"Now" he said when these preliminaries had been arranged to his satisfaction "you can proceed."

How a Tiny Sentinel Warmed Off an Unvelcome Intruder.

Insects express emotion by bodily gestures, says a writer in Harper's. An mimetic language, housh far more limited, is not less intelligible than vocal speech. Indeed, a glance of the eye, a movement of the hand, a shrug of the shoulder, a stamp of the foot, a toss of the head may betray in man the true thought or feeling, even when spoken language is used to conceal it. We may sind, perhaps, that this medium serves insects no less efficiently for communication, within that limited range—of ideas, shall we say?—to which their faculties are confined.

Let us stand before the oak tree and watch a double stream of mound-making ants (Formica exsectoides) throughing up and passing down the well-marked trail that leads to a herd of aphides upon some branches that overhang a stone fence. The motion of a finger near the trunk attracts the attention of a sentinel—one of a number that seems to be guarding the behanks of the column. It halts, thrusts out its antennae, and shows signs of excitement. As an experiment, the finger its approached within an inch or more of the ant. Its antennae wave rapidly. Its head and body jerk with eager intenseness. It stretches forth the head and reaches out its fore legs, with jaws eagerly agape and antennae quivering. The whole attitude and every bodily dotall clearly express to the observer the ideals of vigilance; of suspicion; of a challenge; of a purpose to repeil. As plainly as if it had spoken, the sentinel has said: "I suspect you. I test you. I bid you begone!" We on-lookers understand?

Got Discount All Right.

Lord Sholto Douglas was talking, at a dinner in Detroit, about American business methods.

"Since I have been a bagman—I mean a drummer—for a jewelry firm" said the young man, "I have learned to admire American business methods tremendously. To succeed here, though, one needs to be very sharp, and clever, indeed, the sharpness and cleverness of American buyers is a constant amazement to me.
"The other day I was in a village general store, endeavoring to make a saile of Jewelry, when a farmer entered."

saie of Jewelry, when a farmer entered.

"Give me, said the farmer, a half pound of tobacco, three bars of soap, five yards of blue baby ribbon and a pair of good suspenders."

"The articles were brought forth, inspected, approved and wrapped up. They came to 95 cents.

"Yes,' said the farmer, '95's right. But there's the discount, You advertise a 5 per cent. discount, don't you?", "We do sir,' said the clerk, but only on purchases of $1 or over, "On the counter lay a basket of pocket combs marked 5 cents apiece. "Well, I'll just take one of these,' said the farmer. "That'll make us square."

Must Quit Using Oplum.

According to the Chinese oplum regulations of last November all feachers, scholars, soldiers and sallars of all ranks were to be allowed three months wherein entirely to relinquish the oplum habit. Information has reached the authorities in Peking that some soldiers are paying no attention to these regulations, so instructions have been issued to the effect that any officer or man found smoking will be at once beheaded.

Very Natural.

"Do you believe in love at first sight?"

"What a fool question? Whoever heard of anybody's falling in love that was old enough to get their second sight?"—Baltimore American.

A Fixed Policy.

"Think of the people who say you monopolists ought to go to jail!" "Yes," answered Dustin Stax; "but we monopolists have for years made a practice of not doing what the people say we ought to."

Marrying for Love.

Happy marriages are surely possible even in these, unpoete, hard-bearded times. They are, if the people will only follow the instinct of their better natures and marry for love—the reverent, impassicate love of the man for the maiden, the pure, unsophisticated affection of the maiden, pappiness for rank or money.—Thorae.

More Than a Million Pounds Changed Hands at Record Prices.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—The Stemming District Tobacco association, an organization of tobacco growers in Webster, Union, Hopkins, Crittenden and other counties of Southern Kentucky, have effected the sale of more than 1,000,000 pounds of tobacco to J.,B. Ramsey, of Sobree, at prices averaging $10.25 for leaf, $9.25 for lugs and $3.25 for trash. This sale is considered one of the best made in this section in many years, and it was effected through the American Society of Equity.

The sale is further regarded as a great victory for the men who had pooled their tobacco, as the amount of money received for it was $91,000.

A called meeting of the Society of Equity was held at Dixon, Webster county, which was attended by all those members who had been in the pool.

Speeches were made by President Ben Watson, Louis Hancock and Stokes Taylor, of Henderson county, who explained the action of the executive committee in employing William Elliott as general manager. By a unanimous rote the action of the committee in employing Elliott was indexed.

Somersot, Ky.—At Science Hill, this county, T. W. Denny, a well-known furfulture dealer and undertaker, was so shocked by a practical joke played on him by Luther Ashley and others that it was several hours before he recovered, and, athough his hair was perfectly black, it is now sprinkled with gray.

Denny, with Ashley and several thereas, was engaged in unloading a car of furniture and coffins, when the foamer went to the store for a few minutes. In his absence the friends of Ashley blackened his hands and face and placed him in one of the coffins that Denny, was soon to open for inspection. On his return Denny proceeded to open the coffin. When his eyes met the sight within he took to his heels. He was so unnerved that he refused to take hold of the coffin nntil Ashley was likted out by his friends.

Hon. R. B. Brown, of Warsaw, has been declared the Democratic nomince for State Senator in the district composed of Boone, Galatin and Owen counties, no other candidate having announced within the time prescribed by the order providing for the holding of the primary election to nominate a candidate for that office. It is Gallatin county's time to furnish the candidate for senator under an agreement of long standing between the counties composing the district. Mr. Brown has had considerable legislative experience, is a quick thinker, acts promptly and is a fine business man, who has ever been loyal to his party.

Hon. W. W. Dickerson made a speech to a small crowd at the court house, last Monday, Hedvoted most of his time to explaining why the voters of this county should vote enmass for Judge Lassing, the Democratic nominee for Judge and the featlessness with which he discharges nis official duties. Mr. Dickerson said nothing about Judge Lassing's ability as a jurist and the featlessness with which he discharges nis official duties. Mr. Dickerson said nothing about Judge Lassing, in his praise of him buz-what is true, and of which the people of Boone county have been long aware, and it is for that reason that he will receive the largest vote ever given a Democratic nominee in this county. Instead of pulling down a man who is climbing the ladder of fame as rapidly as Judge Lassing, the popular and who is climbing the ladder of the people of Boone county have been long aware, and it is for that reason that he will receive the largest vote ever given a Democratic nominee in this county shows the proposed of the proposed provides of the proposed pro it is for that reason that he will receive the largest vote ever given a Democratic nominee in this county. Instead of pulling down a man who is climbing the ladder of fame as rapidly as Judge Lassing, the people of Boone county believe in giving him a boost, and they are patiently awaiting their opportunity to testify as to their appreciation of him. In this instance-make it unanimous.

DAVID'S TEMPTATION

STORY BY THE "HIGHWAY

"And David tarried." Such is the introductory statement to this biack chapter in the life of David. The inference is justifiable that his place of duty was with his army in the campaign against the 'Ammonites. But David tarried.

The first step in many a man's downfail is in tarrying when duty calls to another place.

Temptation is almost certain to assail one who lingers in the lap of ease rather than toil by the side of duty.

To be sure the pathway of duty is best by the sances of temptation, but temptation which comes at such times finds one in the attitude of mind and heart more easily to resist the suggested evil.

Thus we find there are really two types of temptation. One which comes at such times finds one in the attitude of mind and heart more easily to resist the suggested evil.

Thus we find there are really two types of temptation. One which comes a direct result of tarrying in a forbidden place and neglecting to obey duty's call.

Of the first James says in his epister. 'Count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations,' knowing this, that the trying of your faith worketh patience. But its patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect work, that ye may be perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing. 'So we want the heart of the first fame is the lone way of his own lust and entoced. Then when linter is drawn away of his own lust and entoced. Then when linter is the lowering of high standards before there can be a partaking with the devil.

An lids moment, and a lustiful eye proved David's undoling, as they have many another soul,

Through the channel of the eye much evil find entrance to the first of man, and remember that generally the eye is quick to see what the heart desires. Had David's undoling, as they have many another soul,

THE STORY.

THE STORY.

THE expedition against the Ammonites had already heen delayed he-yond all reasonable excuse and Joab, the captain of the hosts of Israel, chared and fumed under the restraint. Experienced man of war as he was, he knew that valuable time was be, ing lost and the time of year when the campaign could be conducted most successfully was slipping away. Had he had his way, King David would have started three weeks ago, but he did not now seem any nearer the point of departure than he was at that time when he had informed him that the army was in readness to move against the enemy. Joab knew that it was not cowardice upon the part of King David which kept him at Jerusalem, for no hraver man or more able commander ever led the armies of Israel than he. And for this reason 4t made the situation the more able commander ever led the armies of Israel than he. And for this reason 4t made the situation the more of the source was considered.

at Jerusalem, for no hraver man or more able commander ever led the armies of Israel than he. And for this reason of made the situation the more puzzling.

Josh walted as long as he could, and then sought the presence of the king and remonstrated with him.

"Each day that we tarry here but adds to the strength of our enemies," he exclaimed, impatiently.

"Yea, but with all the strength they can muster they will but prove as breaking reads before the armies of Israel," rejoined the king, proudly.

"But why place ourselves at a dissatzantage because of the advancing explore," presisted Josh.

"Let us start to morrow, then," the high replied, with some of, his old, this propulation of the march.

"The Will," exclaimed Josh, eagerly, and hastily withdrew to make the dash preparations for the march.

The king took an impatient turn around the roof terrace and then threw himself with a disconfeated sight upon one of the soft divans which furnished the sumptones apartment. It was a felightful place to be, he thought, as he looked about him, and then up at the blue sky which was deepening with the evening shadows. The thought of leaving the ease and comfort of his splendid palace filled him with impatient regret.

"Why should he go?" he asked himself. Why should be the glory of the victory, hut was he not as king entitled to seek his own ease snd comfort?" thus he reasoned, and at last the resolve was made and, he dispatched one of his servants with a note to Joah telling him that he would larry at Jerusalem and commanding Josb to lead the army against the Ammonites as had heen planned.

So it came to pass that the next day the army departed leaving King David behind to enjoy the ease and comfort of his palace.

"I will join Joah later," he promised himself, as he watched the long defile of soldlers pass down the valley. He was in his favortie place on the terrace, and, when the last division 13ad passed out of sight, he threw himself back upon the couch and gave himself up to dreamy speculation of the probable development in the campaign against the Ammonites, He had not the least shadow of doubt as to the outcome. Had he, it is doubtful whether he would have heen content to have remained behind.—But with the absolute certainty of victory, he gave himself up to the enjoyment of the luxury about him. So the days passed it had heen almost a week now since tidings had come from the army, and while he did not feel uneasy as to the progress, the same and the dangers of hat the He had and the dangers of hat they have been content to have remained behind.—But with the absolute certainty of victory, he gave himself up to the enjoyment of the luxury about him. So the days passed in the campaign sending word that the whole army may share in the joy of hringing tidings had not by that the word brain and delay sending word that the whole army may share in the joy of himping tidings to served to still the troubled conscience within, and he gave himself up to the ease and pleasures about him with a fresh relish.

"No," he said when the servant awoke him from his afternoon slumber. "No," he will not attend the evening sacrifice," and he stretched himself languidly and took a turn around the room. Ease and indulgences in the luxuries of the table are not conducted to piety, and be it said for David that of late be had grown cold in his religious life. As he looked ahout him he could not help think of the contrast there was between what he now enjoyed and his simple life as a shepherd boy years before the said of the contrast there was between what he now enjoyed and his simple life as a shepherd boy years before the said of the contrast there was between the him of his harp and the joy he used to get out of it as he sang praises to God on the sides of the Judean hills while his sheep grazed contentedly about him.

"And why not get the old harp out and sing some of the old songs here and now?" urged the liner voice.

"Not to-night," he said, half impatently, "else I will miss the delight ul wentled in my favorite nook on the roof terrace," and he started toward the stairway leading to the lovely spot.

Not even the better promptings could hold him. He had hecome so accustomed of late to yielding to the hought of denying himself was an unwelcome one.

"To-morrow!" he. promised himself, as he reached the roof, "I will get out my harp and worship God in the old songs, if I do not go to join the army."

"To-morrow!" Ah, fatal mistake, diasatrous delay, for that night there came the temptation which swept him off his feet, and forever linked his name with his companion in sin, the vaingiorious and beautiful Bathabea.

They are "good trusts"—good to the Reunitican politicians, as I least But here can be, in the estimation of an Jonest man, he such thing as a good irust since the very raison d'etre of servi frust is micropoly and extortion. This is shown by the history of such sombinationa. The first time the trust was known by that name was in 1852, when the Standard Oll trust was or sanized. Then a number of compassive, first same partnerships entered into an agreement with a view to monopolizing the oil business, and absorbed 30 per cent of the petroleum industry of this country. We'all now understand the methods of this heartiess monopoly. They put their affairs in the hands of nine "trustees" who fixed both buying and selling prices of petroleum, and reinhed olds and lubricants. They compelled the railroads to give them rebates, and in that way destroyed competition.

Soon after this the Sugar trust was presented on the same plan, and pursed of the same plan, and then by means of extortionate prices for the products of its constitution companies paid larger dividends than those companies could have paid it competition had not been destroyed. The Sherman antitrust law, which, by the way, was not enforced. Why Fisador special accessed the sea was not enforced. The Presidential Shuffle.

Since the delivery of President Roosevelt's Provincetown speech, it has developed that he had sent copies to the press containing a highly important paragraph which he eliminated when he came to deliver the speech. In the advance copies he said:

portant paragraph which he eliminated when he came to deliver the speech. In the advance copies he said:
"Our aim is to try to do something effective. Having this in view, the department of justice has recently taken steps to see if it is not possible, in certain contingencies and for certain purposes, to put the trusts that are guilty of wrongdoing in the hands of receivers. The purpose of the administration is to stamp out the evil; that we shall seek to find the most effective device for this purpose; and that we shall then use it, whether the device can be found in existing law or must be supplied by legislation." The idea that the administration is able to assure a supply of new legislation to stiff the president Rosesvelt was able to perceive this when pointed out to him.

But it would appear that the president still believes in the receivership program for in the suit against the tobacco trust the attorney general prays the court to appoint receivers for the corporation, with 'is 6' sub-aldiery companies, if the public interests may threshy be comerved. Why the president thus shuffles and while omitting this receivership program from his speech, yet still allowe his attorney general to demand it of the court is one of the minar, inconsistencies of the present administration.

Now come on—everybody. Let's all smile today fust like we do whea we have our "pitchers took."

A lto, of Unole By's food friends have been in to urge him to be a candidate for president on the Christmas present tleket again this year. To their nattering words, we have turned a deaf and unheeding ear. We have seen our duty and done it' so far as politics goes. We have been defeated on the Fourth of July tleket, the Full Jinner Pail tleket, the Christmas Present Ticket: and the Water, Wagon ticket. We know when we have had enough. The presidency is not for us and thus have we spoken to our, admiring friends. Leave us in peace. Hoe vinces hoe inklus! Regulævast in pace!

It is all right to be a hero in the strife, but one must have the strife. That's why so few rich mea's sons are heroes.

SERMONETTE.

SERMONETTE.

Sinful induigence in an Idehour made David a murdere the control of bezzler behind the bars, disprace and suffering brought upon his innocent wife and chlidren. He begins with the expectation of winning and acquiring riches quickly. Perhaps he does win and is tempted to go in more heavily. He loses, and then borrows that he may speculate further to retrieve his losses. Again he loses. He must have money to pay the loan. He betrays his trust and takes the money he needs from his employer, or from funds entrasted to his care, expecting to pay it back as soon as his luck turns, as he says. And so it goes on, step at a time, until at last he is ruined beyond the hope of recovery. And so it goes on, step at a time, until at last he is ruined beyond the hope of recovery. And so it is with any simful course upon which one may enter. If it takes 40 lies to cover up the first lie told, so is it with other forms of ain, it takes innumerable wrongs to cover up the first lie told, so is the with any simful course upon think that it can cover and hide its sin. "Be sure your sin will find you out," is the solemn warning of Scripture.

And again God's Word declares that "he that covereth his min will be revealed in all its awfulness.

When the sinful course is single s ilkened unto cords that bind one.

There comes to mind the story of Guilliver in the land of the Lilliputs. The tiny creatures bound the great giant with their frail, filmy threads, which he might have blown away with a breath, but which in the aggregate formed a strong cord which covered him like a web and rendered him poweriess to resist the attacks of his little enemies. So is it with ain. Let us remember, also, that however much we may deceive the world, we cannot deceive and mine.

With fierce determination David sealed the letter he had heen inscribing on the roil of parchment before him, and turning sharply upon the man standing near, he said:
"Deliver this into the hand of Joab, captain of the hosts of Israel. Delay not."

That is all!"

'this solderly dignly, and precituriah bowed low and strode

It was not many days after this that tidings came of a disastrous defeat to the army of Israel. The battle had heen pressed to the very walls of the stronghold of Rabbah, and many of the Israellite had fatien. It was sad news to the nation, and there was mourning in many a household, but David, who received the tidings from the lips of loab's messenger, cared not for this thing, when the messenger added:

"And Urlah, the Hittite, is dead, also."

captain of the hosts of Israel. Delay not."

There was harshness almost of entity in the voice of the king as he spoke, so much in contrast to the familiar, patronizing manner in which he had greeted him on the day before that Uriah started visibly. He hesitated as he placed the parchment within the folds of his robe, and the king, in evident irritation, said, sharply:

"That is all!"

With soldierly diguity and precision Uriah bowed low and strode, from the apartment without a word. He had wondered at the strange in sterest and solicitude which the king lay in a small captain the compelled to acree in the imperial palace. The ancestral graves of the rebel are also to suffer. Be Yourself.

Listen! The linnet sings its song, the rose gives out its fragrance; have you observed that the lark has renounced its melody or the pin the like these? Follow their-example and you will come to understand that no none has a right to contend against you, or you to resist him. Man's duty to each of his fellows is to let him manifest himself through what is most individual in him, in order to realize the greatest utility for the whole. Show your own colors, sound your own note; it is precisely for this that you are here. Stand firm, do your duty; be yourself and be true—true, above all, in your thought, and in the expression you give it in word or action—Charles Wagner.

Animal Existence.

All the actions and movement of the animal world may be divided into three classes—involuntary, instinctive and rational. The former being common to every vital structure, both animal and vegetable; and the two latter being possessed, in various proportions, both by man and every class of the lower animals. Instinct is a natural propensity prior to experience, and independent of instruction, tending to self-preservation or the perpetuty of the race; while rational actions are always the result of instructions or deliberation, directed to some end-of which the animal is conscious, and for the accomplishment of which he is capable of selecting and adapting appropriate means.

"My little son, when about a year and a half old began to have sores come out on his face. They began to one on his arms, then on other parts of his body, and then one came on his chest, worse than the others. At the end of about a year and a half of suffering he grew so bad I had to the his hands in cloths at night to keep him from scratching the sores and tearing the flesh. He got to be a mere akeleton and was hardly able to walk. I sent to the drug store and got a cake of Cutteura Sosp and a box of Cutteura Comments, and at the end of about two months the sores were all well. He has never had any sores of any kind aliance, and only for the Cutteura Remedlea my preclous child would have died from these terrible sores. ### The Proverbial "Rainy Day"

Visits nearly every individual, and it is wise in the time of Opportunity to provide one's self with a good sized financial umbrella to ward off the storms of adversity. A little saved and deposited in a good banking institution is one of the best and most satisfactory ways of securing the financial umbrella. The Equitable Bank and Trust Company, at Walton, Boone County, Ky., offers every inducement to the public in this particular. Pays three per cent on time deposits, and pays the expense of deposits sent us by registered mail. Does a general bank and trust business with a guarantee fund. Give us your business. Write or call in person.

QUALITY AND VALUE.

We don't advertise prices, because they do not de-note the value of our clothing, but we invite compari-son of quality and price. If you are a judge of styles and know something about quality, and don't mind saving a few dollars on your Fall Suit, then you are the man we are looking for. Our $15 Suits are prov-erbs among our oldest patrons.

Air Rights.

Air Rights.

Air Rights.

The extension in the use of the military balloon has led German legal and military writers into some interesting discussions regarding the sovereign rights in the air. The entrance of air armed force of one nation into the territory of another without special permission is forbiden; but if a war balloon carrying bombs should he driven abroas the German frontier into the upper air of France, what right would the French have to fire upon the airship? It has been suggested that an international agreement might be reached under which the air shove a given distance, say two miles, should be regarded as neutral, just as the occan three miles from shore is free to all nations. Of course there would at once arise the question whether the two miles referred to sea level or to the level of the land above which the balloon was sailing; or, to carry into the air the contentions of the British respecting weadlands and sea neutrality, whether the three-mile limit was to he measured from the top of the highest mountain peaks in a given country. If ballooning should be pursued as a sport, as rich men now use the automobile, this question of rights in the air will grow serious for every householder who in theory owns a pyramid the apex of which is at the center of the carth- and the base on the outermost rim of infinite space. But if the theory is carried too far, the man would have a good case against the stars for, trespassing on his aerial domain. There must be some point, declares Youth's Companion, between terra firms and infinity at which space becomes common property.

He certainly must have been a man of method who won the lady fair after proposing just 24 times in four years. If he hadn't marked them all down how would he know the exact number of proposals? Maybe he kept a diary in which there were 24 entries scattered at intervals reading like this; "Proposed to Mayme to-night. Nothing doins." The average man who wins out a girl after she has told him that she can't bear to have him about the place doesn't know just how many times he has proposed before he gets the answer he was looking for. A man who feels that way gets started and if he doesn't propose 24 times every night he calls the girl fears that his love is growing cold and that maybe she would better grab him before he changes his mind. Twenty-four proposals are not many to scatter over a period of four years. The wereke man would feel that he was fost getting started after proposing to a girl as often as that.

Ing to a girl as often as that.

The action taken by the Boston educational attention paid to protecting the health of pupils. Radical changes have been made, and one of the innovations is the employment of a corps of physicians zz.3 trained nurses, whose duty it will he to keep an eye on the children, treat them for any ailment that may develop and take such steps as shall assure proper sanitation and ward off danger of contagion. This may be objected to in some .quarters as unduly "paternal," but it really is in precise accord with the principle of public education. If instruction is to be provided at public cost it is logical to take steps that shall lessen risk to health and in every way guard the physicial welfare of the pupils who are beneficiaries of the system.

Is it a Catarrin Remedy, or a Tonic, or is it Both?

Some people call Peruna a great tonic. Others refer to Peruna as a great extent ender the catarrin remedy.

Which of these people are right? Is it more proper to call Peruna a catarrin remedy than to call it a tonic? Our reply is, that Farna is both a tonic and a catarrin remedy. Indeed, there can be no effectual catarrin remedy that is not also a tonic.

In order to thoroughly relieve any case of catarrin, a remedy must net-only have a specific action on the much have a specific action on the merous system.

Catarrh, even in persons who are otherwise strong, is a weakened condition of some mucous membrane. The action of some mucous membrane. The action of some mucous membrane. The world has attracted so much attention from medical writers as HTDRASTIS CAMADENSIS. The wonderful efficacy of this herb has been recognised many years, and is growing in its hold upon the medical profession. ### DAVID'S REPENTANCE

Authority:-2

SERMONETTE.

SERMONETTE.

Sin, however great, is as nothing when the forglving grace of Ged is taken into account.

"Where sin abounds, grace doth much more abound."

It is an awful thing to be a great sinner, but there is a more awful thing, and that is for the sinner to know no repentance.

David sinned, Oh, ag grievously, and the grace of the dark picture.

And notice how his sense of guilt shuts out every one but God.

"Assainst thes, thee only, have

God. "Against thee, thee only, have

"Against the "Agai

But what he did mean was that sin when committed is first of all and above all committed against God.

Such consciousness of the relation of the soul to God is the evidence of true repentance. To realize that first of all the sin has been committed against God and that it is there that the soul must first come for forgiveness and cleansing prepares and fits the soul for the further steps of true repentance, which are open confession, as complete restoration as is possible to those wronged, and reconciliation with man as well as God.

True repentance also means a turning from sin, or as the little are open confession, as complete restoration as is possible to those wronged, and reconciliation with man as well as God.

True repentance also means a turning from sin, or as the little glel put it: Feeling bad enough to quit.

Yes, David's sin was great, also, and herein, I am persuaded, was one of the elements of his and "after God's own heart." It was because of his desperate need that he could in faith claim so much of God. As Christ said, in rebute to the self-righteous Pharises when the sinful woman cameling the with the tears and wiping them with the hairs of her head. "Her sins which are many, are forgiven; for she loved much; but to whom little is forgiven, the same loveth little.

If man is a great sinner, God has provided a greater Saviour, whose "blood cleaneth from ALL sin."

The sum of human guilt is never equal to the sum of the Divine mercy.
Paul, the apostle, saw himself, the chieftest of sinners, but at the same time he saw that Christ was "able to save unto the uttermost."

This, then, is ever the bright side of the picture of human guilt: Sin vanishing before the cleansing power of the blood of Christ.

THE STORY.

Thou art the man!" The words rang out clear and distinct, filling all the great audience room of the palace. With inger pointed in the direction of the startled king the prophet Nathan stood. His stern face and tense bearing hetokened the towering moral strength of the man of God in that trying hour.

In obedience to the command of God he had come to bring King David face to face with his awful sins. And not withstanding the possible danger to timeelf as a result of his unvelcome measage, yet he delayed not but boildly chirered that the presence of the king and told his parable shout the rich man who had taken the one little ewe lamh of his poor neighbor, notwithstanding the rich abundance of focks and herds with which he had heen blessed. And the king had listened with rising wrath. Perhaps the burden of guilt in his own heart made him the less tolerant, and as the prophet ended bis story he thundered:

"As the Lord liveth, the man that thundered:

"As the Lord liveth, the man that hath done this thing shall surely die."

Then it was that the prophet, drawing himself to, his tull height, and pointing, his finger at the king, cried, with intense carnestness."
Thou art the man!"
The king recorded au though struck, his face grew ashen and his form tremiled as though he would full.

"The man shall surely die!"—
"Thou art the man!"
He had pronounced the judgment apou his own head.

He grasped the side of the throne to seek to deny it or palliate his conduct. He had kept these things hidden in his heart during Missemonths. He had thought has his secret was safe with the few oundential friends; and he had persuaded himself that it can be not reckned God into the few ounded himself that it can do not reckned God into the will record of sin which he had been trying to forget was suddenly sade abefore him.

If the face in his hands. How long he sat thus he knew not, but when he looked up the prophet had gone, and he found himself alone.

Alone! No not alone, for where there is sirtful heart willing to hear the accusing voice of God, there is God present to deal in love and mercy with that soul. And there God was that day. Not as king hut as guilty sinner did David meet God. Stripped of kingly rothes and position of state, separated from his riches and power he stood a naked soul hefore the searching eye of God. Ah, how halck now did his sin appear unto him. Ah, who would have thought that the first misstep into the pleasures of sin could have plunged him so low?

Was it possible that this was David who had professed so much before his people? Was this the David who had professed so much before his people? Was this the David who had established the ark in its place in the tabernacle in Jerusalem, and had then bean filled with the ambitton to build a temple for the Lord?

soul.

"Have mercy upon me, Q God;"
was all he could cry.

Was there forgiveness enough in heaven to compass the enormity of his cin?

Was there forgiveness enduch In heaven to compass the enormity of his sin?

How dark the way seemed? Would God answer?

Dare he throw himself utterly upon God and his mercy? He had atolen another man's wife, and then to cover up his sin he had killed that man. He was worthy of death. Dare he let God do with him as justice demanded? Many a man in the kingdom had heen ludged worthy of death and heen killed who had oot done as wickedly as he. Why should he ask or expect any less sentence? Yea, and had he not pronounced sentence upon himself when in answer to the prophet Nathan's story he had said: "The man that hath done this thing shall surely die."

So the struggle went on in the heart of David as the auccession of harriers of the will were hroken down and true repentance brought him to the point where he was willings to cast himself utterly upon the mercy and justice of God.

True repentance never seeks to make conditions. It seeks not to excuse of palliate the sin. And at lest when David had given up utterly and was willing if need he to pay the penalty with his lifte for his wrong doing, he found peace.

It was in this attitude of heart which the prophet Nathan found him late that same afternoon.

"I have sinned against the Lord." David cried in horken voice. "Let that be done unto me which is pleasing in the sight of the Lord.
And the prophet Nathan came and laid his hand upon the head of David. "The Lord hath put away thy sin.

Lightning Marked Tree.
The peculiar pranks played by a bolf af lightning on an oak tree attracted hundreds of people to Wissahlekon avenue, near Lincoln lake, says the Philadelphia Record. The tree, which was fully 125 feet tall, was struck during the electrical storm recently and was fully 125 feet tall, was struck duling the electrical storm recently and was split down a distance of 75 feet, the halves failing in opposite directions. Fifty feet of the upper part was stripped of hark, and a most peculiar thing was that the roots were torn completely out of the ground and huried a considerable distance, while a circle of bark four feet high was left standing.

Marie Corelli Displeased.

Marie Corelli is greatly annoyed by a little story now going the rounds of the press. The form it generally takes is this: "She was asked the other day why she does not marry. She repiled: "I have three pets at home, which together answer the same purpose. I have a dog which growls all the morning, a parrot which swears all the afternoon and a cat which stays out at night." Mise Correlli possesses neither a dog nor a parrot, not a cat, and she has never yet met anyone bold enough to ask her why she is unmarried.

FOR THE HOME TOWN.

Be a "booster" for your home town. By patronizing other than local institutions you are using a boomerang that is likely to fly back and do you injury when you least expect it. No one can be an ideal citizen and talk and work against the interests of his home town. So long as you are a resident of a community, do your part towards assisting it to greater progress.

Those who are opposed to the evils of capital concentration, the building up of trusts that work against the interests of the masses, should consider the fact that any and every system of business that depletes a section of the country of the wealth it produces strengthems the system of business and financial concentration. One of the most baneful systems that at the present is working against the interests of the smaller cities and towns, and is the greatest medium of draining wealth from agricultural communities, is the mall-order plan of doing business. From some rural towas from 40 to 50 per cent. or the trade goes to foreign concerns. If this trade were confined to the home town, its business would be doubted, employment given to twice as many people; the profits accruing from mercantile husiness would seek local investment, and within a few years the population of the town would be more than doubled, and all living within the district would be henefted.

Every kind and class of goods have Every kind and class of goods have a real value, and this value is based upon the cost of the raw material, the price of the labor in producing it, and the cost of distribution. Whenever there are high hargains offered in any line, and goods offered "helow value," he careful and see that you are not getting an inferior article.

While the farmer may receive a dozen papers from the large cities, he invarianly reads his local paper. It is to the interest of the farmer as well as the merchant that the latter use its columns freely to tell of the latest prices, goods freely to received, etc. The farmer wants to huy, and the merchants want to sell, and the farmer will huy when and where he can save money. The merchant who lets business go away from his town through lack of advertising rightly is not a very enterprising business man.

It is well to be on guard when dealing with itinerent agents, sellers of groceries, carriages, machinery, patent rights, ot. Lis a protty good idea to never take grab-bag chance when you wish to buy an article. See what you are purchasing before paying for POOR GOODS, CHEAP PREMIUMS.

How Money is Sometimes Squand in Patronizing Prize-Package Concerns

The economical housewite is a blessing. She who will watch the peanles and disease can greatly assist her husband in accumulating momery for use during days of deversity. Quite often women through their anniety to assist in saving, and not having a training along husiness lines, make foolish expenditures. How often down find women in the country towns and districts engaged in buying sceps, appices, teas and coffees from some cluborder concern with a view of setting cheap premiums that are offered with each lot of goods? There is no economy in this method. Women as well as men should remember that there is never anything of value given without an equitable compensation, and when purchased on the club plan the profits paid are generally enormous. You cannot get something for nothing. If you desire to purchase $10 or $20 worth of groceries, the best place to huy them is at some responsible grocery establishment in your own town. You can see what you are getting, and you know that the goods must he good or you can return them. When you get a premium with a lot of soaps or spices or extracts, you will find that while the goods may appear all right, there is a great chance of fraud that you little look for. The bars of soap will, so of light weight, poorly dried, made of cheaper materials, and would he dear at your home store at haif the price that you are compelled to pay for them. The spices will be half ground hark, and the extracts synthetic, never made from fruit flavors, but out of the dirty-looking coal-tar, a by-product of gas-manufacturing, and even the teas and coffees will be of the poorest kind and dectored up to look well. Then how about the premium? You will not that they are represented to he, worth. Women are represented to be, worth. Women are represented to be, worth. Women are represented to be, worth. Women are represent

"Saye the profits that your storekeeper makes," and many like catch phrases is the principal advertising stock of the concernswho. calm to sell at: "wholesale" prices direct to consumers. Their arguments appeal to women and men who have little knowledge of commercial methods. It is the appeal of self-ishness that who for the concerns who seek husiness among the 'real deaths of farming districts rather than any merit that the arguments presented may have.

who seek husiness among the residents of farming districts rather than any merit that the arguments presented may have.

There can he little doubt as to the mail-order way of doing business being a permanent fature in the mercantile world. The fact cannot be disputed that in certain lines of goods which are offered as "leaders" lower prices are quoted than like goods are generally sold at in local sloves. But he average price on all lines cannot be lower, character and quality considered, than the same goods could be sold at by the local merchant.

The business of the big mail-order concerns has been gained by extensive work. It has been the apathy of the merchants in the country towns that has allowed these concerns to take trade from "under their very noses." Conditions that allow the steady drails of money from the agricultural districts and small fowns to the big cities are to be deplored. There cannot be doubt as to the evils of the mail order systems as a factor in the concentration of wealth in the great financial centers, and the resultant building up of trusts. For the past quarter of a century the trust evil has been constantly developing and keeping pace with it, is the mail-order system. Much like the leprosy, its progress is such that the evil has a firm foothold ere serious attention is paid to it. The year of the december of a century the trust evil has been constantly developing and keeping pace with it, is the mail-order system, and the resultant building up of trusts. For the past quarter of a century the trust evil has been constantly developing and keeping pace with it, is the mail-order system as for our own town; belp us bind the result ties firmer about your own hands." Don't be a traitor to your home town even though there is a promise of a small saving is cents and dollars. Do your part to head off the husiness concentration evil.

These relics consist of a number of foreign and domestic coine, dating as far back no 1793. Some of the interesting finds are a number of test coins that were experimented with by the officials in the olden times. These coins are similar to Chinese toney, each containing a bois in the catter that was filled with various kinds of metal to bring up the value of the coins.

Experiences, Joys and Sorrows of the Human Existence.

Human Existence.

The loves and friendships of indig viduals partake of the frail character of human life, and are brief and uncertain. The experience of a human life may be shortly summed up: A little loving and a good deal of sorrowing; some bright hopes and many bitter disappointments; some gorgeous Thursdays when the skies are bright and the heavens blue, when Providence, hending over us in bleavings, glade the heart almost to madness; many dismal Fridays, when the smoke of torment belouds the mind and undying sorrows gnaw upon the heart; some high amhitions and many Waterloo defeato, until the heart becomes like a charnel house filled with dead affections, embalmed in holy but sorrowful memories; and then the chord is loosed, the golden bowl is broken, the individual life—a cloud, a vapor, passes away.—Matthew Hale Carpenter.

The Cattle Kings

are Leaving the Texas Pan Handle

They couldn't afford to stay—the land was too good for grazifig. They got their ranches when land was the cheapest thing going. Some of them had a quarter of a million acres, mighty few less than 50,000 acres. They made lots of money—but it couldn't last. Too many people wanted the land for farms. They offered the Cattle Kings good profit and the Cattle Kings took it. That ended the big cattle business. Now lots of these big ranches are for sale in small tracts, dirt cheap. Lots of them have already been sold. It's amazing what crops the farmers get on this land—forty or fifty bushels of corn to the acre, right along, wheat 20 to 30 bushels; alfalfa 2 to 2½ tons to the acre, three cuttings a year; oats, kaffir corn, milo maize. Size that up with what you and your neighbors have been getting on $75 and $100 land, and you'll see where you get off. The Fan Handle farmer of Northern Texas, Western Oklahoma and Eastern New Mexico has got you skinned The Fan Handle yourself. Buy a good big farm for $10 or $15 an acre and see how easy it is to get along. You never saw better land for twice the money in your life. I know the Pan Handle land is tip top—good chocolate loam, 4 to 8 feet deep with clay subsolit plenty of water anywhere, 25 to 50 feet down. Rainfall is abundant.
Why don't you go down to the Pan Handle and get a farm? It would pay you to take a trip down there just to look around. It doesn't cost much: only $20 from $1. Louis or Kansas City and $25 from Chicago, round trip, The Rock Island-Frisco lines have four routes to the Pan Handle—each one goes through a different part of the country.

I have get a book about Texas the solution of the sale, and are only inferenced in getting the sale, and are

John Q. Elstun and wife, of Bufalo, came over, last Sunday, to visit Mr. and Mr. F. A. Hall. The horse they drove was turned in the rard to grase, and in a few minutes it had lound its way to the bottom of an abandoned cistern about 14 feet deep. The cistern was covered with planks that had decayed and were not stout enough to support the weight of the horse, which went upon them, probably to satisfy an idle curiosity. Mrs. Slayback, who lives across the streets aw the horse fall, and not seeing it get up, supposed it had fallen over somechicken coops and injured itself. She told ber husband about it, and he started to see about the norse, and soon located it, apparently well satisfied, at the bottom of the cistern, in which there was 12 or 15 inches of mud and water. Mr. Slayback gave the alarm and in a few minutes 40 or 50 people were at the some of the accident, and the work of resouing thee horse commenced.
C.— Westbay ad others soon had a wagon load of damaged hay ready to throw in the cistern, hoping by keeping the horse tramping to hing it to the top of the ground, while others rigged a derrick over the cistern and put a rope and pulleys in position to lift, him out. The hay scheme was a failure only in getting rid of the water and mud.
By the use of a tarpaulin, ropes and chaims the horse was harnessed for lifting with the pulley, and had been hauled several efect above the ground when one of the timbers in the derrick snapped and the horse went to the boutom of the cistern again in a jiffy, while several who were assisting in the work had a narrow escape from injury. No time was lost in securing three stout telephone poles and the onstruction of another derrick, which proved equal to the emergency and the horse was bauled to the top of the cistern again, when the derrick which proved equal to the emergency and the horse was balued to the top of the cistern again, when the derrick submissive, much to the liking of those working with him. Mr. and Mrs. Elstun drove the horse home

Judge Lassing Given an Ovation at Williamstown Last County Court Day .-- An Owen County Editor also, Whooping it Up for the Judge.

Editor also, Whooping it Up for the Judge.

That "coming events cast their shadows before" seemed to be verified on the streets here last Monday when it became known that the Hon. John M. Lassing was in town. It looked like everybody wanted to see him and extend him a welcome, no matter what their politics might be. It was "How d'ye, Judgel" on every hand, and the distinguished gentleman must have been "armsore" ere the day was done. But true to the instincts of a born gentleman and with the characteristic chivalry of a hospitable Kentuckian, he mingled with the great gathering of people, his handsome face wreathed in 'smiles, showing his appreciation of the hearty welcome he was receiving at the hands of a people who admire thim as an honorable, puright and conscientious gentleman and jurist.

During his term of office as Judge of this Circuit Court district he showed his manly qualities on more than one occasion, discharged the duties of his office impartially—showing neither fear nor favor—and thus paved the way tor a more displication; and when he was chosen to succeed Judge Thomas H. Paynter as a member of the Court of Appeals that august body was honored by the appointment of this gifted lawyer, and his legion of friends rejoiced over this recognition of his signal ability.

There are many things about Judge Lassing that give him a grip on our people outside of his extraordinary fitness for the office he seeks, and not the least of these is his fidelity to his friends. Although occupying his present exafted position, his unselfish interest in behalf of his friends has never waned, and many a struggling youth has he substantially aided in his laudable efforts to rise. Wherever the mention of good deeds is made in the district there the name of Judge Lassing, the genial, eminent and helpful friend, from the good old county of Boone, is as a household word. Even the children shout, "Hurrah for Lassing!" and he takes off his hat, expand your lungs and "holler" for him, too, for he deserves it. And what is mor

Why not make it unanimous in Grant?—Williamstown Courier.

Why not make it unanimous in Grant?—Williamstown Courier.

One of the most important places to be filled at the coming November election, which is less than three weeks distant, is the election of Judges of the Court of Appeals. In this district, the Fifth, Judge John D. Gariolli, in the Democratic nominee, and of his election there is no doubt, as the district is safely Democratic by many thousands of votes. In our his district, the Sixth, of which Grant and Boone, our neighboring counties, are a part, Judge J. M. Lassing is the Democratic nominee. It is a supplementally close, and the counties of Kenton and Campbell, with their big city vote in both Newport and Covington, have a yonce in a while of placing the district in the Republican column. Judge Lassing having for several years been Circuit Judge of this Judge Lassing having for several years been Circuit Judge of this Judicial district of which Owen county is a part, and having been an intimate friend of the editor of the Democrat for many years, it is but natural that we should take more than, a passing interest in his election. The defeat of Judge Lassing in the Sixth appellate district would be little short of a public calamity. Coming to the bench when a very young the short of a public calamity. Coming to the bench when a very young the short of a public calamity. Coming to the bench when a very young to the short of a public calamity. Coming to the bench when a very young the short of a public calamity. Coming to the bench when a very young the short of the highest ribunal in this State. He is eminently qualified in every way for the high honor of Judge and the district on the bench and onfidence of the people of the State and his coagliutors on the bench and the bar over the State. Give him a full term of his own and he will be come not only a credit to his home people and the district but will reflect honor upon the Judiciary o

Breeccious Children.

All those intrusted with the care of the young are faced by a grave problem in the case of children who inherit or display precocity. The guiding to maturity of the simple, normal child, who passes naturally from stage to stage of its development; is a comparatively easy matter. The trouble is largely that the nature of precocity is not understood. Most parents, for example, hall the signs of it with delight, and do all they can to foster, them. They treat precodity as a gold mine, to, be "worked for all it is worth," but here they make a great mistake. There are several types of precoclous children, presenting system, and this peril is greatly lessened by a capacity to classify the types. There are cortain children, born of healthy and lineliectual stock, with fine physiques. They inherit usually very active nerve-centers, which imply, among other things, quick and eager brain processor. These children are halled with justice as the legitimate flowering of their heredity, and then all concerned, including, of course, the poor child it. heredity, and then all concerned, in-cluding, of course, the poor child it-self, hasten to work havoe with the fale prospect by a cruel and short-sighted system of forcing. These chil-dren, being naturally strong and well, ean beer an enormous amount of the system without breaking down, but they do not make the men and women they would have made under wise re-straint, i They should be kept much with other children, noticed little by their elders, interested in physical pur-suits, and molded into symmetry by a persistent holding back. There may redity, and then all concerned, intouts, and moided into symmetry by a persistent holding back. There may not be much wrong with the child who reads the Greek Testament at not be much whong with the canal who reads the Greek Testament at four years of age, but there is certain-ty something wrong with the parents, who let him. There is another very different type of precoclous children, says the Youth's Companion. These are the offspring often of gouty or tuberculous parents, and inherit, if not actual disease, at least faulty physiques. They are often beautiful, engaging children of great mental brilliance. They often have phenomenal memories which are developed at the expense of all other mental faculties. They are not physically strong enough for any sustained effort, and after a brilliant childhood they calusat themselves and become commonlace. elves and become commonplace. These children should be made to lead physical lives, every effort being di rected to form a good constitution. A country life is almost a necessity in heir case, and the mental develop-ment should be made as gradual as longer duration, while and reduced houses in several others to a mass of rulins.

The first shock fortunately brought the entire population of the vilkages into the open. Many succeeded in making their escape to the hills or open plains, which accounts for the smallness of the list of fatilities. To add to the desolation caused by the earthquake, it was raining in torrents, which greatly increased the suffering among the homeless people. Half the houses at Ferruzano and Brancaleone collapsed, and many people were builed in the rulns. At Sinopoli and St. Ilarp more lives are said to have been lost. Panic prevails everywhere. Bocells, Jolica Reggio, Cosansa, Haracdio, Cittanova, Palmi, Marina and other towns also suffered from the shocks, but none severely.

The cathedral at Torre di Geracq which arose from the rules of Lord Lipschitz, was thrown down, as was also an ancient tower which bad withstood all the Calabrian earth quaker for centuries past.

Augusta, Ark, Oct. 26.—Enraged at language used by her husband when, she attempted to reprimand him for drinking punch to excess at their wed, ding feast, at the residence of her parents, Mrs. John Beker, who in "her days" in local social circles was known as the "pretiest girl in Arkansas," secured a revolver and shot Beker three times, inflicting serious wounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Douglas, parents of the bride, were acting as hosis. The guests were having a good time, when Beker was noticed staggering around the room. Mrs. Beker pinched her husband's ears, and was abused with rough language. She rushed out of the room and came back with the revolver, firing three times before any one could prevent her.

Absalom was proud of his personal oharms, proud of his personal oharms, proud of his attainments.

The world asks, Why should he not have been?

God says, "Pride and arrogan oy and the evil way, and the froward mouth do I hate."

Man In the pride of his heart thinketh that greatness is made up of things possessed, in gorge oue display, in homage received. God, who sees the end of man from his beginning, knows that. "a man's pride shall bring him low."

Pride is the sum of selfish.

Pride is the sum of selfish ones, and arrogance, and self-ee teem, and personal ambition.

Pride laceth a man't o exalt himself to the place from which later he must come tumbling down as surely as the atone thrown into the air will turn and fall to the carth again after the momentum which sent it upward has been spent.

Over and over did Christ declare that "Whosever shall explication of the air will upward has been spent.

Over and over did Christ declare that "Whosever shall explication of the shall be abased."

Pride giveth short vision, shallow perception and narrow judgment.

"Pride goeth before destruction and an haughty spirt before a fall."

Pride is a great deceiver, making wrong seem right and right wrong, for "there is a way of that seemeth right unto a man. but the end thereof are the ways of death."

"Abasiom rose up early and stood by the way of the gate."

Those were strenuous days for the proud young man. He oworked hard; ohl so hard! Pride, after all, is a hard task master. It got Abasiom up of early, and kept him standing all day in the noisy, dusty, hot way oby the gate of the city. Day after day—week after week—Pride made a liar and a thief out of Abasiom, and it will do as much for anyone eise who lets pride consume him. WEALTH CONCENTRATION EVIL

Operation of Injurious Trusts Can Bo Curtailed by Efforts of the

An evil that at present is receiving more than ordinary attention in the press is the concentration of vast amounts of money in the hands of corporations. The accumulation of wealth by individuals when controlled by natural law, will inevitably become divided The millionaire who has a family, at his death will apportion to each member a share of his wealth: Even though these divisions may be increased by work, and by speculation and investment by the children, they in return will divide the accumulations among their offspring and eventually, it matters not how great the fortunes of any one of the family may become, it is only a matter of time until there is a scattering of the money, and a great portion of it will pass from the members of the family. On the other hand, corporation methods mean the building of a system that prevents the operation of the natural law. In other words corporations are machines that work continuously, and when one part is broken it is replaced by a new one. Thus the accumulation goes on. The death of Rockefeller will not result in a discontinuance of the Standard Oil company; the death of the present stockholders of any of the large trust companies, banks or, insurance companies will make little difference in their existence. All will go ahead.

The safeguards of corporations in many cases are excellent. But the inclination to control trade by the crushing out of smaller concerns and the destruction of legitimate competition and the controlling of prices, seems against public policy. All classes are compelled to pay prices dictated by these trusts for the goods produced. Each year finds new combinations to control trade. It is the centralization of capital that makes such operations possible. The person who assists in concentrating money in large financial centers does his part toward helping along such combines ic is only by individual audition on the part of every small producer and laborer in the country that conditions can be changed. Stand by every bome industry and do your part

SCIENCE OF TOWN KILLING.

Unwise Booming and Maintaining Exorbitant Prices an Effective Way.

There is a county "east low" in one of the central western states that has a population of about $5000. It is surrounded by one of the richest farming countries. For years this town has been at a standstill. If anything it is retrograding, and even farm values near it are lowering, while poorer lands some 20 miles away is advancing.

Why should such a condition exist? The answer is plain. A dosen years ago there was a boom. With the hoom real estate went to the top "noight Keeping pace with the hoom the prices of products in that town year, un. Support Home Newspapers.

The country newspaper is a power in the land. Its place can never be filled by the big daily papers or the bulky magazines or ogricultural jounals. It fills a field entirely its own it is the barometer of the blees in which it is published. Its news pages represent the life of the people, and its advertising pages should reflect the business activity of the town, it is the duty of every good citized to give his support to the local press. Particularly the business men should patronize it with a view of bettering his trade. It is not money wasted to use advertising space in it. One good merchant in the town who 'understands' how to advertise rightly, claring the control of the Proud of their Creamery.

The people of Union are justly proud of their creamery and Prof. Vosheil takes great pleasure is showing a visitor through it and explaining its workings. It was last Friday that he conducted Holm R. H. Elliston, of the conducted Holm R. H. Elliston, of the conducted Holm R. H. Elliston, of the process through which he milk is put, resulting in a most excellent product. The output of the creamery has increased day by day since the creamery began operation, and indications are that in the next few months it will be making 1.000 pounds of butter daily, instead of 500 as at this time. A demand for the butter has already been established at the highest price pile believe in their creamery for sure.

Those interested in injuring the country circulated stories of rain and disaster, but the effect was lost, as it had teen long enough in the limelight to prove its bigh standing amongst the agricultural sections of the continent. The heavy strain placed upon it was not too great; it has shown that the faith placed in it has been warranted, and it is this year producing modoubted evidence that in agricultural possibilities and essures it stands among the first of food producers. #### SHIP SUBSIDIES--NO

A PRACTICAL ILLUSTRATION OF

A Little Incident That Should Put a Dampsr on Republican Enthusi-asm for This Form of Greft.

asm for This Form of Graft.

The country has just been favored with an unmistakable object lesson on the nature of the scheme of ahip subsidies. The coaling of the facet on its way around South America will be the chief Item of extra expense beyond that of maneuvering in home waters. The natural and businesslike way of securing this service was to advertise for it and give the work to the lowest bidders. But, when this was proposed, the subsidy hunters began with one accord to protest against going into the open market and taking their chances with foreign competitors. To appease them, they were offered the enormous boaus of 80 per cent. advance in price over the lowest foreign bidders. But even this enormous and unjustifiable bounty does not tempt them. A contract for supplying some 10,000 or 15,000 tons of coul a month is certainly worth taking. Much more when the bidder is assured of that fas much again as somebody else will do the work for. But three of the four Amer.

ly worth taking. Much more when the bidder is assured of half as much again as somebody else will do the work for. But three of the four American bidders have withdrawn. The fourth explains that his ship can do the work at the market rate plus 50 per cent, only because she is already engaged in the Hawaiian trade. And so 55 per cent, of the coaling of the American facet is to be done by foreign colliers.

The next time that one of the advocates of ship subsidies undertakes to right, a committee of congress that, the margin of difference is after all not so very great and that a moderate subsidy will make it up, this unimpeachable testimony of the open market will rise up to confuse him. On the showing in this transaction, it will cost more than belf as much again to carry goods in American bottoms than it costs to carry them in foreign bottoms. How much more may be a matter of confecture, but the American taxpayer will have to make, we more than a third of the water loads of the control of the co may be a matter of conjecture, but the American taxpayer will have to make up more than a third of the total freight bills of the subsidized ships. Much enduring creature as he is, that prospect ought to startle him. —N. Y. Times.

HIS "PLEASANT SERVICE."

May Have Been So for Platt, But How About the Public?

In the same connection in which Senator Thomas C. Platt of New York announced that he would be as of old a power in the United States, if his legs were only as good as his mind, it is specially to be noted that he proposes to "resume his duties in the United States senate" and that he "looks forward to pleasant service during the rest of his term in that great body."

What is this "pleasant service" to mean to the country? Since he was elected to the United States senate in 1881, since he resigned with Senator Conkling in the attempt to control federal patronage in New York, Mr. Platt has found prominence in public life pleasant and produable. Now, when he regrets that his legs are not as active as his mind, he expects to find the United States senate still pleasant and presumably profitable. If after a quarter of a century he still offers his examfic in the public arrived as that of the ideal Republican leader, in what respect is the country the better for it? When he closes his pleasant service, with his mind will as good, we may hope, as it was when his only known secrifice was the nother side, the possibility of remaining a pleasant bered to redeem the senate from the possibility of remaining a pleasant place for the Platts of the future—St. Louis Republic.

Endorsing Johnson.

As showing the drift of Democratic sentiment and the hope of uniting the party on a winning candidatic, a large number of editors are inclined to think that Gov. Johnson of Minnesota is one of the most available candidates for the Democratic nomination for president. For instance, the Journal of Hastings, Mich., asys:

"There is something more than suggestion in the name of Gov. Johnson of Minnesota, He is a Democratic governor of a state which gives a normal majority of 70,000 to the Republican ticket. At the election last year he had 69,000 majority. He is of Swedish origin, brainty, self poised, thoroughly honest and terribly farearnes, as to reform of every department of public service.

"He is not radical in any use of the term. He was teleted the ause the people of Minnesots had comidence in his ability, integrity and will power.

"Johnson would be less antagonized by the corporation element than Bryán; therefore, it will be well to keep in mind that there is another than the great Commoner who could lead the Democratic party to victory. Our choice is Bryan, we believe his the greatest American, but if there is too much objection, then Johnson."

PARTY PLEDGES ON TARIFF.

What Will the Coming National Convention Declare For.

When a Republican politician has been mixed up with the trusts, rail roads and ship subsidy for 10 years, as Gen. Charles H. Grosvenor has, he can see but little on the popular side of those questions. His defeat by his own party for a renomination for congress may have also given him a more narrow view of political affairs. Before leaving for Europe for a "complete rest" Gen. Grosvenor is reported to have said: "The Democratic party itself is inclined to leave the tariff alone. I don't mean that the rank and lie of the party are stand-patters, but at heart they are protectionists and the tariff plank in the next Democratic platform will be a protectionist plank." How extraordinary this statement is can be best understood when it is known that not one of the Democratic members of the next congress was elected on a protectionist plank." How extraordinary this statement is can be best understood when it is known that not one of the Democratic members of the next congress was elected on a protectionist plank." How extraordinary this statement is can be best understood when it is known that not one of the Democratic members of the memoular of the members of them would vote for a tariff reform bill, if the Republicans would allow such a measure to be considered. There are two or three Democratic members of congress who represent districts in Louislana and Texas, where sugar is grown, that would perhaps insist that the protection that unterest now enjoys should be continued, but even they would gladly vote for the elimination of the differential duty the sugar trust enjoys of onc-ninth cent a pound more than the duty pald on raw sugar.

Now, wit Democratic everywhere demanding tariff revision, and its some states Republicans who do not participate in trust, profits are demanded to the protection of the tariff revision Republicans with a small income as feeling the burden of high trust prices and the consequent the Democrata and the tariff revision Republicans with a small income and the consequent that hall be brough

DEMOCRATIC POINTERS.

The "decision" that the Cubea law against the importation of contract labor has been "overruled" leaves nothing in the way of importing strike breakers from the United States. Cubans who object can be dverruled with the same promptness as conspirators. The whole plan of "pacification". In Cuba reduces itself to the simple process of overruling the Cubans—St. Louis Republic.

The governor of Pennsylvania proposes to put in prison every graffer in the state. Here is a fm opportunity for somebody to graft $12,000,000 out of the pentientiary annex contract.—Louisville Courier-Journal

But the original intention was to make this a country of due process of law, so comprehensive that it will complet the most stremuous to confine their superduous stremuous to confine their superduous stremuous to be a hunting—St. Louis Republic.

To call a new international peace congress and ask congress for two new battleships would look queer if it were done by anyone but Theodore Roosevelt. It looks a little queer any

It may suit the campaign purposes of the Republican national machine managers to prevent the Issurres of the proclamation which announces the action of Oklahoma in lawfully entering the union. But no such action will "web" the lawful and constitutional authority of the new state, as it has lawfully proclaimed its entrance to the union at the ballet box.

Getting Even.

Former United States Senator William E: Chandler has resigned as chairman and member of the Spanish elaim commission. He gave as his reason for this step the appointment by President Koosevelt of a man as a member of the commission, who an an attoriev had prepared many of the very cases upon which he will now be called upon to sit in judgment. Those is perhaps an old grudge rank impair the breast of William Chandlor against the president; who it will be remembered relegated him to the Annaia class, and the very questionable action of Pravident Roosevelt 17 making this appointment gives Chandler a good chance to get back as the

One Italian Is Dead and Three Others
Are At Point of Death,

Corbin, Ky.—An Italian section hand, employed here by the Loulsville & Nashville railroad, killed a buzzard and cooked the bird, serving it with dumplings. He invited three other Italians to attend the "spread," and with great gusto they "fell to and helped themselves."

Immediately afterward all four became violently ill. An hour later the host died in great agony, and his three countrymen are now at the point of death.

ADVICE TO VICTIMS

TELLS READERS HOW TO CURE

Trouble Promptly.

There is so much Rheumatism every-where that the following advice by an eminent authority, who writes for readers of a large Eastern daily paper, will be highly appreciated by those who suffer:

Get from any good pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandellon, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces of Compound Syruy Sarsaparilla. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teapportful doses after each meal and at bedtime; also drink plenty of good water.

It is claimed that there are few victims of this dread and torturous discase who will fail to find ready relief in this simple home-made mixture, and in the claim that cause a permanent cure is the result.

This simple recipe is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys so that they can filter and strain from the hiood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter, which cause not only Rheumalism, but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active, or who suffers from any urinary trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture, as it is certain to do much good, and may seve you from much misery and suffering after while.

much misery and suffering after while.

A prominent planter recently had occasion to visit some of his holdings—in southern Arkansas. The land was situated several miles from a rairoad, and it was necessary to finish the journey in a buggy. So he took a friend with him and started out.

After traversing several miles of sparsely settled country, they came upon a farmer plowing corn on the side of a hill. The planter wishing to appear civil to his neighbors, stopped his horge and yelled at the man, who came to the feare, uppping his face with a red bandana.

"Good morning."

Beschall as a Business.

The Meryklophent of Junschall as a business has been 36 formplete that it has attained a prominence second to no other American industry in extensiveness and "importance." The business of baseball ngarishes wherever there is a stretch of level ground and enough lumber to make a bate and as more "people are interested in it than jn any other, single industry in the country, surely it is the most important. In Chicago, where the livestock trade has acquired somewhat of, a reputation, it is actremely probable that most of the inhabitiants, if confronted with the alternative of giving up either their meat or their baseball, would choose to become vegetarians, says-Charles A. Comiskey—In American Business Man. The statistical extent of baseball is difficult to estimate and not likely to be overestimated. Approximately 300 professional teams are listed under the national agreement, and to the players of these clubs ever $2,577,000 was paid out last year in sainten. To maintain the grounds of these, clubs and for incidental salarates. To maintain the grounds of these, clubs and for incidental salarates. The maintain the grounds of these clubs and for incidental salarates there was an additional expenditure of $2,500,000. For railroad fares of these clubs and for incidental sal-aries there was an additional expendi-ture of $2,50,000. For railroad fares the club owners parted with close on to $1,000,000, and for hole bills for the traveling clubs the amount paid out approximated $150,000. For spring training expenses the magnates part-ed with $125,000, part of which they made, bget, of course, in the ante-sea-son exhibition games. For all addi-tional expenses rolled up by the, clubs playing under the national agreement there was an outlay of at least $1, 900,000.

Cometa are not now regarded as signs that "forerun the death or fall of kings," but this superstition was still current in the time of Queen Elizabeth, though, to the amazement of her courtlers, the queen ealmly accorned it. The curious thing was that it was also thought that if the sovereign would refrain from looking at the malificant celestial passer-by no harm would come to her. On one occasion Elizabeth's attendants shut and curtained her windows, but her majestr, as might have been expected, with "a courage answerable to the greatness of her estate," caused them to be opened, crying as ahe looked up, "Jacta est alsa—the die is cast." Then, like Cnut on the seashore, she read her people a homily, asserting that her "steadfast hope and confidence was too firmly planted in the providence of God to be blasted or affrighted, with those beams which either had a ground in nature whereupon to rise. ed, with those beams which either had a ground in nature whereupon to rise, or at least no warrant in scripture to portand the mishaps of princes."

No more green consuls are to be sent abroad to represent America if the plans of the state department which have just been put into practice realize expectations. Ever since the establishment of the consular service, it has, been customary to allow a newly appointed consul 30 days with pay before leaving America for his post. A room in the department has been equipped as a complete working America consul in any part of the working and consultate, suitable to transact the business of an Americana consul in any part of the world, civilized or uncivilized. Appointees are no longer permitted to spend that 30 days period in their own way, but are required to report every day at the state department for duty, and to spend a certain number of hours in this model, consular office, receiving instructions coronain number of hours in this model consular office, receiving instructions and acquainting themselves with every practical detail of a consul's daily work. Coincident with the centennial anniversary of the launching of Pulton's steamhoat Ciermont is revived the Issend that the boiler of the boat was made from copper cents. The early copper coins of the country were, as are the coid coins of the present, worth their face value as metal. It requently happened that the easiest way, and not a costly way to get copper for use in the arts, was to collect the coins and meit them. There is no record, so far as known, of where Pulton did get the copper for the boiler, but when a coin collector attempted to secure a cent dated 1739 he discovered that cents of that date were rare, and that it was not much easier to find a cent of 1804, yet more than 750,000 cents were coined in 1804 and, asariy a million in 1799.

materially increased, within a short time, both by imports of gold and the increase of the bank note circulation, and that the movement of cotton and grain crops would be facilitated in overy way possible with the result of increasing our credits abroad, were the sailent features of Thursday's inancial situation.

It seemed to be recognized every—where that the acute stage of the crisis was over and that all that remained was to obtain sufficient cashto resume currency payments upon a broad scale and thus to restore conditions prevailing before the crisis. The engagements of gold made in New York, Chicago and elsewhere, brought up the total import movement within the past week to $22,750,000. As the amount of gold will adrord a basis of credit to four times the amount, or about $350,000,00, it will in itself afford much relief to the existing pressure.

Ridgely's Plan Liked.

The prompt response of the national banks throughout the country to the suggestion of Comptroller Ridgely that they should employ their United States bonds as largely as possible to secure circulation and substitute other bonds for those pledged against deposits of public money, promises a considerable increase in the available stock of currency. The estimates of an increase in the bank note circulation of $30,000,000 is considered well within the probabilities. It will require time, however, in some cases for the banks to obtain proper bonds to substitute for their United States bonds.

substitute for their United beauer bonds.

Mr. Vanderilp, vice president of the National City bark, made the fruitful suggestion that the savings banks would at once improve the segment sit-uation-if in would sell their hold-ings of United States bonds to the na-tional banks. Even in cases where they do not care to sell, it is believed that they will lend their bonds to the actional banks, as has often been done in the past.

tional banks. Even in cases where they do not care to sell, it is believed that they will lend their bonds to the national banks, as has often been done in the past.

Helping Cotton Movement.

Interest continues to center in the movement of the cotton crop from New Orleans and other southern points, which is so essential to provide bills against the imports of gold.

Secretary Cortelyou, according, to. Washington dispatches, was disposed to increase deposits of public funds in the southern banks as rapidly as such funds became available. This will supply the banks with the stock of currency so much needed to handle the cotton crop and will enable them to await with less embarrassment than otherwise the arrival of their cotton bills in Europe and the bringing back of the gold.

The committee of New Orleans bankers which is in Washington has suggested that the New York banks can ease the situation by giving the southern banks credit for checks in foreign banks, forwarded as soon as they receive telegraphic advices of the amounts. This will enable the southern banks to check against such balances in payment of collections and in making remittances to interior banks throughout the country. Banks.

San Antonio, Tex. — The West Texas Bank & Trust company of this city closed its doors under a temporary suspension of business Thursday and is now in he hands of the state commissioner of insurance and banking. The suspension is attributed to the tightness of the money market and the refusal of northern and eastern bankers to skip cash. The West Texas Bank & Trust company is one of the principal banking institutions of San Antonio. According to G. B. Moore, president, the company will soon be in coadition to resume business.

Tashkend, Russian Turkistan.—The little town of Karatagh, in the Hussat district of Bokhara, has been overwheimed and completely destroyed by a iandsilde that followed the earth quake of October 21. According to the latest reports of the disaster, a majority of the inhabitants of Karatagh lost their lives.

The first reports of the casualities were exaggerated, the death list being placed as high as 15,000. Karatagh had about 2,500 dwellers, and there is reason to believe that about 1,500 were buried alive. Among those who survived the disaster are the governor of Karatagh and his mother. Karatagh is remotely situated, and it takes a full week for news to get out from there, but according to one courier who has come through, an enormous section of the Karatagh mountais, which practically hung over the town, broke loose and thundered down upon the village, which is almost completely buried.

EMPLOYES' UNION IN ENGLAND me Hope That Lloyd-George May Avert Trouble—Rallroads Blame Socialism.

London.—Notwithstanding the powerful indiances that have been at work for some time past in the hope of averting trouble in the British rail. Toad world, there seems to be but little probability of preventing a strike which will have the most serious consequences to the traveling public and the men and companies involved, as well as to commercial interests generally.

The action taken Friday by the executive committee of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, in passing a resolution to call a general strike, leaves little or no hope for a favorable outcome. This society always has been looked upon as one of the mest conservative of the labor unions, and its dealer, Richard Bell, M. P<sub>x</sub>-has been noted for his efforts to prevent strikes and for his utterances in favor of the rights of capital sa well as the rights of the working man.

ances in favor of the rights of capital as well as the rights of the working man.

While there is a lone list of alleged grievances, the principal one has turned on recognition of the union, and this the railroad companies, whose chief spokenman is Lord Claud Hamilton, are determined not to concede. The general strike, however, under the price of the society and the requirements of the society and the requirements of the issue, cannot take place for some weeks. In the mean time there is a remote hope that the efforts of David Lloyd-George, who, with the induces of his high position, with the induces of his high position, so president of the board of trade, has been working strenuously refined that the present sentiation is due to the growth of socialism and curjously enough, while this idea was being voiced by Lord Claud Hamilton Friday night in a declaration that socialism was "irreligious and immoral in its teachings," Mr. Lloyd-George was averning in his address that socialism was "a begey of to-day introduced to frighten the unwary" and that there was no danger but a "certain advantage in socialism insomuch as it stirred the people to think."

in all cities. Mayor Dunne of Chicago has characterized them as having outgrown their usefulness, and this is probable the truest possible characterization. The grand jury originated as a popular body to protect men in person, property and reputation from baseless accusations by appointees of the king. Instead of being charged with the function of hunting down crime, they were charged with the function of distinguishing probable cases of crime from mendacious persecutions. his is the reason the old grand juries heard only evidence for the prosecution. Their object was to determine the prosecutors' good faith and the value of his evidence in establishing a primi facie case. For the same reason, its sessions were secret. But with the process of time, the grand jury has evolved into a very different institution. No longer standing between mendacious persecution it was established to prevent; and its secrecy, no longer a reasonable precaution in the interest of public justice, is a dreadful agency of injustice. To the influential, the grand jury is a harmless censor and a convenient tool; to the unfortunate and a harmless censor and a conven-ient tool; to the unfortunate and friendless, it is a crushing mech-anism of injustice.

ABSALOM THE AVENGER

authority-2 Scripture chapter 13.

SERMONETTE.

In this incident we see the beginning of the fulfilliment of the prophecy of Nathana spoken at the time of David's great sin, when he declared that "the sword shall never depart from thine house," and "Behold, I will raise up evil against thee out of thine own house."

The sins of the fathers are incided upon the children as the inevitable outworking of the neutral law of cause and effect. It is as true to-day as in the days of David.

David could not violate the moral law without its exerting a hurtful influence upon the members of his household. His example proved demoralizing, he had been to the flesh encouraged a like induspence on the part of his own sons.

Sad is it not to contemplate such reckless violation of parental obligations, and yet how repeatedly we see its repetition to-day. Fathers and mothers into whose care have come the Divinely imposed obligation and live to gratify their own selfish desires. They think to indulge the secret sin wir-aut poisoning the atmosphere of the home and contaminating the lives of their children. But can they? This tragedy in the family of David protests an emphatic NOI and over again the same emphatic NOI over again the same emphatic No!

Does that drinking father expect his children are not going to be influenced by his example?

Does that mother think that she cam abandon herself to the pleasures of society and indulge in all manner of excesses and not have the daughter's life poisoned by the evil example?

Does that father of easy morsals, who is reckless of the sanctity of another's home, forget that the monster of vice may enter his home and claim as a victim his daughter, or his son? Why is it that divorce is increasing at such a terrible rate? Is it not because children are following in the footsteps of their divorced parents?

But the sim sof parents, while being a reason, are no excuse for the sins of children. The vorced parents?

But the sim of parents, while being a reason, are no excuse for the sin of children. The example of the parent may have encouraged the child to like sin-Tui Indulgence, but it does not absolve the child from responsibility for his own conduct. Amnon, the firstborn son of David and heir to the throne, saw his father graffy his lust ful dealires at any cost, and why should not he!

Absalom saw David his father deliberately plot the death of another, why should not he?
Absalom saw David his father deliberately plot the death of another, why should not he? Absalom, the natural protector of his sister, should have seen that punishment was visited upon the head of the wicked Amnon, but it should have been strictly within the limits of the law. Had he in the heat of passion at the moment struck Amnon down it would not have been surprising, but for him to harbor hatred and wickedly and in cold-bloog plot murder indicates an evil heart which knew not, neither feared, God.

THE STREET STREE

THE STORY.

HATRED nursed within the heart is a slow polson which at last permeates all the life, destroying the better impulses and giving rein to the evil passions.

So it was with Absalom, the handsome and prepossessing son of King David. For nearly two years now there had rankled in his heart the evil passions which had been aroused when his beautiful sister Tamar had poured into his sympathetic ear the story of her grievous wrongs at the hands of her half-brother, Amnon, and certain it is that time had not softened his anger, or weakened his murderous resolve.

without danger to himself secretly. Absalom rejoiced that he had found occasion against Annon, for wish him out of the way Absalom would be helf to the throne of David. From his carliest boyhood he could receil pow his mother had encourance out by his mother had encourance him in the hope that some day he should be helf to the kingdom. His grandfather Talmai was king over Geshur, gird why should not he be king over Israel, and thus unite two strong kingdome? Absalom's mother looked with contempl upon Abinoam, mother with contempl upon Abinoam, mother M. Annon, for she had no claim to royal sirth, while she, Mascaln, was daughter of the king of Geshur. And this contempt which she had felt for Ahlnoam she had instilled into the heart of her son Abssions, so that he had come to feel that her son Amenon was quite be neath him. This feeling had grown with the years and there was no pleasant intercourse between the half brothers, and as Abssiom came to manhood's estate and the pride and ambition took complete possession of his heart, there grew upon him the feeling that somehow Amnon stood in his way to success; that he was doing him an injustice.

He had been told too often of the charms of his own person not to be considered to the charms of his own person not to be considered to the charms of his own person not to be considered to the charms of his own person not to be considered to the charms of his own person not to be considered to the charms of his ambition, and long before the wicked conduct of Ammon had brought him within his power he had secretly plotted how he might compass his ruln without evil consequences to himself.

Hence, as we have said, when Ammon had brought him within his power he had secretly plotted how he might compass his ruln without evil consequences to himself.

Hence, as we have said, when Ammon had the without the said of the welcomed it as the long sought opportunity, but even in his passionate eagerness to strike the blow he knew that he must move coutiously, else he would frustrate his own ends. For this reason he counseled his sister to say nothing which would bring punishment upon the head of Ammon and take him out of the reach of his power. His hand and his alone should deal with him, and all Israel should know that Absalom was as brave as he was leautiful, and as fearless in righting wrong as he was in defending the incoent.

So the time slipped by until, as wear said, almost two years and passing him with the would full for him to desire.

Others had forgotten us, emity to wards Ammon, in St. 18 the latter and in the brutishness of his own had a his flocks had yielded spiens did increase, and there seemed qubing for him to desire.

Others had forgotten us, emity to wards Ammon, in St. 18 the latter and the brutishness of his orother Amnon. He deserved to die, he argued with himself, and his death would place him in direct succession of mitting harded in his heart gave him no peace day or night. The one thing he desired above all else was to destroy his brother Amnon. He deserved to die, he argued with himself, and his death would place him in direct succession to the throp.
